SUPERVISOR BOTHERED BY CEMENT EXPANSES

Flowers adorn the traffic islands at the San Anselmo end of Miracle Mile (left) while at the San Rafael end (right) the city has created islands of concrete.

And Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen knows which of the two he prefers.

"Why the concrete?", he asked at Tuesday's board meeting. It's so simple to have a little planting."

If San Anselmo can help beautify the approach to Miracle Mile, he wonders what is preventing San Rafael from planting flowers instead of concrete.

Concerned at concrete covering the county, he added: "I don't know what's happening to the environment. (Independent-Journal photos)

Logging 'Scare' At Inverness Squelched By State Officials

A timber cutting "scare" in Inverness watershed area subsided this morning, as state forestry officials denied issuing any permit for logging of any kind.

State foresters speculated that the rumor (that logging operations would begin next month in Inverness) probably started because of a routine permit issued for the cutting of greens on the Inverness watershed, owned by the Citizens Utility Co. of California, with offices in Guerneville.

This permit was issued to Lindo L. Mambretti of Point Arena by the State Division of Forestry.

Wilma Morgan, clerk at the Citizens Utility Co. office in Guerneville, confirmed that the greens permit had been issued to Mambretti. The greenry is sold to San Francisco florists," said Mrs. Morgan. She said Mambretti has the permit to take greens for a one-year period, starting next month.

Mrs. Morgan said such permits have been issued routinely for years, with no adverse effects.

She said her company is "greatly upset" about the rumored timber cutting "because that is the one thing we don't want anywhere near our watershed area."

Joseph Buttner, district manager of Citizens Utility Co., was in Inverness this morning to track down the rumor.

Robert D. Calkins, deputy director of the State Department of Conservation in Sacramento, also confirmed that the greens permit had been issued to Mambretti, but he knows of no logging permit of any kind.

Calkins said Mambretti is a well established firm that has been operating continually since 1958 in parts of Santa Cruz, Mendocino and Sonoma counties. He said the state imposes no specific regulations on greens picking.

"But if he does start cutting trees, then we are definitely interested," said Calkins. "If you do have any problems of tree cutting let us know."

Robert M. Maclean, staff forester for the North Coast District with offices in Santa Rosa, said that greens picking involves the gathering of twigs, huckleberry and ferns, but no logging.

Because of the logging rumor, Mrs. Richard M. Cantwell, secretary of the Inverness Public Utility District, had written a letter to Sacramento. But as of this morning, state officials were unable to find any evidence of a logging permit.

Marines Win But Compare Viet Battle With Okinawa

Reds Offset Defeat By Mountain Victory

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Marines killed 550 Viet Cong, wounded an estimated 1,000 and captured 50 hard core guerrillas in fighting near Chu Lai, a U.S. Marine spokesmen said today. He hailed the victory as the biggest operational success of the Viet Nam war.

The victory cost the Marines the heaviest casualties of any American action of the Viet Nam war, the spokesman said. No figures were announced under new military regulations.

The spokesman said the scene of the fighting was the stronghold of the 1st Viet Cong Regiment, one of the toughest Communist fighting forces in Viet Nam. The Marines said the fighting was as tough as that of Korea and Okinawa.

The Marines captured scores of weapons of all types from individual arms to crew-served weapons such as 81 millimeter mortars and 57 mm recoilless rifles. A spokesman said earlier the Marines captured "mountains" of other supplies.

APPEARS OVER

The heaviest part of the operation appeared to be over and the spokesman said the last contact between the Marines and VC pockets of resistance took place this afternoon. The Marines drove to the coast in the fighting area 12 miles south of Chu Lai and will complete the operation tomorrow by searching beach areas for holdouts.

Tonight civilians in the area were filtering back through the Marines lines to safety in the rear and are being provided with food and water, the spokesman said.

An American military spokesman said the Marines expected to complete most of their cleaning up operations tonight.

Lt. Gen. Victor M. Krulac, commander of all Marine forces in the Pacific, described the battle as a "fine victory for the first team."

'FINE VICTORY'

But in another battle in the central highlands, an annihilation force of Viet Cong overran the district capital of Dak Sut and an American special forces camp in Kontum Province. The town's garrison and camp was one of the last barriers in the region to Communist infiltration from southern Laos.

Three other smaller actions were reported close to Saigon

Novato Toddler Fatally Injured In Parking Lot

A 20-month-old Novato girl was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital yesterday after she was run over twice by a car in the parking lot of her apartment home.

Leslie Denise Forwood, daughter of John and Audrey Forwood, Apt. 3, of 1033 Sixth Street, Novato, was playing in the parking lot with her brother, John, 3.

At 4:37 p.m., Miss Joyce Ann Cox, 19, of Apt. 6 in the same building, backed out of an open parking space, running over the child with the left rear wheel of the car.

Novato police reported that two witnesses of the accident, Donald Clifford Rosser, 14, of 1032 Sixth Street and Brenda Gail Overshiner, 13, of 692 Norman Drive, both Novato, began shouting at Mis Cox.

She then drove forward, running over the child again, before she realized what was wrong, police reported.

The child, who suffered severe head injuries, was rushed by California Ambulance to Marin General Hospital. Dr. Henry Chaker of 1305 Grant Avenue, Novato, rode with the child to the hospital.

Miss Cox was driving a sedan belonging to Richard Charles Sheridan of 100 Stasia Court, Novato. Police still had the case under investigation today and would not say if charges would be filed.

Funeral arrangements were being made at Chapel of Marin, Novato.

CITY PARKING 'HELPER' TRICKS WOMAN DRIVER

San Rafael police today were on the lookout for the gallant parking lot "attendant" who helped a woman driver park her car — and then stole it.

Virginia Skinner of San Francisco told the police she drove into the municipal lot at Third and Lindaro streets at 8:30 a.m. yesterday.

As she got out she was approached by a man about 25 years old wearing a dirty white shirt who said he was an attendant.

She said he asked her to leave him the ignition key as he might have to move the car out of the way of trucks passing through the lot.

The woman had no small change for the parking fee so the man ran across the road to get her two quarters for a half dollar at a dry cleaning shop. He put one quarter in a parking ticket machine and gave her the change.

When she returned at 3:30 p.m. her car—and the "attendant" were gone. Later she learned from the police that this parking lot has no attendant, gallant or otherwise.

Great Society's Funds Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee approved a $1.2 billion down payment today on President Johnson's school aid program, his new administration aging and stepped-up research into heart disease, cancer and stroke.

The action came as the House neared final approval on a compromise $3.36 billion foreign aid authorization bill agreed on earlier this week by House-Senate conferes.

Senate action on the foreign aid bill was expected to follow quickly, sending the measure to the White House and removing a major roadblock in the path of congressional adjournment by Labor Day.

Radio Trouble, Storm Thwart Gemini Liftoff

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Technical problems and a heavy thunderstorms combined today to force postponement of the eight-day Gemini 5 flight of Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr.

There was no immediate indication when the flight would be rescheduled, but it was believed that another attempt could not be made before Saturday.

The effort was called off at 12:43 p.m. (EST) as Cooper and Conrad tensely waited out the countdown while sealed in the cramped quarters of their spacecraft perched atop a fully-lbaded Titan 2 rocket.

They had been in the space ship since 10:42 a.m. when the shot was called off.

The countdown was racing against a thunderstorm moving in from the West and had a good chance of winning, when the count suddenly was stopped at T-minus 10 minutes.

Mission control center said the count was held at that point because of a dropout in radio signals from a telemetry channel which pipes information from the spacecraft to ground controllers.

Even as the rain began pelting the launch complex, Cooper and Conrad said they still were anxious to go. Minutes later, the control center called the shot off for the day.

Earlier, the shot had been delayed 3 hours, 18 minutes because of a problem with the spacecraft power system.

The experience was nothing new for Cooper. He once sweated out more than five hours in his Mercury capsule before a faulty radar system postponed that flight. He was launched the following day with only a four-minute delay in the countdown.

When told of the postponement, Cooper was quoted as saying:

"Aw, gee, you promised a launching today and not a wet mock." A wet mock is a rehearsal in which the booster is fueled.

On the Gemini 5 wet mock July 23, Cooper and Conrad also had frustrations. When the exercise was over, the service tower failed to raise because of an electrical problem and they were stranded in the spacecraft more than an hour.

Fifteen minutes after today's launch was called off, Cooper and Conrad left the capsule.

10,875 Occupied Units In San Rafael

San Rafael, with an estimated population of 31,550, has 10,875 occupied housing units with an average of 2.8 persons living in each unit, according to results of a survey taken by the state department of finance.

The survey also found 1,075 persons living in group quarters, such as dormitories, hospitals, correctional institutions and other establishments not regarded as regular households.

Rain Cancels Little League Portland Tilt

I-J Special Report

PORTLAND — A steady rainfall that started early this morning has forced postponement of tonight's Western Regional Little League semi-final game between Novato and South Mountain, Ariz., until tomorrow at 4 p.m.

It was still raining at 1 p.m. today when Tournament Director Al Wilgus announced the postponement. The rescheduling creates a doubleheader for tomorrow. Following the Novato-South Mountain game, the other semi-final between Covina, Calif. and Klamath Falls, Ore. will start at 6:30 o'clock.

Consolation game is still scheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday with the championship game to follow at 3:30.

The weather forecast is for clearing skies Friday afternoon with temperatures in the low 80's.

If further postponements are necessary the semi-finals would be played at 1 and 3:30 Saturday, with the consolation and finals at the same hour on Sunday, Wilgus said.

The champion here will advance to the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa.,

Novato Citizens Speak Out For Keeping Police Force

Novato residents are generally opposed to doing away with the city police department in favor of a contract for police protection with Marin County, according to a poll of opinion today.

Mayor Robert D. Carrow, who proposed a study of the idea Tuesday, has been out of the city since and unavailable for comment.

"What can I honestly say?" said Police Chief Robert Di Grazia today. That was all he would say.

Harley McAskill, clothing store owner who ran for the first city council and was Novato's first planning commission chairman, said need for police protection was one of the principle reasons

Ex-Governor La Follette Dies

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Former Wisconsin Gov. Philip F. La Follette, a leader of the old progressive party and member of one of the state's most prominent political families, died last night in Madison General Hospital. He was 68.

La Follette

La Follette was the son of the late Sen. Robert M. (Battling Bob) La Follette, founder of the progressive wing in the Republican party and a U.S. senator for 19 years.

La Follette's immediate family was at his bedside. Death was attributed to pneumonia and lung complications.

His law partner, Gordon Sinykin, said earlier yesterday that La Follette was "putting up a magnificent fight, but his heart is showing the strain and he is slipping away."

He was hospitalized Aug. 3 and his wife and three children spent much of the time next to his bedside since then.

Tsirimokos

Political observers said Tsirimokos' task will be difficult and the confidence debate bitter, perhaps violent.

Tsirimokos, 58, a former leader of Greece's Socialist party, was named premier by King Constantine yesterday. He will remain premier-designate until the official swearing-in, possibly later today.

The former Socialist said he plans to seek a vote of confidence from Parliament "early next week."

Death Camp Culprits Sentenced

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Six former Nazi SS guards and functionaries of the Auschwitz concentration camp were sentenced to the maximum term of life in prison today on charges of mass murder or aiding in the wartime mass murder of Auschwitz inmates.

Boger

Among those who received life sentences were Welhelm Boger, described as a torturer, and Oswald Kaduk, a guard who giggled while breaking prisoners' necks.

Eleven others drew prison terms ranging from 14 years to 3 years and 3 months. Three were acquitted.

The verdicts came after a 20-month trial, the longest and largest in German legal history. Several Auschwitz survivors were in the audience that listened tensely as presiding Judge Hans Hofmeyer read out the sentences.

Kaduk

Millions of people died at Auschwitz, the huge sprawling camp complex the Nazis set up in southern Poland during World War II to exterminate "racially undesirables."

Most of the victims were Jews. But many Poles, Russians and others were also gassed, shot, hanged, burned, starved or tortured to death. Auschwitz was the largest of Nazi extermination camps.

Porter

His wife, the former Marina Oswald, said he slapped her and tried to kill himself.

Porter was released from Dallas County Jail about midnight in $1,500 peace bond. Mrs. Porter complained her husband was a possible threat to the lives of her and her children.

The couple was married only 2½ months ago.

"We got into an argument," she said. "He slapped me in the face and tried to get me to put the children outside so that he could be alone with the gun he carried."

Marina

Marina told Justice of the Peace W. E. (Bill) Richburg Wednesday that Porter, an electronics technician, had been drinking and had a gun. She said he threatened to kill himself and she was also afraid he would kill her and her two small daughters — 3-year-old June Lee and 2-year-old Rachael, both fathered by Oswald.

Cause Of Negro Riots Is Probed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With calm restored in the riot zone, government leaders concentrated today on an investigation of the causes and remedies for the violent Negro outbreak that cost 34 lives and $200 million in property loss.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown said he would announce the members of a special commission charged with finding a peaceful solution to racial strife in the sprawling Los Angeles metropolis. He said a top man has accepted the job as chairman.

Brown scheduled a 2 p.m. television broadcast for a "major extended statement" on the turmoil that began eight days ago in the Watts district of southeast Los Angeles.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was greeted yesterday by heckling as well as friendly applause when the Negro civil rights leader toured the section.

"Burn, baby, burn," yelled one heckler at a meeting Dr. King addressed in a community center. That was the rallying cry of the burning and looting rioters during the disorder.

Negroes in the crowd told Dr. King they wanted Mayor Samuel W. Yorty and Police Chief William H. Parker to come to their neighborhoods and hear their complaints.

Statements by Yorty indicated bitterness between him and the state and federal leadership over antipoverty and relief measures.

Commenting on President Johnson's assignment of Undersecretary of Commerce LeRoy Collins to visit Los Angeles for an on the spot study of the riot causes, Yorty said:

"I don't believe he can do anything. He's a specialist in civil rights, which is not the issue here."

After Brown announced that 12,000 National Guard troops were being pulled out, Yorty said he regarded the withdrawal a mistake.

"I don't know what the governor's doing," Yorty said. "He's too busy with press relations and press conferences to tell me what he's going to do."

Brown said the withdrawal decision, leaving about 3,000 troops still on riot zone duty, was made after a meeting of state officers with Parker.

He said $1.77 million in federal funds has been released for a cleanup and repair program in south Los Angeles.

Collins said he was instructed by President Johnson to remain in Los Angeles as long as he feels necessary to provide all available federal help.

The riot area, where a curfew was lifted Tuesday, remained quiet. The calm had been briefly shattered early yesterday with a police raid on the Black Muslim sect's Los Angeles mosque.

Fifty-nine Black Muslims were arrested in the raid. It was carried out on a tip that weapons were being taken into the building. Police said shots fired from the building hit two police cars. Officers responded with hundreds of rounds of gunfire that riddled the mosque.

Jellyfish Hit Beach

NEW YORK (AP) — Portuguese men-of-war jellyfish forced the closing of two sections of Jones Beach on Long Island. More than 100 persons have been stung since Sunday.

Singer Puts Finger On Riot Cause

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Singer Harry Belafonte says it is wrong for Police Chief William H. Parker to try to eliminate brutality as a cause of the Watts riots.

"It's not a gestapo type of brutality that's being talked about," Bellafonte said yesterday.

"It's a very different, emasculating kind of brutality. It results from a building-up of frustrating police discourtesies, and to Negroes, it's just as hard to take."

Belafonte, 38, said he was born in Harlem and knows what it is like to live in a Negro ghetto.

He made the remarks while receiving an award of merit from the County Board of Supervisors for his 15 years in the entertainment business.

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, (AP)—The second version of the huge XB70A research bomber has completed the longest flight for either of the two craft—almost two hours. The No. 2 plane hit a top speed of more than 900 miles an hour yesterday on its third flight, and reached an altitude of 45,000 feet.

Israeli Nazi Camp Survivors Protest Envoy From Germany

JERUSALEM, Israel (AP) — Several persons were injured today as hundreds of Nazi concentration camp survivors clashed with police during the demonstrations while West German Ambassador Rolf Pauls presented his credentials to President Zlman Shazar.

The demonstrators, including many children, lined the narrow lane leading to Shazar's residence, carrying placards whih read "Pauls go home," "We will not forget—We will not forgive," "Remember the six millions."

What appeared to be a quiet protest erupted after the ambas- drove past with a police escort.

THEY'VE GOT A COOL JOB

Even if it's sweltering outside, these two scientists must don fur-lined hooded parkas, ski masks and heavy gloves if they are going to protect themselves from the 44-degrees-below temperature at their jobs. They work in the "Cold Box" at the U.S. Rubber plant at Passaic, N.J., testing the cold characteristics of a new synthetic rubber, called Royalene which can be tied into a knot at sub-freezing temperatures while a hose of conventional rubber (left) snaps in two like peanut brittle.

GOP Fur Ruffled Over Ike 'Puppet' Remark

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford accused the White House today of "disparaging" former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He called for an immediate apology.

The Michigan lawmaker based his protest on comments yesterday by White House Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers. Moyers said President Johnson did not feel that he and Eisenhower had any division over the U.S. commitment in Viet Nam.

Moyers went on to say that the President "doesn't consider any effort by anyone else to use General Eisenhower to promote such divisions as serving the national interest."

Ford, tangling with the White House for the second time in recent weeks, today issued this statement:

"I have just read with indignation and resentment a published statement by the White House press secretary alleging that former President Eisenhower is being 'used' by someone as a puppet for political purposes.

"General Eisenhower and the nation are entitled to an immediate apology from the White House for this irresponsible insinuation.

"National unity is not strengthened by disparaging a beloved and distinguished statesman, General Eisenhower."

Moyers' statements yesterday came when he was asked about remarks Eisenhower made at a Capitol Hill news conference Tuesday after he had conferred with GOP congressional leaders.

The former president said that when his administration made its commitment in 1954 to assist South Viet Nam, it was talking about economic aid—not military aid. Johnson repeatedly has cited the 1954 pledge as the origin of the U.S. commitment in Viet Nam.

Johnson likes to quote from Eisenhower's 1954 letter to the then-premier of South Viet Nam in which Eisenhower offered to "assist the government of South Viet Nam in developing and maintaining a strong, viable state, capable of resisting attempted subversion or aggression through military means."

Republicans, though generally supporting the current U.S. military build-up in South Viet Nam, don't like to consider themselves locked in by this letter.

Only one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, the pyramids of Egypt, is still in existence.

Iraqi Poison Gas Charged

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—The leader of the Kurdish revolt in northern Iraq claimed today that the Iraqi government has authorized the use of poison gas to wipe out Kurdish resistance and end the 4-year-old war.

Mullah Mustafa Barzani made the claim in a cable sent from Nicosia to U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant and General Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana. He appealed to them to dissuade the Baghdad government from its allegedly imminent plan to launch gas attacks.

Identical messages were addressed to President Johnson, French President Charles de Gaulle, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, President Tito of Yugoslavia and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Beverly Hills Freeway Deadlock Seems Broken

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Division of Highways recommended today a $225 million freeway through Beverly Hills.

The recommendation came after five years of controversy over routing.

The proposed freeway, which the division wants depressed, would run 9.3 miles from the San Diego Freeway, at the edge of Santa Monica, northeastward through Beverly Hills to Ardmore Avenue, Los Angeles.

The recommendation was made to the Highway Commission, which set a public hearing in Beverly Hills for Sept. 16.

Beverly Hills councilman Leonard Horwin said state engineers had adopted in the main the routing recommended by the City of Beverly Hills.

Herbert Sturdy, representing the Western Freeway Council, and J. Van Ronkel, president of the Beverly Hills Improvement Assn., said they believed the proposed route answers most objections.

Highway Engineer J. C. Womack said that while state engineers are taking no position on Beverly Hills' request for covering the freeway through the Golden Triangle, an investigation showed that economic values from covering the freeway would greatly exceed the cost of covering.

"Use of the air space above the depressed section," he said, "could provide community benefits estimated to range upward from $100 million over 20 years."

The cost of alternate block coverage would be about $10 million, including ventilation.

Goods Stolen From House

Loss of $65 cash, silverware and an electric guitar in a burglary of the home of Warren Ringen, 104 Ricardo Road, Strawberry Manor, was reported yesterday to sheriff's deputies.

Ringen said entry was by pushing in a kitchen window screen.

Harvey Raymond Lorber, 129 Greenbrae Boardwalk, Greenbrae, told officers someone looted the ark he is living aboard, taking clothing, a pair of binoculars, a tape recorder, a camera and $42 cash. Entry was via an unlocked rear porch door.

Dr. Degenhardt Selected For Ross Trustee Vacancy

Ross School District trustees last night appointed Marin physician Dr. Ira H. Degenhardt to complete the term of trustee Ray A. Hubbard.

Dr. Degenhardt will serve until July 1, 1969.

Hubbard was promoted to a Westinghouse Electric Corp. television position in New York recently and cannot complete his four-year term. The board received his resignation last night.

Trustees also awarded contracts of $4,630 for carpets in a new library and kindergartens and of $2,100 for a collapsible wall between two new classrooms. The work will be done by subcontractors under general contractor Herrero Bros. of San Francisco.

The Ross board will make its usual loan request from the Marin County treasurer, seeking $100,000 to tide it over until its expected revenue starts coming in.

In line with recent legislation, trustees adopted a formal grievance procedure for teachers. There was no formal policy before.

The board set $4 an hour as the overtime rate for custodians and salaries of $2 to $2.20 an hour for part-time personnel.

Garden Tools Burned By Flames In Shed

Fire in a Ross storage shed yesterday destroyed about $250 worth of miscellaneous garden tools, peat moss and fertilizer, owned by R. B. Gatterdam at 33 Bolinas Avenue.

Firemen doused the blaze with 580 gallons of water and had it out in 20 minutes. No one was home when the fire was discovered at 5:21 p.m. and its cause is not known. An adjacent garage was scorched by the flames.

Giant Tree Fire To Be Watched

PORTERVILLE (UPI)— Forest fire officials, dispairing of extinguishing a fire high in the 3,000-year-old Sierra Nevada Redwood, plan to use Indians to watch the smouldering giant until snow does the job naturally next winter.

The tree is located in Grant Grove in Sequoia National Park.

Fire control officer Ben Lyons said the fire in the 200-foot tree is too high to reach from the ground and too low for helicopter use.

Meanwhile, two Indians from the Tule River Reservation will camp by the valuable giant and stamp out fallen embers to protect nearby trees.

Has anybody here read Kelley?

Read what the Kelley Blue Book has to say about the trade-in value of Plymouth's engine and drive train warranty*

Kelley says

"Wholesale and retail values in Kelley Blue Book are without any consideration for a factory warranty. All passenger cars and trucks, within the factory warranty period and with a valid warranty certificate that is transferable to subsequent owners, are worth an additional amount over and above the wholesale and retail values shown in the book. The amount will vary at the discretion of the dealer in relation to the degree of warranty remaining. However, our survey indicates a fair value for the remaining warranty is $50.00 for the first 1,000 miles or less plus $5.00 for each 1,000 miles of the remaining warranty mileage."

Rioting Might Have Delayed Some Schools

BIJOU — Dr. Max Rafferty said today some Los Angeles schools may delay opening next month due to the riots and that there was fear the violence may trigger a rash of teacher resignations.

Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, told the Associated Press he has contacted various officials and asked them to urge instructors to remain on the job.

"This is a time when more education — not less — is needed," said Rafferty, who is attending the three-day meeting of the State Curriculum Commission at Lake Tahoe.

Any attempt to leave the job, Rafferty said, would be considered a breach of contract. He said his office "would not look with favor" upon any resignations.

"Predominately white female instructors are involved," Rafferty said. The school chief would not pinpoint any particular areas.

Rafferty said he couldn't name any schools which might have to delay the September opening for the fall term, but said it was a possibility in the riot-torn Watts area.

He said he has informed the Los Angeles officials that if they want him to go to the city to confer on the problem he would "take the next plane."

Painters' Pay Hike Delayed

A special committee of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District today delayed a decision on paying bridge painters $9.40 per day extra pay for high work.

The committee asked Harry Bigarani, business secretary for Painters District Council Eight, to meet with district manager James Adam to find exactly how much the premium on high painting would cost the district.

Director Joseph J. Diviny at one point moved that the committee recommend adoption of the painting contract, including premium pay, but his motion died for lack of a second.

Bigarani and Daniel F. Del Carlo, secretary treasurer and business representative of the San Francisco Building and Construction Trades Council, argued that the total contract should be accepted because bridge policy in the past has been to accept contracts that have the acceptance of industry in the area.

The committee will meet again Aug. 31.

Progress Group For Hub Backed

Most interesting of these topics will be submitted to the planned one-day congress.

with defenders suffering heavy casualties at Ninh Hoa, nine miles from the capital.

At dawn U.S. Army aviators braved withering Viet Cong ground fire in a daring helicopter rescue of eight American survivors who fought their way out of Dak Sut before the town and their camp fell to the attacking Viet Cong.

UPI correspondent Joseph L. Galloway, aboard one of the rescue helicopters, said the eight survivors made their way to the crest of a grassy hill about one mile from the blazing camp, and signalled the searching helicopters with a shaving mirror.

The fate of other Americans possibly stationed at the camp and perhaps 350 South Vietnamese defenders was not known.

An undisclosed number of rescue aircraft were hit but none were reported downed.

The rescued survivors were taken to the headquarters of the Special Forces in Pleiku. The senior American adviser there, Col. Theodore Mataxis, 48, of Seattle, Wash., disclosed the Communist forces had brought in truck - towed quadruple mounted 50-caliber antiaircraft machine guns to discourage any thoughts of retaking Dak Sut by heliborne assault.

The Viet Cong opened their attack on Dak Sut with a mortar barrage. Earlier reports from the area indicated savage foxhole-to-foxhole fighting before radio contact was lost.

Earlier, a U.S. F100 jet pilot flying over the area reported seeing about 70 refugees leaving the town.

Blast Startles Courthouse

A shotgun-like explosion while igniting a boiler pilot light this morning startled occupants of the San Rafael courthouse.

One employee left the room to answer a telephone and the other, Charles Eads, was attempting to ignite the pilot when escaping gas apparently exploded. Eads was sprayed from a cold water line broken by the blast, but was uninjured. Sullivan said damage was slight.

In Some Ways China Hasn't Changed In Two Centuries

By DORIS RICH
Worldwide Press Service

HONG KONG — Two hundred years ago a Ching emperor permitted foreigners to present him gifts only if they acknowledged Chinese superiority. He didn't really need anything they brought, and he certainly wasn't drumming up tourist trade.

All foreigners were considered barbarians and were regarded by the Chinese with deep suspicion. They were assigned official "guides" who kept an eye on them and reported back to the throne. The traveler went only where he was taken and saw only what officialdom wanted him to see.

Today's Chinese rulers want the foreigner's tribute. They want words of praise for their regime. They also want hard cash. Otherwise things aren't very different.

The traveler today finds it difficult to get into Communist China, expensive to stay there, and impossible to see anything not on the state-approved tour.

Although Red China wants both praise and money from tourists, restrictions limited foreign tourists to a mere 5,000 during 1964. Here in Hong Kong, on the other side of the "Bamboo Curtain," there were 400,000 foreign tourists during the same 12 months.

Red tape starts knotting the minute a traveler applies for a visa. Relations between the tourist's nation and Communist China may determine whether he gets it. Citizens of the United States, Spain, Israel, South Korea and South Viet Nam are automatically excluded.

With those weeded out, the next persons most likely to be refused entry are those who have visited Taiwan or have written critical reports on Red China after previous visits.

Tourists who speak Chinese or have lived in China before are often refused. They see and hear too much.

Businessmen who are selling something the Chinese want have little trouble, regardless of their ideology. Ever since Peking started buying millions of tons of Canadian wheat, Canadian journalists have been going in and out.

A businesslike practicality is not unknown at the Hong Kong branch of China International Travel Service, patterned after the Soviet Intourist Agency. A staff member asked one tourist, "Do you want the visa on your passport or separate?"

What the clerk knew, and the tourist learned later, is that a separate visa makes it possible to visit Taiwan later, using the same passport.

Peking-sponsored tourists have no visa difficulties. During the first 10 days of June, the New China News Agency reported on a Japanese economic delegation, a Tanzania Youth League group, and an Indonesia-China Friendship Association delegation. Also reported were an Australian scientist, a Venezuelan art troupe, and a Mongolian archery team. These all bring the tribute of praise for which Peking hankers, but not the cash.

If a tourist, after waiting the customary three-to-15 days, finally does secure a visa, he must book his tour with the China Travel Service. He can select one of 30 packaged tours.

He must abide by ports of entry and exit, means of communication and routes prescribed, and within the valid period indicated on his visa.

Regulations say that he must move only within the cities listed, and must submit to checks by public security officers whenever and wherever they wish to make such checks.

China Travel Service warns him that "travel by car or motorcycle, camping, and game hunting" are not allowed.

Neither will the tourist escape the supervision of an official guide. One tourist told this correspondent he did go out in Peking without his guide, determined to spend a few hours on his own. But he was already exhausted from the full day's sightseeing given every day of his tour.

"It was not worth it," he reported. "I don't speak Chinese. Besides, nobody would speak to me anyway."

One traveler told this correspondent his guide answered politely by repeating official platitudes again and again.

However, an English tourist got a different reaction from his guide. "She literally screamed at me," he said. In an accent revealing her American education, she told him that in 1947 American soldiers raped Chinese girls at high noon on the "Bund," Shanghai's waterfront.

Thousands of eye-witnesses living in Shanghai in 1947 could refute these charges. "I'm sure she knew it," commented the tourist. "But she was from a Nationalist family and was just proving she was no longer a reactionary. She wasn't selling me; she was selling herself."

Indoctrination in Maoist thought goes with the tour whether the traveler wants it or not. Standard visits include hospitals, schools, factories and communes. The visitor is met by a party man who invites him in, delivers a talk on China's accomplishments and attacks China's enemies. The tour follows.

The Asian Highway System, a modern, 34,000-mile network that follows ancient caravan routes in many places, is nearing reality.

SUDSY UNION ISSUE

Feds Settle Question Of Who Fills Kegs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Those shiny silver keg - like containers of beer you've been taking home and putting into the refrigerator have put the brewers union over a barrel.

The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) decided today the "tapper" containers used by the Falstaff Brewing Corp. of St. Louis, are actually more like a bottle than a barrel.

And as a result they will be filled by Bottlers Local 187 of the Brewery Workers Union instead of the Brewers and Maltsters Local 6 of the Teamsters.

Falstaff called the NLRB into the case when the brewers and maltsters threatened last year not to pump beer to the machines which fill the "tappers" unless Falstaff assigned the filling work to them instead of the bottlers.

The Teamsters have always handled draft beer and barrel-like receptacles, the brewers local contended.

After a thorough investigation by one of its agents, the NLRB reported:

1. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has ruled that the "tapper" was to be treated as a bottle, and not a barrel, for federal tax purposes.

2. The filling of a "tapper" is automatic, like a bottle and not, like a barrel, subject to the judgment of the operator.

3. A "tapper" contains only 288 ounces of beer.

4. "We attach no significant weight to the fact that the "tapper" container is similar in appearance to a barrel."

5. "On the basis of the record as a whole, we conclude that bottlers represented by Bottlers are entitled to the disputed work . . . "

Negro Named Police Chief

DOWAGIAC, Mich. (AP) — When George Grady joined the Dowagiac police force 10 years ago he was "determined to work as hard as I could and go as high as I could."

But, said the 32-year-old Negro, "I never dreamed I'd become chief."

This week Grady was named chief of the all-white eight member force. He had been holding the job for 11 months on an acting basis.

City Manager Edward Simmans of this southwest Michigan community of 7,800 persons, of whom about 1,100 are Negores, made the appointment permanent this week.

Ranchers Tax Break Sought By Kettenhofen

Marin County Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen is exploring the possibility of a new assessment procedure which would allow a rancher to keep working his land without "being taxed out of business."

He asked County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel to determine whether there could be an assessment reduction if the rancher sold his prime land to a long-term investor and then leased it back for ranching for 10 or 20 years.

Ranchers, who have land valued at $3,000 an acre but only an agriculture value of $300 an acre, are being taxed out of business "while at the same time Marin is losing its pastoral scenic beauty," Kettenhofen said.

Bill Vetoed On Stopping Suspect

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Otto Kerner, Democrat, has vetoed a bill which would have allowed a policeman to stop and question anyone he believed has committed or was about to commit a felony.

The bill also would have allowed an officer who felt he was in danger of attack to search the suspect for weapons. Kerner said the bill violated constitutional guarantees against unreasonable seizure and deprivation of liberty without due process of law.

Blaze Destroys Child Center

The nursery and an adjoining warehouse were destroyed.

Fire department inspectors said the cause of the fire was not determined.

Marinites Plan To Join Mission In New Mexico

A Marinwood man and wife have volunteered to join the staff of a Presbyterian church medical mission in the New Mexico mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cole, 565 Quietwood Drive, will begin their one-year assignment Sept. 1 at the Mora Valley Medical Unit, near Cleveland, N. M., in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

Cole, an experienced biologist and planner, has held several top positions in federal park and planning projects in California and Nebraska. He was field research biologist for the National Park Service in San Francisco for six months in 1963.

Cole will serve as maintenance supervisor at the medical mission, while his wife, Jessie, will work as a housekeeper and cook.

The mission provides clinic and emergency service for Latin American families in the mountain region. Its staff includes a resident physician, a public health nurse, and a laboratory technician.

John Paul Jones, father of the United States Navy, established a 13-gun salute for American ships, one gun for each original state.

Pastor's Peace Fast Is Fatal

OROVILLE (AP) — The Rev. George J. Strong, 59, died in Butte County Hospital yesterday after fasting for almost 40 days for world peace.

The Rev. Mr. Strong, pastor of the Bethel African Methodist church in Chico, was taken to the hospital Monday by his wife, Louella.

A hospital spokesman said he had been fasting for at least 33 day but did not know the exact number.

The Negro minister was fed intravenously when he arrived at the hospital, the spokesman said.

Jury Wants To Talk With Leydecker, Behr

Marin County Grand Jury yesterday agreed to invite two county supervisors to attend its Sept. 1 meeting to explain criticism of a report on the public works department.

The interim report by the jury's public works committee had suggested some employees were not earning their pay, and added that "it could be difficult to dispose of these men."

Tuesday, Board Chairman Peter H. Behr termed the report's wording as a "rather brutal way" in which the subject of older employees was handled. Supervisors Byron W. Leydecker, too, termed the report's choice of words as "absolutely fantastic."

Jury forman George R. Scott said Behr and Leydecker will be requested to attend the jury session in an effort to clear possible misunderstandings about the report.

Supervisors have accepted an answer from Public Works Director Donald R. Frost on the report, but no action has been taken pending further study.

One jury committee member, Mrs. Marion C. Kelly, commented the initial report's wording about older personnel "was probably unfortunate."

Marin Grand Jury Backs Board's Tax Reform Idea

Marin County supervisor's action Tuesday in urging the state legislature to enter a special session to bring about immediate tax reforms was joined yesterday by Marin County Grand Jury.

Gorge R. Scott, foreman, said the panel, too, will request Gov. Edmund G. Brown to call the special meeting to "deal with this critical problem and come up with a more equitable program."

The move was sparked by a letter by Supervisor Thomas T. Storer terming the present property tax program as inequitable and intolerable and asking for the special session to work out a tax reform program.

The board of supervisors promptly endorsed Storer's letter and authorized Chairman Peter H. Behr to write a letter accompanying that of Storer's.

The jury also directed Scott to write Governor Brown expressing its opposition to a State Department and Social Welfare Bulletin No. 644 which would permit persons on welfare roles to do farm work at low wages.

Scott said the jury feels such a procedure would in effect be subsidizing the farmer and added that the letter would urge caution by the California legislature if and when the issue comes before it.

Rattler Killed In Mill Valley

A two-and-a-half-foot long rattlesnake was killed on Madrone Avenue, Mill Valley, yesterday afternoon, according to Mrs. Jack C. Holmes, who lives at 124 Madrone.

Mrs. Holmes said the rattler, which had seven buttons, was killed by an unidentified motorist who stopped when he saw several children about to start playing with the snake at the corner of Madrone and Orange avenue. No one was bitten.

Mrs. Holmes said she believed it was the first time in several years that a rattlesnake had been sighted in her neighborhood.

Play With Pistol Kills Little Boy

MUSICAL MARRIAGE PLANNED

Actress-singer Liza Minnelli, Judy Garland's daughter, snuggles with her fiance, Australian composer Peter Allan, after announcing that she would marry him in the next few months. Integration In Sausalito Welcomed

Integration of the Sausalito School District will bring about a better education for all youngsters, Negro or white.

This conclusion drew unanimous agreement today from all four guests on the Radio KTIM "Marin Sounding Board."

Appearing on the program were Kenneth Lowry, the district's acting superintendent, David E. Freedheim, chairman of the school board, Arthur L. Brown, chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality's education committee, and Mrs. Helen Bonapart, mother of two boys who will attend Sausalito schools this fall.

They agreed that the integration plan, agreed upon last week, has aroused the enthusiasm of parents, teachers and the public in Sausalito, Marin City and Mill Valley, from which four classes will be bused.

Mrs. Bonapart said she considered last week's meeting a memorable one, and added, "I now feel renewed hope and encouragement that the district can provide my two alert, curious children with an excellent education."

In response to a listener's question, Brown defended the teachers at Marin City's Manzanita School, sometimes known as "the ghetto school."

"It wasn't the teachers," he said. "They did a good job with what they had."

Asked to predict the biggest hurdle faced by the district, Freedheim predicted it may be parents themselves, unless they are able to avoid planting their own prejudices in the minds of their children.

Lowry and Freedheim said the district probably will not schedule an election to approve a million dollar bond issue for new buildings until next spring or later—after trustees know precisely what type of building philosophy they want to follow.

Tomales Unification Study Voted 5-to-2

The Marin County Committee on School District Organization last night adopted the Tomales Joint Union High School District as the area of study for possible unification.

The vote was 5 to 2. The two dissenters, Mrs. Joseph B. Wallace and Mrs. John W. Binckley, held out for a larger study area.

They argued that the committee can always reduce the area later on when it recommends a unification, but expanding the area would run into legal snags.

Roy Parks, who moved for the smaller study area, said he does not want to involve a broader area that would bring more of Sonoma County into the picture because Sonoma might stall Marin's unification proposal beyond the Nov. 20 deadline.

A unification proposal for the Tomales district must be submitted to the State Board of Education by Nov. 20. After that date, the state can take over jurisdiction.

A previous proposal, rejected by the state, was the unification of the entire Tomales High School District. Parks said that this same proposal may have to be re-submitted to the state. Another possibility is to divide Tomales High School District into three parts and attach them to Analy, Petaluma, and Tamalpais high school districts.

Mrs. Watson M. Conner, chairman of the committee, announced that further discussions on Tomales unification will be continued at the next regular meeting on Sept. 15.

Merchants Warned On Money Orders

Sausalito police today warned merchants that money orders stolen in Los Angeles during the fires and looting there are being circulated in the Bay Area.

Businessmen were warned to double check any money order drawn on a Los Angeles area bank and particularly those drawn on the Pacific State Bank of Hawthorne, which have been passed in the area.

Pilot Tells Of Duty Tour In Viet Nam

American troop reinforcements arriving in Viet Nam recently are getting acclimated very quickly, according to a former Mill Valley soldier who returned from the war there this week.

"They're digging in and doing a very fine job in the situation," said Capt. Paul G. Stringer, 31, in a telephone interview yesterday.

Captain Stringer left Viet Nam on Tuesday after completing a one-year tour of duty as a helicopter pilot there. He was in Mill Valley to visit his mother, Mrs. Donald D. Smith, of 214 Meda Lane.

Captain Stringer had only one day in Marin before being ordered to report to Fort Belvoir in Virginia. He lived in Mill Valley before going to Viet Nam, while stationed at the Presidio.

His yife and five children have been living in Wisconsin, her family's home state.

Finding the Viet Cong enemy and trying to trap him is the biggest strategic problem in the Vietnamese war, said Captain Stringer.

"There's thousands of miles of jungle, and he's been in it and familiar with it for 20 or 30 years."

Sequoia Park Disney Rec Site Is Planned

BURBANK (UPI) —Walt Disney today announced plans for development of a multimillion dollar summer and winter recreation site in a 20-square-mile area in Sequoia National Park.

Disney said his board of directors voted full approval of the plan at its regular quarterly meeting late yesterday. An application will be submitted to the U. S. Forest Service by Aug. 31. The development could be completed in the mid-1970s, he said.

The Forest Service earlier this year invited private investors to submit proposals for development of a year-round recreation site at Mineral King, 55 miles east of Visalia in Tulare County.

Disney said his plans center around development of ski lifts and trails, while summer activities would include fishing, camping, pack trips and wildlife study.

Driver Given Jail

James Arnold Black, 33, of Vallejo, was sentenced to seven days in Marin County jail yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving. He was arrested Sunday by California Highway Patrol on Highway 101.

Conservative Listener Ired By 'Anti-Viet Nam' Record

Every time Frederick L. Ullner of Santa Venetia heard the folk son "Eve of Destruction" on the radio, the lyrics made his conservative blood boil.

After calling the San Francisco station KYA every day for two weeks, demanding equal time for patriotic tunes, Ullner took his case to the Federal Communications Commission yesterday.

In a letter to the San Francisco FCC office, he said the song, which is high on the pop tune charts in the Bay Area, is "simply anti-Viet Nam, anti-administration speech set to music."

The record is popular in several cities. It features singer Barry McGuire. Lyrics tell the listener he is "old enough to kill but not for voting. You don't believe in war, but what's that gun you're toting?"

Ullner said the FCC should require stations to match each playing of the record with one of a patriotic number.

KYA manager Clinton D. Churchill said he had not honored Ullner's demands because "we do not feel the record is objectionable on any count."

Last year, Ullner, who lives at 206 LaBrea Way, Santa Venetia, formed the "26 Million Club" in an effort to rally Americans who voted for Barry Goldwater for president. He followed this by forming the New Conservative Party early this year.

Lack Of Quorum

The Citizens Advisory Committee on Development of Marin canceled its scheduled meeting last night because a quorum was not available.

Tiburon Planning Report Delays Decision On Harbor

By ELLEN BRY

After a series of motions at a joint meeting of the Tiburon planning commission and city council last night, the fate of a proposed 180-berth commercial yacht harbor and possibly city purchase of waterfront land remained in limbo.

In this meeting, lasting more than four hours, the planning commission:

1. Unanimously approved continuation of the use permit request by Tiburon Tidelands Co. for the harbor and a restaurant-shops building to be constructed between Main Street and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad ferry slip on a portion of the only remaining open waterfront in the city.

Commissioners are awaiting a planning consultant study of the entire downtown Tiburon area, including the waterfront.

2. Heard from Tiburon Tidelands representatives that the company is willing to sell the city option on a three-acre parcel of land with 650 waterfront feet between the ferry slip and Caprice Restaurant for $1,000 with the total purchase price set at $250,000.

The company plans to construct a 60-unit "boatel" and 12 two-story town houses on this portion of the land, but a promise to hold off further development plans for six to eight months would go with the option.

City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose said that a "significant part of the waterfront" could be placed in "public domain" without its being purchased, through "dedications" but declined to elaborate.

3. Appropriated $1,500 to add to the $2,000 already being paid to Tiburon planning consultants Callister and Payne in an effort to speed the downtown study and to be used to report on the financial feasibility and funding methods the city might use to purchase all or part of the 18 acres which Tiburon Tidelands has under option to purchase from the railroad.

The city council at its last meeting deadlocked 2-2, with one councilman absent, on appropriating $1,500 for a financial feasibility study of land purchase. The commission vote last night was 4-1 with Joseph Marshal against adding the money to the study.

4. Agreed to ask consultants their opinion on whether a commercial yacht harbor would be appropriate for this area of Tiburon.

Robert Moor, president of Tiburon Tidelands told commissioners and the council that one of the planners working on the study, Philip Buskirk, had said publicly before he was hired that he favored yacht harbor construction on the waterfront.

The sale offer to the city is predicated on the company's receiving the use permit for at least the yacht harbor. This will make it possible to borrow on the property, and close the option Tiburon Tidelands has with the railroad for purchase of the 18 acres. The three acres can be sold to the city, once the company gains control, Moor and his attorney explained.

Moor and his attorney, Fred E. Watson, emphasized that the company has a mid-September deadline to close the option and pleaded for planning commission answer on the yacht harbor before then.

Tiburon Tidelands Co. is "not in an enviable financial position," Watson said.

The yacht harbor would be constructed by Tiburon Yacht Club Inc., and would not be a private club but a commerical operation open to all, having berths for large boats. This firm has an option on the land from Tiburon Tidelands, which has the option from the railroad.

Members of the yacht club corporation are John Biggs, Mountain View, president; Jerry Brandt, Santa Clara, vice president; Barry Bunshoft, San Francisco, secretary.

"I love open waterfront," said planning commissioner Mrs. Helen Newman. "But we must temper some of our desire with reality, the facts of life," she said in favoring yacht harbor construction.

Commissioner Joseph Marshal asked if the city really needed another restaurant, this one to be constructed next to one already being built at 1 Main Street.

The vote of the commission was unanimous for continuing consideration until planning consultants expressed an opinion.

Of the 25 persons who attended the meeting at Del Mar School, some spoke in favor of a commercial yacht harbor, other for city ownership of the land.

"When it's gone, it's gone forever," said Mayor Gordon W. Strawbridge, who had been the first to publicly propose city purchase of a waterfront strip.

561 Yanks Dead In Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department announced today that 561 Americans had died in Viet Nam combat through Aug. 16.

The figure did not include casualties sustained in current heavy fighting which has cost U.S. Marines the heaviest losses of any action of the war.

Today's report said Army fatalities totaled 354, Marines 77, Air Force 91 and Navy 39.

The report also listed 3,024 Americans as wounded and 44 missing in Viet Nam up to midnight last Monday.

The Pentagon said an additional 269 Americans had died in Viet Nam from non-combat causes since Jan. 1, 1961.

Rehearing Asked On Power Lines

SAN FRANCISO (AP) — Attorneys for the Department of Justice have asked the U.S. Court of Appeals here for a speedy rehearing on its order forbidding the Atomic Energy Commission from building overhead power lines through Woodside.

In a petition filed yesterday, attorneys said Congress had directed that the AEC is not bound by local ordinances.

Last spring the court ruled that the AEC was directed to subject itself to local control in the field of electrical transmission under the Atomic Energy Act of 1954.

Quebec is Canada's largest province.

Satisfactory After Crash

RENO (AP)—Reuben Hills IV, 15, son of a prominent San Francisco Bay Area family, was in satisfactory condition today at a Reno hospital, where he was being treated for auto accident injuries.

Hills was to be transferred to Mills Hospital in San Mateo.

He was identified as a great grandson of the founder of the Hills Brothers Coffee Co. and the son of a prominents Hillsborough couple.

He suffered a broken left leg, left arm and right shoulder when the car in which he was riding went off Interstate 80 near Donner Summit and overturned Monday.

The car was driven by Page Roos, 17, Hillsborough, son of Robert Roos Jr., board chairman of Roos-Atkins stores. Young Roos was released from a Truckee hospital Tuesday.

Teens Due Say In Rec Center Fuss

Members of the Terra Linda Recreation and Park District board agreed last night to give teen-agers themselves a voice in trying to deal with problems of unruly behavior at the community center.

At the suggestion of Harvey E. Teague, head of the Marin County Sheriff's Office juvenile division, the board scheduled a meeting Monday with members of the newly formed Teen Council. Time and meeting place were not determined.

LIVELY DISCUSSION

More than 100 area residents attended last night's session, which turned into a lively discussion of recent vandalism at the center—and of teen-age behavior in general.

Teague, however, told board members the teen-agers "are not going to tell you what they want at a meeting like this" Get them together and then ask who they want to lead them.

He also offered several suggestions for more control at teen-dances, ranging from membership cards ("but have a picture on them; otherwise you have cards being passed back and forth through the fence") to a teen-age hearing board which could deal with troublemakers.

VOCAL YOUTH

Most vocal youth present was James Alvarado, 15, a Terra Linda High School sophmore, who contended that the biggest problem was lack of things for teen-agers to do.

Board member Norman Gurin said he hoped the private security guard, hired by the Terra Linda Community Services District to halt vandalism at the center, would be lifted soon.

Community services district chairman Melvin Warenback retorted that "they will stay until you solve the problem of vandalism."

Boat Out Of Water, Headed For Repairs

The 34-foot steel fishing boat Appalassa which sank Tuesday night at its mooring at the San Francisco Yacht Club Belvedere, was out of the water and headed toward a Sausalito shipyard today.

Boat owner Walter C. Chouteau of San Francisco said he planned to refurbish the vessel at Sausalito Marine Corp. He theorized that it sank because of a defective pump in the live bait tank. The boat is six years old.

HOW TO PLAY SAFE

Boating Accident Figures Released

By GEORGE SKELTON

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— Who gets into boating accidents?

They're guys between the ages of 26 and 50 who operate open motorboats in ocean or tidal waters. And because of incompetence or carelessness, they ram their crafts into other vessels. Then somebody either is injured or killed—probably drowned.

That's the "average" picture painted in accident figures just compiled by the California State Divison of Small Craft Harbors for the first half of 1965.

In hard numbers, they show 188 accidents involving 231 boats—one for every 1,300 in the state. Fifty-six persons died —21 more than for the corresponding period last year. The total boat loss was $231,326.

So what's being done about it?

For one thing, there's a new "boating safety information program" just inaugurated by the division. Offhand, that may sound like "dullsville." But if you're an amateur sailor along the North Coast, Tomales Bay in Marin County or the Salton Sea — and other places, too, ultimately — it could be a lifesaver.

The idea is to let the visiting public in on information heretofore realized only by local "old salts."

Like, what to do if caught outside Humboldt Bay when the tide goes out or a good northwesterner starts to blow. The best advice, according to the division, is to throw an anchor overboard and stay put until the water calms. The same also is true for Shelter Cove, Trinidad Bay and Crescent City.

"During storm conditions, the Humboldt Bay bar and passage between the entrance jetties often are impassible," says George Askelund, state boating regulation officer. "There have been several deaths up there."

There's a different problem at Tomales Bay. It's called "sneaker waves." And 13 boaters died because of it in 1962.

The division found these "sneaker waves" actually were breakers that suddenly developed over an underwater bar east of Tomales Point. They occurred when the water level dropped at low tide. This brought the bar nearer to the surface and ordinary swells became breakers.

"We were fishing at the entrance to Tomales Bay. The water was calm," one survivor reports. "Then all of a sudden a high wave appeared out of nowhere, crashing down on us, capsizing our boat and throwing us into the water."

The division says the best way to avoid these "sneaker waves" is to do what the local folks have been doing for years: "Before the tide starts out, be on your way in."

As for the Salton Sea, the division says it "presents conditions of wind and water not likely to be encountered anywhere else."

"If you're out on the water and see a dust storm in the desert," Askelund says, "you can also believe a wind storm is coming. And you'd better set a course for shore."

Shoppers See Man Shoot Self

LOS GATOS (UPI) — Noon shoppers looked on helplessly yesterday when Irving E. Sutherland, 45, killed himself after shooting his estranged wife.

Police said Sutherland walked into a supermarket with his wife and suddenly shot her in the back of the neck and in the leg. Then he turned the pistol on himself.

His wife, Norma, 37, was in serious condition at Los Gatos Community Hospital but doctors said she would recover.

Police said the Sutherlands were scheduled to appear in court tomorrow to resolve a custody question regarding their three children, ages 16, 15 and 13.

Sultan Is Chosen King Of Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI)—Sultan Ismail of Trengganu, a mild-mannered prince who prefers photography to high living, was chosen today to reign as Malaysia's king for the next five years.

The 58-year-old sultan was elected by his fellow state rulers at a closed-door ceremony in the National Palace. He will be sworn in on Sept. 21.

Planners Probe Legal Problems Of West Bid

Sausalito planning commissioners bypassed questions of artistry and got down to legal problems in the request of Barney West, carver of giant tikis, to construct a studio-workshop just off Bridgeway.

Sausalito residents who regard West as "somewhat of an institution" and those who complain about the noise of his power saw were at the commission meeting last night to plead their case, commission chairman Robert L. Nissen reported.

The commission continued to Sept. 15 consideration of whether West may construct the building just off Bridgeway near Napa Street on Northwestern Pacific Railroad Property.

Commissioners asked City Atty. Leland H. Jordan for an opinion on whether West's carving operation was a conforming or non-conforming use of the land, zone "P" for public use covering government, utility and schools use, at the time the new zoning ordinance went into effect in January, 1964.

Jordan's opinion will determine how the commission will consider West's plans under the zoning ordinance, Nissen explained.

The request for an ordinance change by United Sand and Gravel Division of A. G. Schoonmaker Co. so that the firm may continue its sand-gravel storage and sale operation in Marinship was continued to Sept. 1 when more commissioners may be present.

Ronald W. Thurber's request for relief from off street parking requirements so he can construct a home at 547 Sausalito Boulevard also was continued to Sept. 1.

Commissioners Norman Murdoch, John A. Sweeny, and Mrs. Richard Philips were absent, leaving only five commissioners present. Newly appointed commissioner Hendrick J. Keizer has not yet been sworn in.

Dunes move, often creeping inland at a rate of five to 14 feet a year. They are the result of an eroding coastline and they are pushed inland by strong winds.

Pickets Return To Commuters' Bus Stations

Pickets appeared at several Greyhound bus depots again today, but service was not interrupted.

A Greyhound spokesman said the company provided street loading facilities at picketed depots in Richmond and Concord, and is prepared to do the same in San Rafael and in Marysville and Chico, where the Amalgamated Transit Union said it planned to picket also.

The union is trying to organize ticket clerks employed by independent agencies at the depots. Union business agent A. A. Baker today suggested that commuters who do not wish to cross the picket lines buy their tickets at other depots.

Greyhound has filed a $1 million law suit against the union as a result of service being disrupted in Richmond, where the picketing began a week ago. Sporadic picketing has continued at several Bay Area centers since.

Dania, Fla., was settled by Danes.

60 San Rafael Guardsmen Due Back From Riot Duty

San Rafael National Guardsmen were to arrive home today from riot duty in Los Angeles.

The 60 men, part of a 400-man contingent from the Redwood Empire area, had earlier expected to remain in Los Angeles until after this weekend.

But Sgt. Theodore E. Green, administrative and supply technician at the National Guard Armory in Santa Venetia, said their orders were changed yesterday afternoon.

The local guardsmen were returning by truck convoy.

Only about half the 8,000-man 49th Infantry Division from Northern California remained in Los Angeles last night, and most of the 10,000-man 40th Armored Division from Southern California had left for their annual summer encampment at Camp Roberts.

But Gov. Edmund G. Brown said in Los Angeles that the guard could return promptly if situation again becomes critical.

Two Sit-Ins Elect To Go To Jail

BERKELEY (UPI) — Two more University of California sit-ins elected yesterday to serve 25-day jail terms rather than post $350 bail to appeal their convictions.

Twenty other demonstrators decided to post bail.

The two who chose jail terms were David James, 32, and David Melnick, 27. Eleven of the sit-ins have chosen to go to jail.

Judge Floyd Talbott continued further sentencing until Sept. 14 when they will go before Municipal Judge Rupert Crittenden, now on vacation.

Today is Thursday, Aug. 19, the 231st day of 1965 with 134 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

Orville Wright, American inventor and aviator, was born on this day in 1821.

On this day in history:

In 1915, two Americans were killed when a German U-boat torpedoed the British liner Arabic in the Atlantic.

In 1934, Hitler would be official successor to President Von Hindenburg.

In 1955, the worst flood in northeastern U. S. history killed 200 people and destroyed or damaged 20,000 homes.

In 1960, U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers was convicted of espionage by the Soviet Union.

A thought for the day—French philosopher Voltaire wrote: "Let us work without disputing; it is the only way to render life tolerable."

South's easiest play for four hearts is to discard a club from dummy at the first trick. East gets the ace of spades, but South's king is set up.

TOP CARDS

Declarer plans to cash all of his top cards in the side suits and then cross-ruff.

South needs only five trump tricks for his contract, and the defenders cannot prevent him from getting those tricks.

Declarer actually ruffed the first spade in dummy and led a club to the ace to try the heart finesse. East took the king of hearts and returned a trump.

TOO LATE

Now South started the diamonds, too late. One ruff was not enough to set up the suit.

South needed two club entries to dummy: the first to ruff another diamond, and the second to draw the last trump and run the diamonds.

South tried a finesse with the jack of clubs, losing to the queen. East returned a trump, clearing all trumps out of the hand. Declarer gave up a diamond to the queen, and West led a spade to the ace, defeating the contract.

FIRST MISTAKE

South's first play was a mistake, but he could still make the contract by starting the diamonds at once. He takes the top diamonds, ruffs a diamond, and then tries the heart finesse.

East can take the king of hearts and return a heart, but South ruffs another diamond and gets to dummy with the king of clubs to draw the last trump.

The rest of the diamonds are good, and South makes his contract.

Marin's Teen-Age Warrior Returns

Viet Veteran Describes War In The Jungle

By STEPHEN COOK

While most boys his age did their worrying this year about graduating from high school, college entrance examinations or who next Friday night's date would be, Gary F. Cooper, 17, of Fairfax worried about which jungle tree might hide a Viet Cong sniper.

The closest most youngsters his age come to violence is an old war movie shown on television or an after school fight. Private first class Cooper has seen his Army buddies slain and killed two men himself.

Only son of Mrs. Lena Cooper of 85 Taylor Drive, Fairfax, Gary dropped out during his senior year at Sir Francis Drake High School and enlisted in the Army. In May, the Army sent him to Viet Nam.

Gary is home on emergency leave now to visit his critically ailing father, Ben Cooper of San Rafael, in San Francisco's Presbyterian Hospital.

Young Cooper has the tall, muscular physique of a man who can take care of himself and the teen-ager's self conscious habit of lowering his eyes and voice when talking with a stranger.

WAR ZONE SOUVENIRS—Pfc. Gary F. Cooper, 17, of 85 Taylor Drive, Fairfax, has returned home on emergency leave after four months of combat duty in Viet Nam. Like most returning soldiers, Gary brought souvenirs. They range from the fine silk costumes worn by Saigon bar girls to pictures of the men in his outfit and burned out Viet Cong villages. Gary was granted emergency leave last week to visit his critically ill father, Ben Cooper of San Rafael.
(Independent-Journal photo)

Trapped somewhere between two worlds, Gary brings out souvenirs from Viet Nam to have his picture taken with and makes sure the Beatle albums he has been playing will not appear in the same photograph.

Like most soldiers, Gary prefers not to talk of the men he has killed in war. His reasons, though, are different: "I don't think it looks good for someone my age to have done that."

He says he has only been in one real battle. Most times he went out on a mission "there were only snipers."

Once, though, his company was landed by helicopters in an area called "D Zone" and found a Viet Cong village. Gary led a patrol into that village and in the process killed two of the Viet Cong with a hand grenade.

"I never wanted to kill," he says. "It's just something you have to do if you want to stay alive."

Gary considers the Viet Cong "a hard core soldier. They train hard and know the jungles so well they can live off them. They hide there in the jungle, snipe at you from trees, then leave for some other place.

"It's hard to fight them. You can't find them to fight them. All they ever do is hide."

Gary, though, never goes out on a patrol hoping to find the Viet Cong. "When I don't find them I'm glad and thank God I got back safely," he says.

He says the things he and his buddies in the 173rd Airborne Brigade "gripe" about most are "leeches, red ants, the heat, sleeping in mud, walking from sunrise to sunset and drawing camp duty when we return from a mission."

The typical mission, according to Gary, sends them into the jungle with orders to "search and destroy." The company sweeps its assigned area, burning villages and killing all men they find. Gary says these are areas assumed to be inhabited only by Viet Cong.

Asked about demonstrations against the war at home, Gary angrily replies:

"They're ridiculous. The wear has to continue until communism there is stopped. If we don't stop it there, it will take over all of Asia."

Gary has a little over two more years to serve with the Army. When he gets out he wants to finish high school, then go on to college for a degree in chemical engineering.

Right now, he does not know if he will be sent back to Viet Nam but he will not object if he is. "There is a job to be done there," he says.

Found Innocent In Dope Case

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday found Johnny Frank Johnson, 25, innocent of possession of marijuana last May 16.

They deliberated two hours. Johnson, of 730 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was arrested by sheriff's officers after being halted on Drake Avenue in his automobile.

Officers said they found marijuana leaves. He was defended by A. Leonard Bjorklund Jr., Sausalito attorney. Gary Thomas, deputy district attorney prosecuted before Judge Samuel W. Gardiner. Trial started Tuesday.

Railroad hospital cars used during World War II to transport wounded men are still in use. Twenty-five of them were converted to circus cars by Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey.

Sausalito Library Report Is Heard

The Sausalito Library board heard a preliminary report on the community and its library under a study being made by consultant Helen Ridgway at its meeting last night.

The report will be refined and made public in about two weeks, Mrs. James J. Carroll, library board president, explained.

Key Stocks Pare Prices, Early Gains Are Erased

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market erased early gains and closed with key stocks paring their prices. Gold mining issues were in a rally of their own.

Volume for the day was estimated at 5.1 million shares compared with 5.85 million yesterday.

Gains of fractions to a point or so outnumbered losses among key stocks.

The gold mining issues went into another of their periodic flurries, possibly inspired by a gloomy prediction about Britain's economic future and renewed expectations of a devaluation of the British pound.

American South African Investment jumped more than 5 points, Dome Mines and Homestake (ex dividend) nearly 2 each and Campbell Red Lake about a point and a half.

Profit taking hit some of the merger-minded rails. Losses of about a point were taken by the common and preferred of Chicago & North Western and by Chicago Great Western. New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad pared early gains.

Sunshine Mining, down about a point, looked like the most active stock as it underwent profit taking. Close behind in trading activity was Fairchild Camera, up more than a point.

Xerox was down 4 at 164 on 19,100 shares.

KLM Airlines spurted more than 3 and Eastern Air Lines gained a point.

U.S. Steel common was about a point higher and the preferred was steady.

Prices were mostly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged. U.S. Treasury bonds were slightly stronger.

Net Sales Up For Company

RACINE, Wis.—Net sales of J. J. Case Co. for the third quarter ended July 31, were 30 per cent over the same period last year. Sales this year were $78,468,000 compared with $60,442,000 in 1964.

Earnings for the quarter increased to $4,722,000 from the 1964 net income of $4,057,000 for the same period.

With the announcement of third quarter results Case net sales for the nine months total $203,274,000 a substantial increase over the 1964 figure of $160,665,000.

Nine month earnings for 1965 reached $7,937,000 compared with $10,558,000 last year. In both early quarters this year Case income was down due to production problems at the tractor plant in Racine.

Highway Safety Battle Laid To American People

BOSTON — The battle for highway safety will be won only when the American people themselves are mobilized, a Chrysler Corp. executive told the annual highway safety luncheon of the Amvets.

"Improved highway safety demands a balanced approach, with attention to the driver, the highway and the car—and most improvements must come from state and local programs," according to Byron J. Nichols, Chrysler vice president and general of Dodge division.

The automobile industry accepts its responsibility to build safe cars and intends to fulfill it, Nichols said.

Chrysler alone spent $76 million in the past year on design, engineering, testing and other activities related to safety, he said.

Third Quarter Sales Increase

OAKLAND — Third quarter sales of International Harvester Co. reached a new high and net income showed improvement over the second quarter, Harry O. Bercher, president, announced today.

Consolidated world sales for the third quarter, May 1 to July 31, totaled $592,197,000, compared with $584,235,000 in the same quarter of the previous year, a record for the period.

Third quarter net income was $26,956,000 compared with $29,687,000 in that quarter of 1964. Net income per share of common stock in the third quarter, after provision for preferred dividends, was 94 cents, compared with $1.03 the year before.

IT'S THE PACKAGE

Gourmet Food Sales At A Fancy Peak

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A spokesman for the fancy food business says people who buy caviar, kangaroo tail soup and artichoke bottoms may be fascinated more by how they look than how they taste.

Julian Cowan, president of the National Association for the Specialty Food Trade, said in an interview at the association's annual show that it's probably the package more than the exotic food inside that sparks people to buy.

"It's impossible to sell this without a fancy package," said Cowan, looking at shelves loaded with ginger-butter clam soup, sour lemon balls, orange-flavored watermelon rind and dried Mexican bananas.

Cowan and some 125 other importers, distributors and makers of fancy foods and confections are showing their wares at the association's 11th annual exhibit at New York's Coliseum. Most sellers of gourmet foods say national prosperity and the race for status has boomed their business to an all-time peak.

Many agreed that in selling Americans fancy foods, their eyes are as important as their stomachs.

Importer Alfred Schratter watched as a visitor tasted a slice of camembert.

"Camembert is an example," said Shratter. "Americans want cheese to look new, presentable. Our imported camembert has to be snow-white. In Paris, where people's eyes are more in their stomach, they don't mind if it's brownish."

The four-day show, which ends Wednesday, is staged for about 10,000 buyers representing stores ranging from leading gourmet shops to supermarkets. Even in supermarkets, fancy food isn't cheap.

Top-grade caviar, said one dealer, sells for about $3 an ounce. Pate de foie gras, goose liver, costs $17.50 for about 11 ounces.

Bank Group Buys Bonds

SAN FRANCISCO—A Bank of America underwriting group has purchased $2,010,000 of new housing authority bonds in New Mexico and Montana.

The Bank of America syndicate bought the $1,225,000 town of Las Vegas, New Mexico, bonds for a premium of $9,829 of the straight 3-3/8 per cent bonds. The dollar bid was 100.-802.

The bank group also purchased the $785,000 Blackfeet Indian Housing authority bonds, Montana, for a premium of $4,029 on straight 3-3/8 per cent bonds. The dollar bid was 100.513.

Both issues were reoffered to yield from 2.35 per cent to a dollar price of par, according to maturity April 1, 1966-2005 on the Las Vegas, New Mexico, bonds and May 1, 1966-2005 on the Blackfeet Indian bonds.

TWA Has Record

SAN FRANCISCO — Trans World Airlines, reporting record monthly net earnings of $8.3 million for July. Earnings through July of $23.8 million equaled $2.74 per share and was 37 per cent higher than 1964's comparable return of $17.3 million or $2.07 per share.

Living Cost Rises Seem To Be Slowing

By PETER S. NAGAN
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — The big jumps in the cost of living seem to be behind us. That's the reassuring forecast government specialists are making these days.

These experts aren't saying that the consumer price index will now turn down. But in months ahead, they look for only the modest gains that were characteristic of the past few years rather than the sharp bounce of recent months.

BIG INCREASES

The price analysts blame the bulk of the big increases in April, May and June—1.1 per cent altogether—on special factors not likely to recur. Indeed, some of the specific jumps that contributed to the big increases have already begun to reverse themselves.

Mostly responsible for the springtime surge was the increase in meat prices. Beef rose 5.5 per cent in June alone and was 11 per cent above June, 1964. Pork was up 10.5 per cent in June and 16 per cent higher than a year ago. Supplies were scarce because growers cut back on cattle and hogs in the wake of last year's oversupply and low prices. The story is much the same for poultry.

STEADY CLIMB

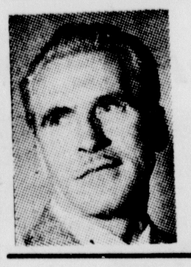
Scarcities of fruits and vegetables also boosted the government's consumer price index. In this case, weather was largely responsible. Retail prices of potatoes rose 10 per cent in June alone, climaxing a steady climb because of shortages caused by last year's drought. But lettuce, strawberries, and many other items shot up, too.

The cumulative effect of these price increases was to lift the consumer price index in June to 110.1 of the 1957-59 average. It cost $11.01 to buy what $10 would purchase in 1957-59.

But, lately, the price surge has begun to lose some of its steam. The agriculture department predicts food prices will reach a peak this month or next and then ease a bit.

Dividend Declared

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Pacific Cement and Aggregates Co. has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share, plus an extra of 10 cents.



OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

New Photographic Store To Open; Edy's Candies Comes To Marin

A new photographic store will open in Mill Valley about the middle of next month at 15 East Blithedale Avenue—Gilmore Photo Shop.

It will be operated by Mrs. Elizabeth D. Gilmore, hobbywise in things photographic for a number of years—but the shop is likely to attract at least the part time interest of her husband Charles, manager of the Sequoia Theater just around the corner, who has a firm photographic background of his own. He'll probably act as advisor.

The store will carry popular lines of cameras and equipment, films and a general stock of photo and darkroom supplies.

NOW OPEN in Strawberry Town and Country Village (next to the Hickory Pit) is Edy's of Marin. Leaman C. Harvey is the franchise holder here for Edy's confections. He is a former major in the U.S. Army who recently has been in hospital administration work, commuting to Oakland from Mill Valley.

The store is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

JUST TWO DOORS AWAY, Carlton's Village Sportswear has also gotten under way. This is a business of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rosenberg, formerly in the clothing business in San Mateo County.

Both men's and women's sportswear is handled, with styles and sizes suitable also for high school and college age. Featured are domestic and imported sweaters and cashmeres, jackets and other casual garments, with such trade names as Pendleton, Hadley, Hathaway and Martin on the labels.

Hourly schedule is yet to be firmly established. The store may remain open on Friday nights and possibly part time on Sundays.

Barossi

BANKER Victor A. Barossi of San Anselmo, was transferred from Bank of America's Hamilton Air Force Base branch to the West Geary office in San Francisco, takes on the post of manager here. He had managed the Hamilton Field branch since 1955 and had served in other Marin offices since 1934. He will soon celebrate his 37th anniversary with the bank.

GORDON (BUD) ISEMAN of Budds Travel and Tours, San Rafael, was a guest last week of the Italian Steamship Line in New York to inspect the company's latest and most modern vessel in its fleet, the Raffello.

ONE LOCAL FIRM that has been tapping the manpower pool of college and high school undergraduates for summer employment over the past six years is Harding Associates, San Rafael soil engineers. Each year this company hires from one to four students. This year there were four.

Preference, says secretary-treasurer Robert T. Lawson, goes to college students in civil engineering—"exposing them to private practice in our field and occasionally capturing someone who is interested in eventually becoming a permanent employee."

One summer student of a few summers ago who did return and is now on the permanent staff is Lyle E. Lewis of Novato. Another became so interested he went on to secure his master's degree in soil engineering—but there has been a slight delay in acquiring his further services. The U.S. Navy has picked up a prior option.

STEVEN R. SCHUSTER of Los Ranchitos is scheduled to be in charge of the Northgate office of Redwood Travel Advisors when it opens. He has been at the downtown San Rafael office about six years.

But just when the Northgate opening will be is still undetermined. Also waiting for completion of work (which has been delayed in Unit One) so they can move in are the Morris Plan of California and William Timmer, Realtor, who plans a branch office here.

PENINSULA AREA ARSONISTS BUSY

Watts-type Vandals Hurl Fire Bombs Into Supermarkets, Cars In Two Cities

EAST PALO ALTO (AP) — Vandals hurling "Molotov cocktails" from moving cars, set a series of fires in East Palo Alto and nearby Menlo Park last night and today, damaging two supermarkets and burning three cars.

The San Mateo County sheriff's office said eight fires were reported last night and today, all involving arson.

It was the second night that youths set fires in a one-mile radius in the predominantly Negro residential areas of the two towns, deputies said.

Firemen were kept busy last night going from one fire scene to another.

On Tuesday night there were six fires in the same areas, and some were believed to have been started by bottles of gasoline tossed from speeding autos.

The vandals hurled a "Molotov cocktail" on the roof of a third supermarkete, but the bottle smashed harmlessly to the ground, deputies said.

George's Speede Mart in East Palo Alto suffered the worst damages. A fire bomb was thrown through a plate glass window and caused damages estimated at $12,000.

Early today, an identical fire caused $2,200 damages to the Garden Food Market in East Palo Alto.

Sheriff's Sgt. Gerald Fitting said five youths, aged 21 to 17 years, were arrested early yesterday as suspects in Tuesday evening's fires.

In lastnight's fires, two parked autos were burned and a third car—in a wrecking yard—was damaged.

A grass fire was started behind the Hiller Aircraft plant in Menlo Park but firemen stopped the blaze before it reached the buildings.

Legislator Demands Gas Use For Rioters' Control

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Assemblyman Charles J. Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, the legislature's formost authority on chemical warfare, has renewed his demand that chemicals be used to control lawless mobs.

Conrad said a new chemical, known as C.S., has been developed as an effective and humane way of ending violence without bloodshed or destruction of property.

"Why isn't the public told that the U. S. army has adopted a riot control chemical known as C.S. to replace tear gas?" Conrad asked. "Why isn't the public told that the Maryland national guard, on May 18, 1964, put down the riot in Cambridge by using converted flame throwers filled with C.S.?

"Persons now dead might be alive today if, when the mobs first started forming in Los Angeles, they had been given a quick dose of C.S." he said.

Conrad said the army had reported that C.S. had proven the least harmful of the riot control agents and they had had no casualties with it.

"C.S. is indeed extremely painful and irritating," Conrad said, "a fact I can attest to because I myself, have been hit with it. I can also state that I was completely recovered in a matter of minutes. However, it would have taken force to make me go back into it, which is why it is so effective in riot control."

Conrad admitted the use of C.S. would not be a cure-all for riot control and the public should not expect miracles from its use.

"But the quicker we begin using such chemicals the quicker we will develop safe and humane ways of controlling mob violence, not only in our city streets, but in places like viet Nam," Conrad said.

Presidential Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Publication of the 1950 volume of the "Public Papers of the Presidents of the United States" has been announced. The 866-page volume covers the sixth year of the administration of President Harry S. Truman.

Ships Strike Negotiations Dragging Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations between shippers and two striking unions are continuing after Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz told President Johnson that an end to the 65-day shipping strike is still not in sight.

Money matters were reported to be the principal snag as talks dragged on between the American Merchant Marine Institute, representing eight shipping lines, and the two AFL-CIO union — the International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots and the American Radio Association.

A third AFL-CIO union, the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Assn. reached an agreement with the shippers Tuesday in what was considered a major break in the dispute which has tied up some 100 ships on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Under the agreement, based on a formula suggested by the President, the engineers agreed to go back to work while a special panel headed by Wirtz and AFL-CIO President George Meany sought to work out a solution of the key automation issue.

The new Lake Powell National Recreation Area, an easy drive north of the all-year vacation capital of Phoenix, Ariz., already is providing record trout catches and off-beat boat trips for vacationists.

Novato Little Leaguers Begin Regional Action

By JIM GILMARTIN
I-J Sports Editor

PORTLAND — With pressure riding every step of the way, the Novato All-Stars battle an imposing team from South Mountain (Phoenix) Ariz. at 6:30 tonight in the semi-finals of the Western Regional Little League Tournament at Alpenrose Dairy Park.

Each team has won eight games in winning its area, district, sectional and divisional championships so the competition from here on in is strictly the cream of the crop. The other teams here are Klamath Falls, Ore. and Covina, Calif. They clash tomorrow night at 6:30.

Novato manager Sheridan Moats was still undecided this morning on his starting pitcher tonight, but indicated he would give the nod to Steve Tieche over Randy Foster. "I'll just wait until they both warm up to see which one looks the best," said Moats. Both are right-handed curveball artists.

Novato won a flip of the coin and will be the home team tonight.

Stan Ericksen, the 5-11, 160-pound fireballing ace of the staff, is not eligible to pitch tonight because he hurled in Novato's last game and Little League rules prohibit a boy from pitching two successive games.

South Mountain manager Ernie Angulo will start righthander Paul Gonzalez against Novato. Gonzalez is rated best of the Arizona team's two star pitchers, although their other boy, Ray Rodriguez, has two no-hitters to his credit in tourney competition, including a 17-strikeout perfect game.

Tonight's semi-finalists have remarkably similar records, Arizona having outscored the eight opponents 50-11 and Novato winning its eight games with a 56-11 margin.

Arizona has compiled a .265 team batting average, led by southpaw swinging first sacker Gene Clarke with a .428 average, center fielder Gary Thude (.315) and right fielder Gordon Gartner (.307).

The Phoenix team has crashed 12 home runs with every starting player accounting for at least one. Third baseman Larry Sordia has hit three for the distance, including a sixth-inning smash that gave South Mountain a 3-2 victory for the Arizona State Championship. They went on to scash Hawthorn, Nev. 12-3 last weekend to gain the berth in this tourney.

Moats said that if Tieche, who pitched a two-hit, 1-0 victory in the divisional semi-finals at Oroville last Friday, starts tonight, Foster will play centerfield and lead off in the batting order. He'll be followed by John Kidder, 2b; Ericksen, 1b; Clint Hubbard, rf; Jack Burnam, c; Phil Adams, ss; Tom Nelson, lf; Tieche, p; and Mark Greving, 3b. Reserves are Mark Swartz, Jeff de Recat, Dan Buckley, Dave Judnick and Rick Nelson.

Ericksen is Novato's chief offensive weapon, too, with 16 hits in 28 tourney at-bats, including a pair of home runs, Adams, Kidder, Foster, Nelson and Burnam also have hit home runs in Novato's tournament streak that has mowed down San Rafael American League 9-2, Gallinas Valley 11-1, Hamilton-Loma Verde 3-0 and Twin Cities 6-1 in Marin District play; South Ukiah 13-4 and Grant (Sacramento and Rancho Cordova 1-0 and Hayward 3-0 in the divisionals.

Ericksen won four of those games with a three-hitter and three two-hitters, allowing only two earned runs in 24 innings. Foster and Tieche each won a pair, one of Tieche's coming in relief of starter Foster against South Ukiah.

The winner of tonight's game will play for the regional championship Saturday at 3:30 p.m. against winner of tomorrow night's Covina-Klamath Falls, Ore. game. The losers of the semis play at 1 Saturday for consolation. The big prize, of course, is one of eight berths in the L. L. World Series at Williamsport, Pa. next week.

Novato was the last of the four semi-finalists to arrive here. Moats and coach Gene Ferretti immediately took the team to a practice field for a two-hour workout described by Moats as "pretty bad. The boys were tired and excited from their flight."

The Novato team was scheduled for another two-hour practice this morning. The boys were to rest all afternoon for tonight's big game.

ALONG MARIN'S SPORTS TRAIL

PORTLAND—"When you get this far," said the tall, distinguished looking gentleman, "you're really a champion."

"Look at it this way: there are 6,100 Little Leagues throughout the world with about 1,500,000 boys. Two weeks ago 5,000 teams started in this all-star tournament. Today, entering this regional level, there are 32 teams remaining. Each of the 32 is a true champion. They have won their area, district, section and division, and look at the competition they've had to meet. Yes, at this level the cream comes to the top. There's not much difference between the 32 regional teams."

Thus did Al Wilgus, director of the Western Regional Little League Tournament, sum up the importance of the regionals starting tonight when Novato goes against South Mountain (Phoenix), Ariz., in the first semi-final game.

WILGUS, A salesman for a ship repair company here, is a walking encyclopedia on Little League, having been connected with the program for several years. He'll tell you the program for 11-12 year-old boys started in 1939 in Williamsport, Pa., but didn't begin to mushroom into its international scope until 1945. He's proud to add that today there are 229 Little League alumni in Organized ball, 45 of whom are in the majors, most notably Joey Jay of Cincy and Ron Perronoski of the Dodgers.

Wilgus is both a strong advocate and critic of L.L. One sentence sums up his feelings, to wit: "If they would keep parents out of Little League it would be the best program on God's good earth."

"IN FACT," he continued, "I wish I could have written letters to all the division champions coming here to each bring one coach, one manager and 14 players and leave everyone else home. Just general parental interference breeds discontent. After several years of it I'm fed up to here and I'm getting out of the program after this year."

Wilgus also serves as District administrator in Portland's Little League.

About the Novato team's leaders: Manager Sheridan Moats of 22 Boulevard Terrace is 41 years old, a native of West Virginia, resident of Marin for 20 years, married and the father of three boys. A clerk-estimator for North Bay Lumber in Larkspur, he managed the Pirates in the Novato League this year and had a poor 2-19 won-lost record; yet was honored by the other managers in the league to pilot this sparkling All-Star aggregation.

COACH GENE FERRETTI, 39, lives at 567 Midway Boulevard in Novato and is an examiner for the department of Motor Vehicles in Petaluma. A graduate of San Rafael High and former correctional officer at San Quentin, Ferretti has coached and managed L.L. in Novato for six years. He is the father of two boys, both Little League graduates. Ferretti has lived in Marin for 32 years.

Managers of each team here are given use of a car with only one warning: beware of pedestrians; they have the right of way up here and will walk right in front of you.

"Shucks," drawled Moats. "back home we just run right over them."

The Novato team's flight here in a United B720 jet mainliner required only 1 hour, 8 minutes, cruising 610 mph at 35,000 feet. A committee met the boys and delivered them to their foster parents.

MANAGERS AND coaches of all four teams are staying at the Sixth Avenue Motel, tourney headquarters.

Winners here awill leave at 1 a.m. Sunday for the World Series at Williamsport.

The local tourney committee numbers 23 persons, not to mention the foster parents.

The Klamath Falls, Ore. team represents the largest geographical division, its area covering Alaska, Hawaii, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

HOWEVER, the Oregon team has played only six games as compared to eight each for Novato and Phoenix and nine for Covina.

To give you an idea of the size of the players, the Novato team's average height is 5-2½ and weight is 108. Stan Ericksen is the biggest at a whopping 5-11, 160; shortest at 4-10 is Randy Foster; lightest at 98 pounds (soaking wet) is Dan Buckley.

I haven't seen all the players yet, but I believe Ericksen is the physical champ.

THERE ARE seven other regionals being played around the world this weekend: the south, north and eastern continental U.S.; Latin-America; Europe, including teams from Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Saudi Arabia; Canada; and the Pacific, which includes Guam, Okinawa and Japan.

Monterrey, Mexico popularized the L.L. program south of the border by winning the Little League World Series in 1957 and again in 1958. However, the Monterrey team was disqualified in 1959 play for illegal recruiting.

Teams in Europe, Guam and Okinawa are composed primarily of dependents of U.S. military personnel.

BIG AND LITTLE — Opponents of the Novato Little League team, which will open Western Regional action tonight in Portland, may think they're on an elevator if they bat against these two members of the Novato pitching staff. Big Stan Erickson is 5-11 and weighs 160 pounds, while Randy Foster reaches 4-10½ and balances 98 pounds.

Another Yank Falls In Davis Cup Match

Spaniards Now Have 4-0 Mark

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Manuel Santana, Spain's No. 1 player who led the Spanish team to victory over the United States in the Davis Cup interzone round, pulled out of his final match against Dennis Ralston today after Juan Gisbert had given Spain a 4-0 lead in the series.

Gisbert defeated Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, in today's opening match.

Santana had been scheduled to play Ralston, the U.S. No. 1 player from Bakersfield, Calif., in the final match. He claimed an injury to his hand and after a long, bitter hassle George MacCall, the non-playing captain of the U.S. team, agreed to let Ralston play Juan Manuel Couder, reserve member of the Spanish team.

At one time MacCall had threatened to forfeit both the final day's matches if Santana did not play. But he finally consented to the first match and word went around that Santana would play.

However, a half hour after the first match, Santana's name was taken from the scoreboard. Three doctors — one American, one Spanish and one Venezuelan — examined Santana's hand and found he had a bruised bone on his racquet hand, an old injury.

MacCall continued the argument a while, then asked to see the Spanish star. A moment later he came back and told Ralston: "You are playing Couder. I looked at Santana's hand. It is bad."

Gisbert, who replaced Couder as the No. 2 Spanish player this year, showed great court-covering ability and a wide variety of shots as he won his second match of the series.

The 6-foot-4 Froehling raked the sidelines with his wide-swinging forehands and looked as if he might pull out the match when Gisbert appeared to tire toward the end of the fourth set.

But Gisbert, after dropping the last two games of the fourth, rallied and won three games at the start of the fifth set. Froehling managed to tie it at 3-3 but the young Spaniard ran out the match by winning the next three games.

Press To Talk In AAU-NCAA Feud

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigating senators called on the press today for perspective on a feud they have been told menaces the careers of brilliant young athletes and threatens U.S. stature as a track and field power.

With no sign appearing of a lasting peace plan between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the Senate Commerce Committee called four sports writers to testify.

It listed them as Paul Zimmerman, the Los Angeles Times; Harry Missildine, the Spokane, Wash., Spokesman-Review; Fred Russell, the Nashville, Tenn., Banner, and Morris McLemore, the Miami News.

Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said he wants newsmen's perspective.

On the one hand, the AAU claims the right to sanction so-called open competition in which collegiate and other talent competes for national honors and berths on track and field teams representing the United States in international competition up to and including the Olympic Games.

The AAU contends the NCAA should have the right to sanction only those meets in which none but collegians from NCAA schools compete.

The NCAA, however, claims a right to grant or withhold its sanction for collegians to compete in AAU or any other meets. It says this is necessary to protect students' welfare and make sure that too many meets don't hurt their studies.

Magnuson and his colleagues express amazement that the dispute has developed to a point where each side threatened its athletes with loss of eligibility to compete if they entered any open meets sanctioned only by the other.

The committee maneuvered both organizations into a truce Monday, but this will expire when the committee reports its findings to the Senate, probably sometime late in the fall. Then, unless some settlement is negotiated or forced, the row will be on again.

Bright young U.S. Olympic hopes, the 880-yard speedster Tom Farrell of St. John's University, Jamaica, N.Y., and Gerry Lindgren, fleet distance runner from Washington State University, have testified they may be barred from further college competition by NCAA for defying its boycott against the San Diego AAU meet in which they won places on the U.S. team that lost to Russia recently.

Jesse T. Hill, a member of the NCAA policy making executive committee, testified yesterday "there is no assurance the NCAA infractions committee is going to inflict any such penalties" on athletes or their schools.

No one asked and he did not say whether there was any assurance there would be no penalties.

Hill stressed that he spoke as athletic director at the University of Southern California, not for NCAA. This group and the AAU will get their official innings on the witness stand next week.

8-Year-Old Catches A Whopper

An old boxing bromide says that a good big man will always beat a good little man. There was a 48-pound salmon in the ocean off Duxbury Point Saturday that discovered that it applies to the fishing game, also.

When the 49-inch fish got itself hooked by eight-year-old Clint T. Landrum III of 108 Buckley Street, Sausalito, it didn't really have a chance. After all, Clint is a good six inches taller (longer?) and weighs a hefty 67 pounds; it was hardly a fair match.

Clint was fishing from a party boat, the "M.A." When he hooked the salmon, Captain Fred "Tex" McGee had all the other fishermen clear their lines from around his. The boy played with the fish for about half and hour; when it went under the boat the captain helped him boat it.

Clint, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton T. Landrum II, received a new tackle box for his big catch from the Schenley Sportmen's Club. The club is conducted by a firm which makes a spiritual product won't be able to use for many years.

One other Marin resident landed a salmon big enough to gain notice from the club. O. E. Boyer of 440 Strawberry Drive, Mill Valley, took a 38-pounder Saturday off Duxbury from the boat "Zatta."

CRUCIAL CANDLESTICK SERIES

Giants, Dodgers Go At It

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Script writers would be hard pressed to concoct a better scenario for an August baseball meeting between the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers.

They started this afternoon on a four-day run at Candlestick Park with a bulging audience as the surprising Giants sought to overhaul the equally surprising Dodgers who had led the National League chase most of this season until their 12th inning loss to Philadelphia last night.

Veteran pitcher Warren Spahn, a 44-year-old castoff from the last place New York Mets picked up by the Giants, was named to pitch against Dodger ace right-hander Don Drysdale in the opener.

Also in the suspense department—would Orlando Cepeda's wounded knee hold up? Will the rival managers find a fourth pitcher for their rotation? And will the series paying audience reach 150,000?

Previews indicated the answers to all would be favorable.

Cepeda, newly activated, worked three innings against the New York Mets yesterday and collected a hit as Juan Marichal blanked the Gotham cast 5-0, the fourth time he has applied the whitewash to them this season.

Trainer Leo Hughes said Orlando suffered a cramp in the leg calf but the knee held up beautifully.

The series opens with the Dodgers a half game behind the new league-leaders, Milwaukee, and the Giants a half game in back of Los Angeles. That came about yesterday as Milwaukee crept into first with a 5-3 victory over St. Louis and Philadelphia downed Los Angeles 6-3.

Herman Franks has named Bob Shaw to pitch tomorrow and Marichal on Sunday. He'll do a little more reviewing before deciding on Saturday's throwing. Walt Alston of the Dodgers had Claude Osteen in line to pitch for Saturday and Sandy Koufax for Sunday. He doesn't yet say who'll take the Friday night role.

Reading the reviews most carefully will be the Atlanta-bound Braves of Milwaukee. The intrastate jousting in California could boost the Wisconsinites further into the top spot.

All reserved and box seats for the Saturday and Sunday games in Candlestick are gone.

Wednesday's victory brought the Giants their 12th triumph in their last 15 games to remain in top contention. It was the fourth straight and sent them into the Dodger series on a winning string.

Willie Mays hit his 34th homer in the first inning, Hal Lanier singled in another run in the opening frame and that was all Marichal needed to record his 19th pitching triumph.

"I threw more pitches than I wanted (159)," commented the Dominican Republic star. "But the ball seemed to be slipping from my fingers before I wanted it to. I was missing the plate by inches."

Marichal recorded his ninth shutout of the season, his fourth against the Mets who have scored only one run against him in five complete games.

He appeared a little stiff and sore, but commented, "I'll be ready to pitch against the Dodgers on Sunday."

Irishman Has Early Golf Lead

SUTTON, Mass., (AP) — Ireland's Christy O'Connor, a veteran member of the British Ryder Cup team, fired a two-under-par 34-35—69 to take the early lead today in the opening round of the $200,000 Carling World Golf Tournament.

The 40-year-old O'Connor, one of the first starters in the field of 154 invited players from 13 nations, carded four birdies and two bogeys in mastering Pleasant Valley's 6,713-yard layout, featured by sprawling greens.

Jacky Cupit, a regular on the pro circuit, shot a sparkling three-under-par 33 on the front nine and finished with a 70 to trail O'Connor by one stroke.

Unheralded Claude King of Virginia Beach, Va., who launched the second annual tournament, came in with a 34-37—71, par for the tricky layout.

Arnold Palmer ran into trouble and took a 39 on the front nine. Palmer had a double bogey on the 508-yard seventh hole as he shot into the rough, then into a trap and needed three putts to get down.

Pre-tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus carded one birdie and two bogies on the front nine in going out in one over par 37.

Marin Cyclists Hold Time Trials

The Marin Cyclists will hold time trials at 7:30 tonight for the final heats in their 12-meet, ten-mile event sanctioned by the Amateur Bicycle League of America.

The course starts across from San Clemente on Paradise Drive in Corte Madera. The competition has drawn racers from as far away as Bakersfield and Vallejo.

A Rough Time Ahead For 49ers' Defense

MORAGA, Calif. (AP) — A four coach San Francisco 49er scouting trip to Los Angeles, which watched their upcoming opponents, the Dallas Cowboys, in action has produced nothing but headaches for the 49er defense.

Defensive coaches Dick Vorhis and Jim David are working their squads to meet any and all possibilities when they face the Cowboy's "circus offense" next Saturday at Portland, Ore.

What the scouts saw would chill the heart of the toughest defense coach. Vorhis and David reported that the Cowboys used eight different formations for their first eight plays.

Said the two tutors, "We don't mean just left and right variations, we mean radically different formations. There aren't many left they didn't use."

Vorhis added, "They come at you with the idea of causing you to make mistakes in your defensive alignments. Make one and it can burn."

Triple Play, But Robinson Leads Orioles To Win

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Brooks Robinson must be the only man in baseball who could consider hitting into a triple play a lucky omen.

Baltimore's classy third baseman battered into one a year ago — while in a hot streak — and wound up the American League's Most Valuable Player.

He started another triple play with a grounder in his first at-bat last night but wound up leading the Orioles to a 3-2 victory over Boston, climbing nearer the league atting leadership, and improving his chances for a second MVP award.

Robinson singled on his second trip to the plate and scored, then drove across the winning run with another single in the eighth inning. His two hits raised his average to .327 — a climb of 31 points this month — and left him just one point behind Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, who was 1-for-4.

In other AL action Johnny Romano and Pete Ward powered the Chicago White Sox to their sixth straight victory, 8-2 over Washington; the Los Angeles Angels beat the New York Yankees 7-3 with a four-run eighth inning; and Cleveland split with Kansas City, winning 4-1 after a 4-2 setback. Detroit had a 1-0 lead over Minnesota's first-place Twins when their game at Detroit was rained out in the fourth inning.

Robinson, who has hit .456 this month with 33-for-71 in 18 games, came up in the first inning with one run in and men on first and second. His grounder to third went from Frank Malzone to Felix Mantilla to Tony Horton for two outs, and Horton's return to Malzone caught Paul Blair, who had slipped rounding third.

But in the fourth, Robinson beat out an infield hit, was sacrificed to second, and scored on Jerry Adair's single. Eddie Bressoud tied it at 2-2 with a pinch two-run homer in the seventh, but Robinson untied it in the eighth with another single, following a walk to Blair and a wild pitch.

Romano batted in four White Sox runs with a homer and single, while Ward knocked in three with a homer and single. Bruce Howard blanked the Senators through eight innings, but was touched for two runs in the ninth and needed relief help from Bob Locker.

Willie Smith started the Angels' eighth-inning uprising against the Yankees with a pinch triple off reliever Pedro Ramos and scored the go-ahead run on Merritt Ranew's pinch single. Joe Adcock's single, Bobby Knoop's double and a ground out by Bob Rodgers cashed in three more.

Adcock also hit a two-run homer in the first, off Whitey Ford. Mickey Mantle homered in the third for New York and Bobby Richardson evened it at 3-3 with a two-run homer in the seventh.

Dean Chance, struggling this year after winning the Cy Young Award as the majors' top pitcher last season, pulled his record to 9-9 with the victory.

Jose Tartabull paced the A's over Cleveland in the doubleheader opener with four hits, one run scored and an RBI. But the Indians came back with early cannonading in the second game, getting homers by Rocky Colavito, Fred Whitefield and Pedro Gonzalez in the first two innings for a quick 4-0 lead.

Milwaukee Takes Over N.L. Top Spot

By MURRAY CHASS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Umpire Chris Pelekoudas said Hank Aaron's home run wasn't before it started, and the St. Louis Cardinals said Don Dillard's wasn't after it finished.

The Milwaukee Braves, objects of both opinions, settled for one of the homers last night, a 5-3 victory over St. Louis and first place in the National League.

The triumph moved the Braves one-half game ahead of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who lost to Philadelphia 6-3 in 12 innings.

Both Braves' blasts came with the game tied 3-3.

Aaron's sailed onto the right field pavilion roof, but he never got a chance to circle the bases. Pelekoudas stopped him by declaring him out. The home plate umpire said Aaron had run out of the batter's box before he hit the change up from Curt Simmons.

"It's the worst call I've ever seen," Aaron said after the game. "I did the same thing the time before and popped up, and he didn't say a word. I always hit Simmons that way."

Milwaukee Manager Bobby Bragan was thrown out of the game after arguing vehemently. "It was either a grudge call, or he wanted to get his name in the paper," Bragan said. "I've never seen such a call."

But Pelokoudas said there was no question in his mind that Aaron hit the ball illegally.

"Bragan's protest was strictly on judgment," the umpire said. "His only argument was about a grudge and that is stupid. I didn't hesitate in making the call."

The situation hardly had settled when pinch hitter Dillar ignited it again. Two outs after Gene Oliver beat out an infield single in the ninth inning, Dillard clouted a Ray Washburn pitch to the right-center field wall. The Cardinals argued that the hit was not a home run but had hit the wall and was in play.

Umpire Bill Jackowski, however, ruled that the ball hit the top of the wall, bounced off a fan in the stands, then came back onto the field.

Dillard's first home run since Aug. 26, 1963, stood, and the Braves were in first place for the first time since opening day.

In other NL games, San Francisco blanked New York 5-0 and Pittsburgh edged Houston 8-7. Rain washed out Cincinnati and Chicago.

Tony Cloninger won his eighth straight game and brought his record to 18-8, stopping the Cardinals on six hits. He retired 15 straight batters until Curt Flood singled in the sixth. Flood moved to second on an infield out and scored the tying run as Ken Boyer singled.

Dick Stuart's three-run double in the 12th inning following Maury Wills' two-out fumble of Rich Allen's grounder toppled the Dodgers from the lead for the first time since July 16.

Sandy Koufax was seeking his 22nd victory but was knocked from the mound in the eighth when the Phillies tied the game 3-3 on run-scoring singles by Allen and Stuart. Willie Davis hit a two-run homer for Los Angeles.

Manny Mota drove in four runs, three with a fifth-inning double, as Pittsburgh built an 8-1 lead. But Houston exploded for six runs in the ninth, two on Ron Brand's homer and another pair on a single by Walt Bond. Al McBean finally ended the rally by getting Brand to hit into a double play.

INTRODUCING THE MARIN ALL-STARS

Introducing members of the North-South Marin All-Star football squads that clash Thursday night, Aug. 26, at Kentfield in a game sponsored by the Ross Valley Kiwanis Club:

THE NORTH

BILL HALL from Terra Linda High was one of the smallest ends in the league last year but don't let his size fool you.

Although only 5-9 and 150 pounds, Hall was one of Terra Linda's leading receivers and was given honorable mention all-league. He was used only on offense and two years was a first stringer for the Trojans.

He was a second baseman on Terra Linda's baseball team and was named to the second team all-league delegation. He will be at College of Marin starting next month, and hopes to transfer to San Francisco State.

DAVE COOLEY from San Rafael High School was one of the top defensive halfbacks in the league last year and earned honorable mention recognition in the all-league selections.

He also played varsity baseball for the Bulldogs. The 5-10, 170-pound Cooley also was a yell leader one semester and was frosh class president.

Cooley plans to wait out a semester or two before enrolling in college.

THE SOUTH

LU ERCOLINI is a big and fast defensive halfback from Marin Catholic who was named on the defensive All-MCAL team last year, his second year of varsity first string football. In addition to the gridiron, Lu was on the track and field team, was the school's Block Club president and sophomore class president.

The Fairfax boy plans to stay in the Bay area for his college education, at University of Santa Clara.

DAN GLADNEY is a stocky tackle from Redwood who stands 5-10 and weighs 205.

He played varsity ball two years and was co-captain his senior year. He earned honorable mention all-league in football and was a discus thrower during track season.

As many of the prep grid stars do, he plans to enter College of Marin in the fall.

Sohner Wins Final Softball Game, 1-0

Scoring a run before a batter was retired in the first inning, Sohner Tree Service hung on last night to register a 1-0 victory over Burbank Dairy of Santa Rosa in the final game of the sixth annual San Anselmo Invitational Softball Tournament.

The Sohner win ruined Burbank's chances of grabbing a share of the championship and gave the Treemen a tie for second place in the final tourney standings.

Thus, Hamilton Air Force Base and Lucky 7 Golf of Sonoma County are co-champs with 4-1 records in the round-robin tournament. Sohner and Burbank finished with 3-2 marks for a second place deadlock.

Because of conflicts with other tournaments, there will be no playoffs, according to Tournament Director Frank Quinn.

In grabbing last night's verdict, Morey Swarm limited the invaders to four hits in besting Burbank's heralded Al Nott who allowed four safeties.

Sohner tallied its run in the first inning when John Brookman legged out an infield hit and scored on Ed Schulze's long triple to right center.

Schulze, running on a leg that kept him in the hospital last week, barely made it to third on what normally would have been a home run.

The Sohner first-baseman was standard on third as Nott retired Ron Jerome, Dave Hughes and Jess Munyon in order and limited the Treemen to two hits during the rest of the game.

Burbank had two runners on in both the sixth and seventh innings, but Swarm bore down to get out of trouble.

Burbank centerfielder Lee Baker turned in the game's fielding gem when he raced into right center to make a diving grab of Dave Hughes' bid for extra bases.

The overflow crowd gave him a standing ovation.

Burbank	000	000	0	0	4	1
Sohner	100	000	x	1	4	3

WP: M. Swarm; LP: A. Nott; Triples: Schulze (S); Attendance: 650 (estimated).

Final Standings:

Hamilton	4	1
Lucky 7	4	1
Sohner	3	2
Burbank	3	2

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER

Much better, in fact, if the subject is Orlando Cepeda. Disabled for all but 10 at bats this year by knee problems, the slugging Giant returned to the wars yesterday for three innings against the Mets and here lashes a single in the first inning to set up San Francisco's second run. Catcher Chris Cannizzaro and umpire Billy Williams watched. Giants won 5-0 to climb within a game of the lead. (UPI Telephoto)

Tiburon Swim Team Triumphs

The Tiburon Swim Club drubbed the Lucas Valley Swim Club 218-99 yesterday at the losers' pool.

Lucas Valley surprisingly had two of the three triple winners, Stacey Hoffmire and Ed Andersen in the eight and under competition. Linda Locati won three events for Tiburon in the 13-14 class. Double winners were Mary Keller of Tiburon (11-12), Laura Jernigan of Tiburon (9-10) and Hugh Carter of Lucas Valley (11-12).

Archers Must Be Over-Modest; No Deer Kills Reported To Us

STEVENS

Still no report of a toxophilite downing a deer. Guess the archery addicts are over-modest. Some news has come in of the riflemen's kill, however. So here are congratulations to George Davis and Larry Weber who made the grade stalking their prey in the Healdsburg area. The Western Sports Shop in San Rafael which reported the above also mentioned that the Walter Simmon's Deer Club boys made par for the course, as usual.

From the East Bay, Mel Silva of the Hayward Fisheries reported Frank Tapia and Frank Jr. slaying a nice 3-point, 130 pound buck in the Mendocino-Covelo region. A trio of locals, Ed Moreire, Keith Hewitt, and the "Nunes Gang" brought down three fine specimens. Ronnie had the largest, a 138 pound forked - horn; Dennis Nunes tagged a 135-pounder, and Keith Hewitt was content with his live venison that dressed out at 110 pounds. Congratulations, fellows!

REGARDING the piscatorial pastime, salmon fishing continues to be spotty, but most fish boated are in the lunker class.

The Striper strivers who worked the ocean beach near Bolinas really went to town. The Western Sports Shop reported the striped bass were actually boiling in the surf. The boats just off shore really cleaned up. "Howdy" Allen and his two sons, Wheat and Peter, limited out with bass from 16 to 28 pounds in short time. Bass fishing has been farily good off Tiburon, and Dr. Robert Johnson took his limit of nice bass trolling near the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

BEFORE I FORGET, you guys or gals that need any repair work on your rifles, shotguns or side arms—or would like to have your shootin' iron sighted in—Dan Dyrne, formerly with the King Gunsight Co., and the Micro people, is now with the Western Sports Shop in San Rafael. I understand Dan Dyrne is an expert crafstman.

The party boat, "Sunfish," has been reaping a harvest in the Point Bonito Cove. Lee Anderson's shop in Oakland gave me the score for Monday—"26 stripers to 30 pounds, one halibut, 43 pounds of 20 assorted rockfish. Also reported through the Lee Anderson Shop was the eye-witness report of 34 deer downed in the Lake Pillsbury area.

BY FAR THE best news of striper fishing comes from the upper San Pablo Bay. Carl Bennett of the Rodeo Marina called to report the boat, "Two Dares," averaging 1½ bass per rod with fish to about 15 pounds, caught around the Center Pier or near the Union Oil Wharf. Fish averaging seven or eight pounds. One boat, using grass shrimp, landed five large stripers for its four rods. A few fish have been taken on bait in the Selby Cove, also. Eleven sturgeon to 50 pounds were unloaded at the Rodeo Marina over the weekend, and the big party boat, "Bluefish," landed limits of striped bass, using live bait, inside the Gate. Congratulations to Tony Torres of Hayward, Les Watkins of Union City and C. C. Collell of Livermore, who made the grade while surf casting. Fish ran to 30 pounds.

That's the palaver for today. Chow!

SO MAYBE THEY SHOULD HAVE STAYED AT HOME?

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI)—There's nothing like a vacation in the beautiful Colorado Mountains. That's what Francis Sudholt, his wife and their seven children thought.

Driving a station wagon and camper trailer near here yesterday, the St. Louis family had trouble with the brakes on the wagon. A wheel caught fire. The father tried to beat out the flames with a pillow but it caught fire, too. Then the gas tank exploded, destroying the wagon.

So there they were on scenic Colorado Highway 96, a family of nine with a trailer but nothing to pull it with.

McNamara Says Many U2s Have Been Lost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says that in the past several years Soviet air defense missiles have shot down several American U2 reconnaissance planes.

"These (the Russian missiles) are the types that were deployed in Cuba by the Soviets which shot down a very high altitude U2," he added during a closed door Appropriation Committee hearing last Feb. 25.

McNamara testified then in support of his endorsement of missiles rather than bombers or manned aircraft for future U.S. defenses. The testimony was released yesterday.

The defense secretary did not elaborate, beyond the 1962 missile attack over Cuba, as to where or when other U2 incidents might have occurred.

A U2 was shot down over Russian territory by a Soviet missile in 1960. The pilot, Gary Francis Powers, was later exchanged for a convicted Soviet spy.

Boy, 16, In Honolulu On First Leg Of Solo Voyage

HONOLULU (AP) — Sixteen-year-old sailor Lee Graham, with only two kittens as companions — completed a 2,400-mile voyage from California to Honolulu last night and described the trip as "pretty easy."

Docking his 24-foot sailboat, the Dove, at Ala Wai Yacht Harbor in Waikiki, the teen-ager said, "I had no trouble."

The California-to-Hawaii voyage was the first lap of a proposed tow-year solo trip around the world.

Graham, of Honolulu, entered the Harbor nearly 24 hours earlier than expected. The Dove was at the end of a Coast Guard tow rope.

Young Graham said he had accepted the tow "for safety's sake."

The fair-haired youth said he didn't want to be "riding around there off Diamond Head in the dark."

He described the trip from San Pedro, as "pretty easy" for 23 of the 25 days. He said he was a little seasick the first two days.

Weismuller Son Sued By Wife

MARTINEZ (AP)—John Scott Weismuller, 23, son of former Olympic swimmer and movie star Johnny Weismuller, has been sued for divorce by his wife of 11 months.

Mrs. Judy Yandell Weismuller 19, asked that her maiden name be restored and that Weismuller pay court and attorney fees.

The suit, filed yesterday in Contra Costa County Superior Court, charges extreme cruelty.

There is no community property and Mrs. Weismuller asked for no alimony.

Mussolini Kin Asks Separation

ROME (AP)—Marzio Ciano, grandson of the late Italian dictator Benito Mussolini, and his Italian wife, Gloria Lucchese, today asked a Roman court for legal separation.

Marzio is a son of Mussolini's elder daughter Edda and Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister during the Fascist regime, who was executed by a firing squad on orders of his father-in-law.

Legal separation can be granted in Italy but there is no divorce. The couple has two children.

SERVICE WITH extreme concentration — Mrs. Henry Mullowney, Ross General Hospital, left, pours coffee on tray of Gertrude Chenoweth of Center Medical, beside another volunteer waitress, Mrs. Michael Mitchell of Terra Linda Valley Hospital. The fifth Northgate Group luncheon and style show was held under the trees in filtered sunlight, a welcome change after last week's deluge which forced the event indoors for the first time.

It's Al Fresco Again

MRS. ROBERT WEBER was one of the two models representing Novato General Hospital Volunteers yesterday at the Marin Art and Garden Center fashion showing in Ross, as she showed a deep ruby and green gown as part of the fall style collection. Mrs. Larry Artman also modeled for the Novato Hospital group, with Mrs. James Berthinier as its chairman.

PREVIEWING the styles backstage before the show were a trio of models, from left, Mrs. David Stevenson, Ross General Hospital, Mrs. Arthur Burns, San Rafael Hospital, both in formal gowns, and Lynn Hoffman of Marin General Hospital, in raincoat ensemble.

NOVATO HOSPITAL Volunteers enjoyed their vantage point at a table at the end of the ramp. Other co-sponsors with the Northgate Group were the Center Medical Hospital Volunteer Service, Marin General Hospital Volunteers, Ross Hospital Volunteer Service, Terra Linda Valley Hospital Auxiliary and San Rafael General Hospital Out-Service Volunteers.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL

Cash Registers Will Be Humming

NEW YORK (UPI)—The quest for school supplies, records, cosmetics and jewelry—plus clothes—will make cash registers ring a merry tune before the nation's 54 million students head back to school.

Paying for these things will relieve the average family's cashbox of $179.98.

This exacting figure comes from Violet Hackim, home adviser who surveyed the buying habits of the nation's young persons in 3,132 stores nationwide.

Her studies show that teenagers spend in excess of $10 billion of their own funds a year. The figure is expected to hit $21 billion in five years.

MISS HACKIM said high school and college students have, on the average $450 to spend during the year. The boys spend 32 per cent on food, 22 per cent for entertainment and music, 11 per cent for books, school supplies and sports, and seven per cent for clothes.

The girls, meanwhile, spend 26 per cent on food, 19 per cent on clothes, 11 per cent for entertainment and music.

What will teen-agers prefer this year? Here's what Miss Hackim foresees:

—The well-groomed, polished look will be in. In keeping with this trend is the continuing Chelsea styling in apparel. It is young and bouncy. Some of the items of clothing to go along with this include jumpers with the long V-neckline, the new Italian knit sweaters, plaid and tweed skirts with matching knee socks or long stockings, stretch pants, turtle-neck sweaters, and boots. Buckles and bows for casual shoes are new style notes also.

Karen Olson Is Bride Of Ronald Berg

St. Anselm's Church in Ross was the setting for the Aug. 7 wedding of Karen Lee Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Val W. Olson of Clements, and Ronald Philip Berg of Lodi.

Karen wore a full length gown of white linen for the noon ceremony in which her father escorted her to the altar. Her sister, Mrs. Robert Mason of Clements, was dressed in green linen as matron of honor and Pat Sanguinetti of Lodi acted as best man.

A garden reception followed at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Edwin L. Dial, on Sylvan Lane in Ross and also in the garden of her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Sim Dever.

The bride attended College of Marin. Following a wedding trip to Carmel, the couple will make their home in Stockton where Ronald will attend University of Pacific.

The sale will benefit the building fund for the new church.

On Aug. 25 at 10 a.m. the women's club will hold a neighborhood coffee for prospective members. Incoming president Mrs. Kenneth Wittman will be hostess at her home at 216 LaVerne Ave., Mill Valley. This is the second in a series of neighborhood coffees planned throughout late summer and early fall.

Drug-Dependency Warning Issued

It is becoming more and more acceptable to escape from tensions and anxieties through the use of barbiturates and so-called "minor tranquilizers". But, the American Medical Assn. warns, prolonged use of these sedatives can lead to drug-dependency.

Patients often mislead doctors about their need for or past experience with drugs, the AMA notes. They also endanger themselves by prolonged unsupervised use of barbiturates or by over-use of non-prescription remedies without thought to their cumulative effect.

The drug habit is not easy to break and the barbiturate-dependent person can be compared to an opiate-dependent.

Parent Is The Key Person In Identification Process

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Educational Specialist

When does a child need psychological help? This seems to be an area which parents find difficult to understand. A psychologist or psychiatrist is most qualified to help determine the need for psychological help.

In order to avoid confusion, you should know that a psychiatrist is a medical doctor who is trained and specializes in the diagnosis and treatment of mental disorders. A psychologist is not a medical doctor but is also a specialist in the diagnosis and the treatment of mental disorders. In many cases the psychologist will work closely with a medical doctor or psychiatrist. Your choice should be based upon your child's special needs and the availability of such specialists in your community. Your family physician or the school psychologist is the best person to recommend a qualified individual.

THE PARENT is the key person who must usually take the first step in the identification of their child's psychological problem. It is similar to the method for deciding the need for physician. If someone has aches and pains or feels ill, they go to a doctor and allow him to decide what is wrong. If a parent feels there is a problem with his child's adjustment, learning progress, social relations, or emotional health, he should allow a specialist to decide what is wrong.

THERE ARE many kinds of problems as well as many types or treatment. A thorough examination which combines tests, observations, and a study of the child's background is usually required before a diagnosis can be made.

Cosmetic May Be Cause Of Allergy

If the tender skin of your eyelid or upper neck becomes irritated suddenly, the culprit may be a cosmetic, and not necessarily one applied directly to the affected area. Two New York dermatologists warned recently that nail polish, hair coloring, eye shadow—any of the numerous powders and paints designed to bedazzle the beholder—can be the cause of skin allergies, irritation and damage to hair and nails. They recommend that women have themselves patch tested by a physician to ferret out the cause of the irritation, and then switch to another beauty brand.

Redwoods Are An Essential To Life

By DEREK SCHOEN

CRESCENT CITY (AP)—The average man is likely to equate a towering redwood tree with nature, life and God.

But if the same average man lives where the tall trees grow, he's more likely to see a redwood as money, food and survival—his own.

That's because redwoods for years have provided the inhabitants of such areas with the essentials of life. The same qualities that allow the massive trees to live 3,000 years—the ruggedness to endure the onslaughts of time, weather, insects and sometimes even fire—make redwood a prized building material, a highly salable commodity.

In Del Norte, Humboldt and Mendocino counties—the northernmost haven for the last great redwood groves—the timber industry represents up to 70 per cent of the total economy.

That's why timber and business interests in these counties are battling so vigorously against separate federal and state plans to purchase up to 50,000 acres of redwoods for preservation in public parks.

"Sure we're fighting," says Richard Denbo of the Eureka Chamber of Commerce. "You'd be fighting too if someone said they were going to take away your livelihood."

A look at what the redwood timber industry means to the 168,000 residents of the three counties illustrates Denbo's point:

Fulltime employment for 20,000 people; total annual sales of $100 million; a gross annual payroll of $123 million; total property taxes of some $8 million a year.

And the whole area is basing its future on cutting, milling and marketing redwoods.

Near the coast town of Crescent City, the Rellim Lumber Co. is planning $20 million worth of new plants amid its 24,000 acres of redwood forests. Even without the expansion, the company has Del Norte County's largest payroll and is its biggest taxpayer.

The expansion plans call for boosting the work force from 175 to 675. The company's taxable value would jump from 12 to 18 per cent of the county's total.

The state wants 4,500 acres of Rellim land for a state park addition. Says Harold A. Miller, president of the firm:

"We need every acre we've got to carry out our plans. If the state expands its parks, we don't — we can't — expand our business. It's that simple."

Down the coast in Eureka, two mammoth pulp mills with a total value of $75 million are nearing completion. Denbo and other area leaders say the pulp plants will never be able to operate at full capacity if timber-producing land is taken from private ownership.

The possible economic plight of the area has drawn little sympathy from conservationists or state and federal park officials.

They note that logging operations are responsible for the disappearance of all but 300,000 of California's original 2,000,000 acres of primeval redwoods. Of the remaining virgin forests, 50,000 acres are publicly owned.

Conservation groups like the Save-the-Redwoods-League and the Sierra Club—drawing financial as well as verbal support from throughout the United States—place little faith in the future of the big trees so long as they remain in private hands.

Timber officials, on the other hand, scoff at conservationist fears that the redwood is a vanishing species, at least where privately owned.

Darrell Schroeder, manager of the Rellim Redwood Co. operations, points out that the company bases its expansion plans on "sustained yield" logging—a program of constant cutting and replanting, with a 45-year cycle between the time a section of forest is cut and the time when it is ready again for reharvesting.

"People who say redwoods take thousands of years to grow just don't know the facts," says Schroeder. "There will always be redwoods if they leave us alone. Growing is as big a part of our business as cutting."

Conservationist reaction to Schroeder's argument is summed up by Alfred Stearn, chairman of the State Park Commission.

"What the logging interests just can't understand," says Stearn, "is that people won't walk across the street to see a 45-year-old tree. But they'll drive hundreds of miles to see a 3,000-year-old redwood."

Fred L. Jones, state director of parks and recreation, puts it another way:

"We think the people of this state want to save the redwoods for their children and grandchildren. And if that's really what the people want, that's what we're going to try to give them."

Put on those terms, the feelings of the redwoods area's population — numbering 185,000, or less than 1 per cent of the state's total—tend to seem insignificant.

Against such odds, the timber industry has mounted a four-pronged offensive of its own aimed at convincing Californians they don't need more redwoods. Main points of the industry stand:

—The state already owns enough redwood acreage but has failed to develop it for public use. In the 100,000 acres of state redwoods parks, there are only 595 campsites and 145 picnic sites.

—So-called "conservationists" really are "preservationists" who want to keep the forests just the way they are — devoid of people.

—State acquisition of more park land would place an intolerable tax burden on fellow Californians still digging out from under economic calamity caused by the 1964 tidal wave and flood.

—Tourism can never replace lumbering in the area's economy because of its distance from major urban centers and weather-shortened tourist season.

Most area political leaders and businessmen profess little hope for the future, however, despite their determined fight.

Don Cave, a Eureka stockbroker and a leader in the battle against more parks, reflects the general feeling when he says:

"We know this business about redwoods is an emotional thing, and we know how hard it is to fight . . .

"Hell, sometimes it seems like it's just us against the whole world. And all over a bunch of trees most people will never even see."

Larkspur Budget On Council List

The Larkspur City Council will hold a special meting Wednesday to adopt the final budget for fiscal 1966 and set a tax rate.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at city hall.

Also slated is a study session on park development with the city park and recreation commission.

Washington State Admits Marinites

Two Marin residents are among 341 students admitted to Washington State University in Pullman for the fall semester.

They are Paul D. Peterson of 220 Beryl Avenue, Homestead Valley, and Christine E. Chisholm of 37 Alta Vista Way, San Rafael.

Annual Arts, Crafts Show At Quentin

The gates of San Quentin prison will be opened Aug. 28.

Not so the inmates can get out, but so the public can get in to see the annual Arts and Crafts show.

The work of inmate craftsmen and painters will be exhibited, judged and sold at prices from thirty cents to $300.

Art entries include more than 500 paintings in oil, water color, casein, drawings and pastel. The 300 craft entries are made up of metal tooling, metal and plastic jewelry, leather, wood, and miscellaneous work.

Bay Area artists and critics who will judge the inmates' handiwork are Prof. Boyd Allen of the University of California at Berkeley, Prof. Robert Church, Robert Olson, and Arnado Gonzales, of San Francisco, all judging art work; and Prof. Harry G. Green of Daly City, Ken Stanford of El Sobrante, and Farhad Moezzi of Santa Venetia, judging crafts.

Judging will take place Friday at 5 p.m., and the winning entries will be on sale at the one-day show Saturday, along with the others.

Prison authorities say all sales will be on a first-come, first-served, cash basis. They said that last year more than 8,000 visitors bought more than $10,000 worth of the inmates' work.

Doors open at 8:30 a.m. for the show, which continues until 8 p.m.

Nigerian Boy Seeks Pen Pals

An 18-year-old Nigerian boy is seeking pen pals in Marin.

Nurudeen Adex, of Lagos, Nigeria, said in a letter to the Independent-Journal that he would like to exchange letters with Americans of any age.

He described himself as five foot four, with black hair and eyes and "elegance in complexion." Nurudeen's hobbies are football, swimming, dancing, collecting postcards and exchanging gifts.

His address is 6 Bajulaye Street, Lagos, Nigeria.

REPORT ON EUROPE

Food Can Be Task —To Find, To Cook

By ALTON S. BOCK
(Third in a series)

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Getting from one place to another can be a bit of a drag. If necessary, sleep may be fitted into odd hours and odd corners or done away with altogether.

Food is another matter. Its acquisition and consumption require considerable time and skill while traveling, especially if you're trying to cook your own meals in front of a tent much of the time. On a limited budget, eating one's way across Europe is seldom more exotic than eating one's way across Highway 40 in the U.S.

But there are rare times when the treats of foreign lands are so extraordinary that they alone are almost worth the trip. I enjoy eating, and I was nearly tempted to settle down in the French countryside where it might be possible to picnic eternally on the delicacies offered by the local pastry shops and charcuteries. Dijon, for instance, is rivaled perhaps only by Bologna, Italy, as a place that seems dedicated to good food

The French may be snobbish about their cooking, but with good reason, for they have after all set the standard for the Western world. The intricately moulded pastries, cheeses, creams, stuffed meats, stuffed artichokes, salads and fruits that can be seen spread out in shops everywhere are literally a feast for the eye.

Often, we were able to take advantage of these delights, but more often we fried chops or cooked stews and rice over a "Camping Gaz" stove. And I have the hazy memory that for several weeks in the Pyrenees we lived on potatoes and onions.

Paris may have the finest restaurants in the world; I can't say from personal experience. We lived within blocks of the Tour d'Argent, but we were regular customers at a small Algerian restaurant in Saint Severin.

The staple there was couscous, a North African cereal cooked with beef or mutton and soaked in a stew of carrots and turnips. We had couscous for Christmas dinner and couscous for New Year's dinner.

We had it again in Arab restaurants in Morocco months later. There it was jazzed up somewhat with cinnamon and raisins. It makes a substantial enough meal, but its variations are few. I'm only surprised that some American importer hasn't yet exploited it. It might become as popular here as pizza.

While in Spain we were fortunate to have a house with a kitchen. We were by the sea, and fresh fish was brought each morning to the village market.

Some strange specimens were sold and now and again I did the shopping, with results which were short of disastrous; and my wife didn't hesitate to tell me so. Once we broiled a huge fish with gaping jaws and crooked teeth; another time there was a sort of eel with rubbery skin and countless radial bones. Both meals were inedible.

There are more pleasant memories of extra-large strawberries in Yugoslavia, delicious watermelons in Smyrna, fresh blueberries and raspberries in Switzerland, barbecued lamb in Istanbul and endless varieties of pastes in Italy.

Of course, as soon as our Norwegian freighter docked in Brooklyn we wasted little time in seeking our first American meal in a long, long while. It was classic, if not a cliche: what else but a hamburger and a chocolate milk shake?

No Contest Plea In Manslaughter

David Howard Morton, 36, charged with misdemeanor manslaughter in the June 5 traffic death of a pregnant Daly City woman, yesterday pleaded no-contest in Marin Municipal Court. Judgment was scheduled for 3 p.m. Sept. 16.

Morton, of San Francisco, originally asked for jury trial. He allegedly was driving his vehicle the wrong direction on Highway 101's Waldo Grade when he struck the vehicle in which Simone Ann Smith, 25, cocktail waitress, was riding.

She died soon after of injuries received in the head on collision.

Blunt Words De-Glamorize Marijuana's Attractions

If you think the use of marijuana is harmless or even glamorous, you can forget it.

Dr. Ira H. Degenhardt, president of the Marin Medical Society, minces no words in the August issue of the society's publication.

"I have talked with some people who use marijuana," says Dr. Degenhardt. "Their argument that making its purchase legal would remove it from its sordid surroundings is pure unadulterated tripe."

Bravo to the doctor for calling a spade a spade in language easily understandable to the layman. This type of solid advice, coming from an expert, reaffirms our faith in our "old-fashioned" ideas of right and wrong.

Too often, the so-called professional analyses of our social ills are couched in euphemisms and such niceties that the layman is lost in the technical double-talk.

It was refreshing to hear the head of our medical society cut through all the extraneous matter and expose marijuana for what it is.

To the disbeliever, who prefers to see marijuana through rose-colored glasses, here are a few quotes from Dr. Degenhardt:

"None of them (the recent articles on marijuana) mentioned strongly enough that the teen-agers involved are probably in all cases inadequate personalities and in many cases psychopaths who are continually in trouble of one kind or another.

"Also, I object to the Madison Avenue type of advertising which claims that the use of marijuana produces euphoria, heightened perceptions (hallucinations?), exalted ideas of one's being, etc., but fails to mention the loss of inhibitions and controls, the riotous imagination, impulsive behavior and the translation of random ideas into action in the motor field. When one adds to this the space and time distortion which makes near objects distant and makes minutes seem hours, it is easy to understand how violence may occur when the user is a psychopathic personality...."

With even greater conviction, we repeat the statement we made previously: A society that continues to tolerate "milder" infractions is only inviting more serious infractions.

Our Dandy Thunderstorm

Our thunderstorm last week was a real freak. A look at the San Rafael records shows that during the first 40 years rainfall records were kept, there was no measurable August rainfall. Adding up all the August rainfall on record in San Rafael, we get a figure about equal to what fell during last week's storm.

It will be interesting to see if this means green grass in September.

WOMAN FINDS HAIRPIN IS THE KEY

A housewife performed Houdini's trick of escaping from handcuffs—but she did it with a hairpin.

Not only did the Northport, N.Y., woman free herself but she also released her husband, daughter and husband's assistant. They were all shackled to a post in the basement of their home by two masked gunmen who made off with $600 in cash and $4,100 in jewelry.

Detectives were amazed when the young homemaker—who had never picked a lock in her life—demonstrated how she did it.

"These handcuffs are better than the ones we use," remarked one of the police.

Life holds many surprises. Probably one of the biggest is the discovery of the literally untapped powers God has implanted in each of us.

Your potential may not become apparent so dramatically as that of this enterprising wife and mother. But you are, by the power of God, far more capable of responding to difficult situations than you think. Live up to what you can and should be!

"He gives power and strength to His people." (Psalms 67:36)

Give me a greater awareness, O Father, of how much You expect me to do with the power You have given me.

Real Menace To Driving Is Slow Car In Left Hand Lane

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The California Legislature recognized a growing danger on California's freeways, both four, six and eight lanes, when it adopted laws requiring slow-driving motorists to keep to the right of the road.

SO FAR, this new law, which will be in effect next month, does not seem to have seeped through to the public, as the driving menace to life and limb continues to meander at a slow pace, holding up traffic that wants to move.

During the discussions on the bill that shortly will make this kind of driving illegal, these drivers were termed "self-appointed guardians of the road."

If this is their attitude, then they may rest in jail next year reflecting on the vagaries not only of the poor driving which put them there but also on the matter of polite driving which means giving traffic a chance.

THERE COULD be some lawsuits if the California Highway Patrol attempts to push the matter too far, for the simple reason a court hardly could find a driver guilty of holding up a left lane if he progresses at the legal speed of 65 miles per hour. At least, such driver could petition a higher court.

All of which brings out the fact that the legal speed limit of 65 miles per hour is about as unrealistic today as 10 miles was in the days of the horse and buggy some 50 years ago.

The driving public refuses to accept the premise that it pays for and builds highways perfectly capable of handling faster traffic, and then is not allowed to use such highways at a maximum of efficiency.

CONSEQUENTLY, try any freeway and see whether traffic moves faster than the allotted 65 miles per hour. And one also can determine for himself whether "speed kills," or whether it's dumb drivers.

The California Highway Patrol virtually is helpless when it comes to keeping traffic at the legal 65 mph. Occasional appearance of highway patrolmen on the freeways slows things down a bit, but it would take almost as many patrolmen as motorists to enforce strict observance of the law.

Aside from this prohibitive cost, it is reasonably obvious the driving public finds no favor with the 65 mph limitation, which was adopted on the premise that 70 miles is too fast. The facts are a motorist can be just as dead in a crash at 65 as he could at 70 or faster.

School Figures Were In Error

Editor, Independent-Journal:

It would appear that (re: Aug. 14 editorial) we haven't spent enough for our public schools, or did Jack Craemer attend school in an area that didn't believe in taxation? Mr. Craemer's elementary arithmetic would yield the following results:

Assume that taxes of 1954-55 were $100

Assume that taxes of 1955-56 were $105

Craemer's increase is a "whopping" 105 per cent.

The tax increases were 348 per cent overall as compared to the 448 per cent of Craemer, and 432 per cent for education as compared with the 532 per cent calculated by Craemer.

Wants Dominican Welfare State?

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Re Sam Hanzel's letter of Aug. 3, wherein he states that our military power in Santo Domingo prevented the re-establishment of an authentic socialist democracy.

In other words, Dr. Hanzel wants for Santo Domingo the Welfare State—guided democracy—government ownership of heavy industry; control of light industry, business and housing; financial "pump priming"; severely limited personal rights to property. All of which leads to the curtailment or diminishing of the individual's dignity, liberty and freedom of choice.

How preposterous to suggest U.N. supervision of a free(?) election which he believes would return Juan Bosch to power, thus preventing a Communist takeover!

Let's look at the record. From the start of Bosch's political ascendancy it was determined that his right-hand man was a Communist "apparatchik." Arms were being smuggled into the country from Cuba and distributed to the Communist underground and a pro-Castro guerrilla army began making raids in the countryside.

The record also shows that as early as the 1920s Juan Bosch helped Romulo Betancourt to organize the Caribbean Communist movement; helped Jacobo Arbenz and Jose Arevalo to establish a Communist regime in Guatemala; was a leader in the Communist dominated Caribbean Legion.

President Johnson's intervention came at the 11th hour, but only the U.S. Marines stood between us and the eventuality of another Cuba.

The only remaining hope for the Dominican anti-Communists are Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin's military power and Joaquin Balaguer's powerful Reformista Party regardless of Walter Lippmann's hope for the Dominicans.

Wealth Belongs To Bel-Tib Rich

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your reporter, Frank Farrara, on Aug. 2 seems to think it amusing to have the Bel-Tib taxpayers reduced to folly in order to protect their property and their money. They might be rich, but their wealth is theirs; it is not for little people in their jealousy to make fools of the rich as if the money of the rich were the public's toy.

The question has been how can the tax collectors in Marin County get enough money to support the wasteful administration of the government. Taking the money from the rich simply because it's fun is no answer to the question.

Mr. Albert Kerss in his letter to the "editor" suggests what the tax collector does when there is industry in the county and why the cliche runs to the effect that we can't have more industry in Marin because it would ruin the landscape....

The county does not preserve anything at all when there are hot deals going. Mr. Kerss points out how industry is not taxed when it is already here, and why people like the Bel-Tib rich and the modest land owner like Mr. Kerss pay in taxes what is not rightfully the government's....

Marin can build industry underground with beautiful Marin landscape unspoiled on top. There are any number of answers or at least ways to beginning. Beginning is always difficult. Avoiding the start is only misadministration.

Teaching Staff Report Needed

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The IJ has gone overboard again in its one-sided policy regarding its coverage of teacher's salaries. I read, in the July 28 issue, a report on salary increases for part of the staff employed by the Reed Union School District which was certainly newsworthy but I was dismayed to find that a most important and thorough report preceding the discussion of these increases was omitted.

The major amount of time at the School Board's July 27 meeting, was spent by the superintendent and the administrative intern in the submission and review, by the board of trustees, of a report on personnel practices within the Reed Union School District. This report compared the Reed staff with that of other members of the Associated Public Schools System, a nationwide organization aspiring to quality educational programs. The results were most significant and could have certainly been deemed equally newsworthy to the matter of salary increases. From the complete omission of this report and the dutiful inclusion of the salary increases one could easily surmise that the editorial policy is slanted against the quality and toward the cost implications of education. A wonderful opportunity was presented to at least objectively report on one facet of a teaching staff not reflecting salary and it was totally ignored.

Please give the reader better coverage of the complete agenda of a school board meeting and discontinue this obvious obsession with teacher salaries.

ARLENE FRANCIS, strolling through the bustling town of Mount Kisco, N. Y., met a movie star wheeling her baby in the direction of the railroad station. "My, that's a beautiful baby you have there," bubbled the ever-gracious Arlene. "Thank you, but the child is nothing at all," apologized the movie star. "You ought to see him in our home movies!"

PEOPLE WHO run the leading auto renting agencies in New York have become accustomed to patrons who demand cars of different colors each day. It seems that many visiting lady executives want cars that match the colors of the dresses they happen to be wearing. This reminded one manager of the lady who ordered a bottle of wine with her dinner. "Red or white?" asked the waiter. "Oh, nothing like that," replied the lady. "Bring me something that matches my dress."

HERE ARE some more "knock-knocks" collected by the indefatigable Charlie Rice:

1. This is Mr. Deggs: Mr. Hammond Deggs.
2. This is Miss Gettit: Miss Carmen Gettit.
3. This is Mr. Pepper: Mr. Sultan Pepper.
4. This is Mrs. Highwater: Mrs. Helen Highwater.

It's hard to put a stop to this sort of thing—once you let it get started!

U.S. Backing Down On Soviet Dues Comes As No Surprise

WASHINGTON (AP) — One crisis at a time. The Johnson administration, busy with war in Viet Nam, wanted no crisis with the Soviet Union in the United Nations. So it backed down, to nobody's surprise.

It had moved toward this position for months. The dispute over the Soviet Union's back dues had the U.N. General Assembly in knots. One U.S. official explained: The world situation is too dangerous to have an inactive assembly.

THE DECISION, of course, was made by President Johnson. It was publicly stated Monday by Arthur J. Goldberg, new U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, in his maiden speech to the world organization.

This was one year to the day after the Communist world warned that the Soviet Union and its allies would walk out of the United Nations if they lost their vote in the General Assembly for being behind on peacekeeping assessments.

This was after the United States had sternly demanded the Soviet Union pay up. If the Communists had walked out, the United Nations would have been left a shell. The United States never forced the issue to a showdown.

SINCE GOLDBERG'S statement as the American representative was cut and dried, prepared in advance, it gave no insight into how he will operate as the late Adlai E. Stevenson's successor.

Johnson faces criticism from some Republicans, but not all, and it started quickly. "It's a sad day for the United Nations," was the instant reaction of Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, senior Republican on the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee.

But another influential Republican member of it, Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, told the Senate the United States had taken the only practical course left open. Any storm over it will probably subside quickly.

THAT THIS crisis could be avoided this easily is a good example of Johnson's luck in foreign affairs since he took office in November, 1963. He has had few serious foreign troubles since.

When he did, as happened at the time he sent troops into the middle of the Dominican Republic's revolution just as the Vietnamese war was getting more critical, he got it quieted down as fast as he could.

It was also perhaps lucky for him that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, a constant goad to previous presidents, was removed last October by the Soviet leaders and replaced by quieter men.

THE SOVIET Union, France, Belgium, Yemen, South Africa and eight Communist countries owed $108 million to the United Nations as their share of the cost of keeping the peace in the Middle East and the Congo.

But the United States made its target the Soviet Union, which owed $62.2 million.

Both the Soviet Union and France argued the decision on the peacekeeping was made illegally, that it was done by the General Assembly but should have been done by the Security Council.

ARTICLE 19 of the U.N. charter says a nation more than two years behind on its assessments loses its voting rights. The Soviet Union, France and the others were more than two years behind.

The 114-nation assembly had been deadlocked a year over the question of whether the Soviet Union should lose its voting right. The United States had pushed about as far as it thought safe to go without risking a U.N. crackup.

Perhaps some of the American indignation was window-dressing. Goldberg said Monday this country had found that a "consensus" of the U.N. members wanted the organization to get on with its work.

But this couldn't have been a recent discovery. Last January the U.N. president, Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana, had said just that. So Goldberg was really saying the United States finally decided to make the best of a bad situation.

Freedom Democratic Printing Bill High

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party's bitter-end fight to unseat the state's five congressmen is costing the government more than $60,000 for printing 80 copies of a four-volume report.

That's the undisclosed bill for publishing a huge mass of material submitted by MFDP to prove its contention that the five congressmen (four Democrats, one Republican) are holding office illegally because Mississippi Negroes in 1964 were generally denied the right to vote.

THREE OF the volumes are 1,000 pages, one 30 pages. The large volumes consist of hundreds of affidavits, depositions, statements, etc., collected by a large staff of MFDP lawyers.

Of the 80 copies, 60 are for the House Elections Subcommittee considering this controversy; two for each of the challenged congressmen and MFDP contestants.

Neither House clerk Ralph Roberts, who finally ordered the printing after months of deliberation, nor subcommittee authorities would divulge the cost. All refused to discuss this exceptional expenditure of public funds.

BUT FROM OTHER official sources it was ascertained that publishing such congressional reports costs taxpayers $19.92 a page. Thus the 80 sets cost $60,357.60.

All officials involved were equally unresponsive to requests to examine the costly report. This was denied on the ground that the subcommittee's consideration of the MFDP challenge had not yet been formally "opened."

No date has been set for that. Several of the five committeemen did indicate it would not be before the end of this month. Determination of that is entirely up to the subcommittee. Chairman is Robert Ashmore, D-S.C., who is vigorously against the MFDP's ouster demand. So are the other four members.

IF AND WHEN the subcommittee does finally act, it is virtually certain to vote unanimously against unseating the five Mississippians.

Aware their chances are becoming dimmer by the day with adjournment nearing, Freedom Democratic Party leaders are launching what is privately described as a "massive all-out pressure drive."

Its immediate purpose is to go over the heads of the subcommittee and bring the unseating issue direct to the floor of the House.

THIS WOULD BE done by a petition to discharge the subcommittee from further consideration of the matter. This exceptional parliamentary procedure requires tures —a majority of the full House. MFDP strategists think they have fair hopes of doing this on the basis that their unseating motion at the start of the session in January got 149 votes.

Price Of Rearing Child High; India Is Very Hungry Nation

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

A family with an annual income of $6,600 spends about $24,000 to raise a child to age 18. Twenty years ago a family earning $3,000 a year could bring a youngster up for $9,000 —and faced less danger of winding up with a beatnik.

Do you know what fruit product is used most often in the American home? It's coffee, old bean.

India is one of the world's hungriest nations. It is estimated that three out of four of her 483 million people get less than the 2,500 daily calories needed for good health.

The price of freedom: Since Japanese women have been granted more equal rights, medics have found an increase in high blood pressure among them. But they still outlive the average Japanese man, 72.8 years to his 67.6.

The price of peace in a cold war era: Secretary of State Dean Rusk figures the United States has spent $600 billion on defense since the end of World War II.

Who litter up our city streets? A survey found that men are worse offenders in this respect than women. Women are kept so busy cluttering up their bathrooms that they don't have time to litter up the streets.

Our quotable notables: "It is only in the upper-class level that each husband sits next to the other man's wife"—Louis Kronenberger.

Prosperity note: America has only about 6 per cent of the world's population—but more than 22 per cent of its drugstores.

South Viet Nam may have had nine or 10 changes of government in the last few years, but Bolivia may hold the record for political restlessness. That country has had some 179 revolutions. By the time an official learns where to hang up his coat and hat he may be out of office.

Quips from our contemporaries: "Newest fad is the banana and coconut diet. You won't lose weight, but after two weeks you can climb any tree in America" — Catholic Digest.

Life is getting lovlier all the time: A whisky-scented soap made in bottle-shaped bars is being sold in Austria. Du Pont may become the postman's best friend. It is marketing something called "dog-stopper," a new push-button aerosol which fends off angry dogs by spraying them with a harmless white foam.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Vice President Richard M. Nixon forbade "for obvious reasons" umbrellas at the rain-drenched welcome back from Geneva for President and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Nixon apparently was thinking of the umbrella carried back from the 1938 Munich conference with Adolf Hitler by British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Cordell Hull, the "good gray secretary" who ran the State Department under Franklin D. Roosevelt from 1933 to 1944, died in Washington at 83.

20 YEARS AGO

Sen. Sheridan Downey (D-Calif.) introduced a bill that would give every veteran a free trip abroad, with the government paying the cost. He would furthermore have the government pay half the bill of the veteran's relatives if they wished to go along.

After hearing residents of Sausalito complain that it would destroy their seclusion, Gov. Earl Warren signed a bill authorizing construction of a new northern approach to the Golden Gate Bridge.

MORRIE RYSKIND

Is Great Society Trick Or Treat For Freedom Loving Americans?

IT IS AN ERA of bewildering change. Hardly a day but the president signs an "historic" bill—with a few animadversions on just how historic it is and what a noble president wrought the miracle, just to remind us.

Poverty is on the way out: Big Brother will provide for your children's education and care for your aging parents, so don't worry your pretty little head about such Puritan concepts as family responsibility and all that jazz.

You'll get help on your rent if you need it — and who doesn't?—and your legal bills if you can't afford them—and who can? And LBJ has just announced he is going to do away with disease, and, if I know him, that'll be a law before Congress adjourns.

YES, SIR, to quote Dr. Coue, "every day, and in every way, things are getting better and better." Huey Long's famous slogan, "Every man a king," is approaching reality. The Garden of Eden must have been like this before the snake entered.

Indeed, I half expect Ted Lewis, the old vaudeville star, to come out and shout, "Is everybody happy?"

In a word, Ted, no. For here at the Wailing Wall with me are a goodly crowd of conservatives who bemoan the passing of the Revolution of 1776 and the free Republic it brought us, symbolized in the stalwart figure of Uncle Sam. Yours may be a Great Society —but it is no longer free. For every goody it offers it slips on the shackles of the Monolithic State.

WE TRUST neither your goodies, which history teaches us will eventually turn to ashes in our mouths, nor the Big Brother who delivers the handouts. We'd rather do it ourselves, even if we have to earn our own way. For that's the essence of freedom: Earning your own way and being beholden to no man.

It is curious that those who would destroy our time-honored system are living testimonial to its opportunities: The poor Texas schoolteacher who became a millionaire and our president; his vice president, who often had to help out in his father's drugstore. The old ways could not have been completely wicked, for Lincoln was born in a log cabin, not a public-housing venture.

If the new philosophers were right, there would have been no proud American history at all. From the Pilgrims to the later immigrants, all — with rare exceptions—had to fight poverty. Yet they did not turn to mugging and looting and rioting—which the new textbooks say are the inevitable concomitants of poverty — but to work.

THEIR RECORD is not a long series of crimes, but a magnificent saga of conquering the wilderness and the desert — yes, and the slums, too—by toil and courage and thrift and a high sense of morality that they impressed upon their children. Pick at random the names of 50 living Americans who contributed significantly to their country or community, and the odds are that 48 of them either were poor themselves or were descended from an American ancestor—DAR or Polish immigrant—who was.

For that, the liberals would substitute what could turn out to be the greatest pork barrel of all time—and already is, as I shall note in other columns.

But let's take education. If the elite really wanted to make sure that the worthy got an education, they would have passed one of the many bills offered in Congress to allow the head of a family a tax deduction against the cost of college. But that's too easy: So you get an education bill which sends the money to Washington first, takes out a stiff bite for the cost of the elite and sends back a trifle.

IF I DOUBT the validity of the government figures on this, I have a reason. In 1954 the National Education Assn., chief lobbyist for federal aid, claimed that 4.6 million children were not attending school.

But Roger A. Freeman, a noted debunker of the NEA, pointed out that the figures, though right, included three million 5-year-old kindergarteners and 1.1 million youngsters who were past the compulsory attendance age in their states. Which the NEA, its mind on higher things, did not think worth mentioning.

And then there's that bill to beautify our cities. Well, I was recently in Washington and New York, and I've read what goes on in Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago. And I suggest that any loose change Big Brother has might well be spent in making our cities safe first. Otherwise, nobody's going to know whether they're beautiful or not.

YOU TAKE Big Brother. I'll stick with Uncle Sam, even if he's only a memory.

Loons have exceptional diving ability. Their legs are placed so far back on their bodies that they can't walk erect on land but move by sliding on their breast.

Kindergarten Signups Set

Registration will start Aug. 30 at San Rafael schools for youngsters who will enroll for the first time this fall.

To enter kindergarten, children must have been born on or before Dec. 1, 1960. Parents must show a birth, baptismal or hospital certificate to enter pupils in kindergarten or first grade.

State law requires proof of polio immunization, and school officials encourage parents to have their children get physical examinations before school starts.

Registration forms are available from the administration building, Third and E streets.

Awarded Degree

Robert Allan De Graff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest De Graff of 24 Gloria Drive, San Rafael, was awarded a Bachelor of Architecture degree during summer commencement ceremonies at the University of Oregon Saturday.

Guadalcanal Gets Partisan Politics

By ARTHUR SCHOLES
Worldwide Press Service

CANBERRA—A big step towards eventual independence, or self-government, has been taken in the British Solomon Islands, with the formation of the first political party in Honiara on historic Guadalcanal. Known as the Democratic Party of the British Solomon Islands, it has been established to work for eventual self government for the British Protectorate.

The party also aims at federation with other British and Australian islands in the Pacific, and approaches have already been made to the Legislative Council of the Territory of Papua-New Guinea, under Australian administration.

While the Solomon Islands are British, Australian influence is considerable by virtue of proximity and economic penetration.

Politically, Australia is committed to the advancement of these island territories to political independence. She bases her own defense and security upon the inviolability of the island fringe around her north coast.

The value of that fringe was fully illustrated in World War II, and in the mounting tensions of South East Asia, the strategic importance of islands such as the Solomons Protectorate is fully realized in Washington as well as in Canberra.

President of the new party on Guadalcanal is Mariano Kelesi, a member of the newly elected Legislative Council of the Solomon Islands. At the recent South Pacific Commission delegations from the Gilbert and Ellice islands, both administered by the British government, and with the New Hebrides group, an Anglo-French condominium.

The Solomon Islands in April of this year elected its first legislative council under a constitution adopted in 1964. Now 21 members sit on a council which comprises eight elected members, two members nominated by the high commissioner, and 11 appointed members. The member for Honiara was elected by voters on a common roll. The seven other members were elected by electoral colleges composed of local government council members.

A vast majority of the population of 125,000 of the Solomon Islanders are Melanesian. Physically sturdy, they have curly bleached hair, dark brown skins varying to black, offering a marked contrast to the Polynesians to the east who have lighter shadings, straight dark hair and taller figures.

Kelesi's idea of a federation of the island races has been welcomed. Delegations from the outer islands have shown keen interest in establishing political parties of their own and working towards internal self-government with the aim of federation after independence.

The Solomon Islands are a group of six major and numerous small islands at the eastern tip of New Guinea. They already have a lot in common with their neighbors in Bougainville, Papua and New Guinea. The British Administration has allowed links to develop throughout the island fringe which surrounds the top of Australia.

The Australian government's indirect influence has advanced the changes in the islands, paced by the progressive steps towards independence being made in Papua-New Guinea. Australian currency is the main legal tender of the Solomon Islands. Sterling is not seen in use. All banking facilities in the islands are provided by the Commonwealth Bank of Australia, and Trans-Australia Airlines, the government airline, operates an inter-island service linking them to New Guinea and thus to Australia.

Australia supplies the weather service for the islands, and in the absence of newspapers published in the protectorate, Australian news broadcasts are relayed. There is no dominant native language. Pidgin English has resulted from the babel of tongues spoken on the different islands. But in a world of mass communication and scientific technology, there is no place for Pidgin. Its day is going and simple English is now being taught in all schools.

Most of the islanders own land and have gardens on which they can subsist, but more and more they are becoming familiar with the western "money-style" economy. Unions have appeared, are growing.

With the advance of Papua-New Guinea towards independence — possibly by 1970 — and with self-government expected there in 1968, the political winds of change are sweeping right across the South Pacific.

Brother-In-Law Of Queen Turned Down On Photos

LONDON (AP) — Two London newspapers gleefully reported today that Queen Elizabeth's brother-in-law—who works for a rival paper—was not allowed to take pictures which might have included a bird's-eye view of Buckingham Palace.

The Daily Mirror and the Daily Express reported that the Earl of Snowdon, Princess Margaret's husband, was turned down when he asked to shoot some pictures from one of the tall new buildings near the palace. Snowdon is employed by the Sunday Times as a photographer.

The Mirror reported:

"The photographer-earl, who has a 135-pound ($378) a week job with the Sunday Times, wanted to snap views of London from the new 21-story Westminster City Hall. But a receptionist told him: 'We're sorry. Our instructions are that no one representing an unofficial organization, such as the press, may take photos which might include the palace.'

New Evidence In Family Killing

CRESTLINE (AP) — Sheriff Frank Bland says his officers are hoping to match new evidence to a suspect—"if we ever find one"—in the fatal shooting of an Orange County family.

Bland, sheriff of San Bernardino County, declined to identify the new evidence yesterday, which was found in the newly-built cabin where the bodies of the James A. Boles family were discovered Monday. They had been shot repeatedly with a 22-caliber rifle.

The bodies of Boles, 43, his wife, Darline, 37, and their two sons, Bobby, 13, and Tommy, 12, were found by Mrs. Boles' brother, Floyd Rice, of Long Beach. He had driven to Crestline to investigate when they failed to return.

More Registrars Due For South

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has ordered 10 more federal registrars into the South to register Negroes in five additional counties in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, following the procedures set up by the new Voting Rights Act, designated the additional counties last night. Ten days ago he ordered 18 federal registrars into nine counties in the South to register voters without requiring literacy or similar tests.

The new counties are Jefferson Davis and Jones in Mississippi, Perry and Wilcox in Alabama and Ouachita Parish in Louisiana.

The former Hotel Rafael was built in 1887 by the San Rafael Hotel Co. at a cost of $200,000 and was a center of social life in the Bay Area for several decades.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Good Posture Is Forgotten Art For Too Many In This Country

VAN DELLEN

The admonition "stand, sit, and think tall" often goes unheeded. In other words, good posture is a forgotten art with many of us. We fail to realize that the soldier's stance is not artificial. It was developed after long experience and much thought as requiring the least wear and tear upon muscles, bones, and ligaments.

There is a close relationship between poor posture and backache. Many orthopedic surgeons have told me that 50 per cent of the low back symptoms that develop in later life could be avoided if our children were discouraged from slouching and walking about in that beatnik lackadaisical fashion.

THE STOOP-SHOULDERED youngster fails to develop the muscles and tendons that correctly balance the bones of the back and the pelvis. A weakness in this department alters body mechanics and encourages spinal curvatures and arthritis of weight bearing joints. Permanent changes occur when the condition continues into adulthood.

Good posture improves the appearance. Most of the handsome actors and beautiful actresses obviously are aware of this because of the way they stand and walk. Furthermore, no one yearns for a flat chest. The lungs should have as much room as they need to function properly. A shallow, bony cage is formed whenever the ribs are allowed to slant downward too abruptly.

A TIME-HONORED breathing exercise is of value in developing the chest. Raise the arms above the head slowly as air is inhaled; hold the breath while the arms gradually are dropped to the side. Exhale, and repeat the process several times.

Poor posture can be corrected with exercise. Our leaflet on this is available by enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope along with your request. Spinal curvature of long duration usually requires skilled orthopedic care.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request).

STRENGTHEN MUSCLES

E. M. C. writes: My doctor prescribes a relaxant for spasm of the back muscles. I would be better off, I think, if I could take a preventive. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY

Hot baths and the use of a heating pad ought to relax the spinal muscles. Exercise may be the answer to your problem, as stronger muscles support the back adequately, which means less liklihood of spasm from strain.

SPINAL X-RAYS

Q. U. writes: What is a myelogram?

REPLY

Special X-rays of the spinal cord are taken after the injection of a radiopaque substance. In this way certain defects of the spine, such a herniated disk, can be visualized.

Today's Health Hint — High-heeled shoes increase strain on the lower back.

Tourist Tidal Wave Sweeps Washington

By BONNIE ANGELO
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — If there should be any doubt that ours is a government of the people, by the people and for the people, just send the skeptic to Washington in tourist time.

There's the president, a captive in his own rose garden, unable to sign those bills in the air-conditioned splendor of the East Room because the East Room is full of White House tourists ogling the eagle-legged piano and the great chandeliers.

At the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue, the Senate subway has graduated from an exclusive, clubby little conveyance to crowded turmoil of the Times Square shuttle.

The summer of 1965 is perhaps the heaviest tourist season in Washington's history. Nobody can say with certainty, for it is impossible to clock the explosion of youngsters out of a chartered bus or to count every occupant of the stationwagons driven by scowling fathers, with harassed mothers riding shotgun.

A reasonable estimate for the year is about nine million.

Hotel occupancy is reported to be down a bit, but the rising sound of grinding teeth indicates that the number of in-laws in family guest rooms is reaching a seasonal high.

The Smithsonian Institution and the famous monuments are attracting greater crowds than ever, and more is being done to keep the visitors happy. The Smithsonian's four museums on the mall (which drew 1.9 million visitors in July alone) are kept open nightly until 10 p.m., a great advantage over the unremitting 4:30 p.m. closing of yesteryear.

Washington residents have shooed away from their favorite parking places along the mall, keeping this section open to visitors only—and the resulting display of license plates is in itself a geography lesson.

To help the millions find their way around the capital, a city beautiful to look at and monstrous to drive in, there are uniformed question and answerer guides and gay kiosks rife with printed matter advising what to see.

And all visitors seem to tour the Capitol. There is no longer an attempt to count them. The number passed five million in 1963.

Many visitors sit for at least a while in the House or Senate galleries and put up a good front at being interested in what's droning on below them. (The senators and House members themselves go through no such charade—they mostly talk to each other unless they have the floor.)

Capitol guided tours, costing 25 cents, are long on statistics and short on the real flavor of the place.

At the Potomac River end of the vast mall are the great memorials, and the great crowds. The Lincoln Memorial is the most popular, attracting 583,070 visitors last month, 2.7 million so far this year.

The towering Washington Monument, the city's landmark, is third in tourist numbers, running about 10,000 behind the Jefferson Memorial's July total of 285,153. But there's a reason: The monument is limited by its elevators — only a handful of youngsters with a depressing amount of energy climb the 898 steps.

The White House is also limited in the number of visitors it can manage, although 25,592 went through in one record-breaking day. The president's house is open for only three hours five days a week, but well over a million have already filed through this year.

The White House is slightly down from the all-time high reached last year, an exception which is attributed to the immense impact made by the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. A leveling off of the emotional after-effect is also regarded as the reason for a drop in the number of visitors to the Kennedy gravesite at Arlington National Cemetery and the adjacent Curtis-Lee Mansion.

Tourists are always in season in Washington, but the type of visitor changes with the calendar. In spring the city is invaded by convention groups and chartered busloads of teen-agers making their high school senior trip.

As sumer comes, so do the families on vacation.

Years later they may not know yet how a bill is passed, but may recollect the delight of seeing George Washington's glasses beside his bed in Mount Vernon, the glimpse of President Johnson's dogs frolicking on the White House lawn, the hugeness of a dinosaur and the smallness of a space capsule at the Smithsonian, and the difficulty of finding a parking place in this city of majestic vistas and soothing greenery that is the American capital.

Press Releases Contain Nothing New, Surprising

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — We read the network press releases:

—From "The Beverly Hillbillies": "If Donna Douglas sometimes wonders whether she's really Donna Douglas or Elly May Clampett, it's no surprise."

No, probably not.

—From CBS - TV: " 'There's one big disadvantage in playing practical jokes,' says Art Linkletter. 'People like to see if I can take it as well as dish it out.' "

And some people don't care at all.

—From "Password": "For other people, 'Password' is sheer entertainment. For Allen Ludden, moderator of the word association game . . . it's a way of life."

You're sure you want that printed?

—Release we never finished reading: "Donna Reed is working for ABC news in Texas. Not Donna Reed, the actress, but . . . "

—From NBC - TV: "Producer Ted Yates, during research for his special, 'America The Beautiful'. . .found that Columbus wasn't the only explorer who made a fortunate mistake. The city of Boston was actually founded because of an error. The early 17th century settlers believed that the Charles River was a great inland water route. Soon they found out that it wasn't, but they stayed anyway. In 1636 John Harvard made it official."

So THAT'S what happened!

CHANNEL SWIM: National Basketball Association games will be aired again next season by ABC - TV . . . Leo Durocher is a commentator for baseball's Little League World Series at Williamsport, Pa., on the same network's "Wide World of Sports" Aug. 28.

American Indian Tour Concluded

A Terra Linda history teacher and three students returned yesterday from a 4,000-mile tour of the American Southwest, where they studied the culture of American Indians.

Members of the group were Hugh S. Pennan, who teaches at Terra Linda High School, and students Robert Harrison, son of Col. and Mrs. Matthew C. Harrison, 455 Blackstone Drive, Marinwood; Steve deJung, son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. deJung of 57 Rainier Drive, Marinwood, and Kent Westbay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Westbay of Martinez.

Pennan, who has studied in Mexico, said he was impressed by the dissimilarity of the Mexican Indian and American Indian cultures. He attributed this to the harsher terrain dwelt in by the Americans.

LBJ Keeping Eye On Excise Tax Windfall Risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has directed Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler to prod manufacturers who have not passed on the benefits of the excise tax reduction to consumers to do so immediately.

Presidential press secretary Bill D. Moyers said yesterday Fowler told Johnson that the over-all results were promising but that some manufacturers bear watching.

A report to the President by the Council of Economic Advisers said that by mid-July some 75 per cent of the excise tax cut, figured at $1.7 billion on an annual basis, had been passed on to consumers in the form of lower prices.

Former Cuban Luxury Liner To Be Sold

BALTIMORE, Mod. (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge Roszel C. Thomsen has ordered the sale of the former Cuban luxury liner Ciudad de la Habana, which has settled to the bottom of its shallow anchorage in Baltimore harbor.

The liner has been involved in litigation since 1958. Cuba, through the Czechoslovakian ambassador, has fought for custody of the vessel.

San Anselmo Youth To Study Year In Europe

A San Anselmo youth is among 36 high school students who will spend the next year studying in Europe under a program conducted by the University of Portland.

The student, Frank Mooney, is to leave Vancouver, Canada, on Sunday with others selected for the university's second Christian Cultural Year.

The students will reside and study in Salzburg, Austria, completing enough courses to gain credit for a two-semester school year.

The Institute of European Studies jointly sponsors the study plan. Its purpose is to show students the depth of the Christian religious tradition and its role in the evolution of Western culture and values.

Court Rules UCLA To Get $1-Million Estate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The District Court of Appeals in San Francisco has ruled that UCLA will get the $1 million estate of the late Mrs. Cora Black of Los Gatos.

The decision yesterday may have ended an eight-year fight involving UCLA, the University of Southern California and Mrs. Black's 43 heirs who inherited $1 each.

Mrs. Black's will caused the inheritance to end up in court. She had stipulated that the $1 million estate should go to "the University of Southern California, known as UCLA." The University of Southern California is known as USC.

USC dropped out of the suit two years ago. But the heirs pursued the issue in court.

The court ruled in favor of UCLA because Mrs. Black, who died Dec. 3, 1957, formerly lived near the UCLA campus and had little contact with her heirs.

Missouri Governor Can Succeed Self

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Missouri voters have approved by a wide margin a constitutional amendment which allows a governor to succeed himself.

The first governor who could benefit from it is Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, 42, a Democrat, who sponsored the measure.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL SECTION

The end of the summer vacation draws near. That means there will be laughter and scuffling in the school hallways again, and new clothes and supplies. Doors will open soon and it will be back-to-school time!

SIGHTLESS TEACHER—Associate Professor Leslie Zacharias of the German department of Carthage College, Kenosha, Wis., gets the attention of the class when he writes on the blackboard. He has been blind since the age of 17, but knows four languages.

He Lost His Sight But Forged Ahead

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — When Leslie Zacharias was a 17-year-old school boy in Oshkosh, Wis., he lost his sight in an illness. But he didn't let the handicap interrupt his high school education, and today Zacharias is an assistant professor of languages at Carthage College, Kenosha, Wis.

Zacharias is fluent in four languages. He studied at Oshkosh State University, the University of Wisconsin, and several German Universities and did six years of doctoral work in Germany at Munich and Goettingen.

Zacharias says: "My teaching methods are essentially the same as those of sighted teachers. Naturally, I do less blackboard work, but I do use it, especially when introducing new words."

Zacharias says he finds Braille is too cumbersome and slow, so he spends much of his time listening to tape recorded materials from libraries in the U.S. and abroad. He also listens to students who read him articles on topical matters.

The professor gets around the Carthage campus without help and commutes from his home in a faculty car pool.

One of the 110 underclassmen in his German classes describes Zacharias this way: "He's a tough one, but he's good." Others say: "His eyes may be blind, but his mind isn't."

Barber Approves No Shaving Rule

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — There was a time when men chose last names indicative of their professions.

That apparently wasn't the case with Col. James E. Barber of Nashville, an aide to State Adjutant Gen. Van D. Nunally Jr.

Barber told Chattanooga National Guard members who were growing beards that they didn't have to shave before going to summer camp.

Many of the men were growin whiskers as part of the celebration of Chattanooga's 150th anniversary.

He's Big Boy After Fall

BENTON, Ky. (AP) — Bob T. Long, who has been active in school affairs for many years, recalls the first grader who slipped in the hall and skinned his knee.

"Remember, big boys don't cry," he was told.

"I'm not gonna cry," the youngster replied. "I'm gonna sue!"

New Breed Of Teacher Is On Scene

The new breed of teacher enlivening the American scene is convinced he can give your child a better education—and furthermore, that he must.

"No longer do teachers consider teaching to be a calling separate from the mainstream of American life," said Dr. Frederick L. Hipp, Executive Secretary of the New Jersey Education Association at a recent meeting of the National Education Association. "It is no longer some kind of monastic order that sustains its breath on early vows of dedication. . . . These young people are determined to do an effective job of teaching. They identify education as a great force for social betterment."

One of the best examples of the modern teacher's determination to put first things first is the "Time To Teach" project. The project is marshalling complaints of teachers throughout the country that add up to a major headache of the profession—the mass of tasks, duties, chores, assignments, interruptions, sometimes degrading, that absorb precious school days, leaving only bits and pieces of time for teaching.

Believing that the misuse of a teacher's time, a misuse that can turn a full-time staff into part-time teachers, can only be corrected through solutions developed by the teachers themselves within their own buildings, the "Time To Teach" project tries to point a general way in which problems might be solved.

Computer New Teacher Helper

The newest teacher helper is the computer. It can program student schedules, prepare grade reports, keep attendance records, library cards, and school lunch data.

And for everything clerical a teacher doesn't have to do, time is gained for what he wants to do—give more attention to your child. So says the National Education Association.

Jay Fast, executive secretary of the Association for Educational Data Systems, explains that machines designed for computer-based instruction can, in addition to building individual programs for each student as he goes along, "remember" all that Johnny has done with the material he's using, and alert the teacher when the child needs extra work.

Government Leaders Best Education Yet

The current crop of U.S. legislators, governors and executives is one of the best-educated groups in American history.

All but two of the governors of the 50 states have some education beyond high school. And all of the governors elected last fall have some higher education. Twenty-six of the governors received all or part of their education at state universities or land-grant colleges in the states which they now govern.

Ninety-four of the 100 U.S. Senators have some education beyond high school. And, as in the case of the governors, all those elected in 1964 have some higher training. Forty-seven senators received at least some education from public institutions in the states they represent.

Only 6.7 per cent of the members of the House of Representatives have no higher education, compared with 8.3 per cent in the last congress. Almost half of them studied at state institutions or land-grant colleges.

Both President Johnson and Vice-President Humphrey received their degrees from state institutions of higher education. Johnson got a B.S. degree from Southwest State Teachers College and attended Georgetown Law School. Humphrey graduated from the Denver College of Pharmacy and the University of Minnesota, and received a master's degree from Louisiana State University.

Negro History In Textbooks

"Invisibility" of the Negro in California's U.S. history textbooks will soon be a peculiarity of another era.

First evidence of a "new look" in textbook treatment of minorities arrives in the classrooms this fall in the form of new fourth grade history and geography books which give unprecedented emphasis to minority groups.

The new fourth grade texts will be followed later by books with a similar emphasis for fifth and eighth grade history, geography and civics classes.

The Legislature this year passed Assembly Bill 580 by Assemblyman Mervyn M. Dymally (D-Los Angeles). It requires that California texts give adequate attention to racial minorities and correctly portray their role in our society.

Russians In A Hurry To Obtain Educations

BUKHARA, UZBEK, SOVIET UNION (AP) — The two-motored plane taxis in on a dirt runway. Going into town, the car passes turbaned Moslems on their donkeys, headed for the market. The dust blows up a storm that sweeps across the adobe huts in which most residents still live.

Time looks as though it were standing still in Bukhara — or even going backward.

But educationally, it isn't. Compulsory elementary schooling has taken hold in this Soviet state adjacent to Afghanistan.

An educational program was conceived to blend the complex language background of the young students. For some, Uzbek was the mother tongue. For others, it was Tajik, a language with Persian origins. German was more universal to the area than Russian.

The Russian authorities obligingly blended these lingustic peculiarities by setting aside one day a week when the children could speak their own tongue, one day a week for speaking Russian, and the rest of the week talk was in German.

Except for this flexible approach to languages, there is no permissiveness in the Russian school. By American standards, classes are excessively quiet. The student speaks only when called on to recite. Art work is non-individualistic. Illustrative drawings by the students look almost like carbon copies of each other.

The same subdued atmosphere persists even on the playground. The children play quietly, or sit on benches talking.

There's a good reason for this approach. Russia is in a hurry to bring learning to an area where only a tiny percentage under the Czarist regime could read and write.

Supervisors are sent out from Moscow to set up the school program. Graduates of the equivalent of teachers colleges are required to spend three years teaching in any village to which they're ordered.

Fun and games have no place in the Russian school. Education is a serious business.

Child Should Start Language Study Early

WASHINGTON, D.C. — There was a time when many American school children brought a foreign language to school with them, and learned English as a second language.

Now the choice of second languages available in American schools is enormous (not every language in every school though), and we are beginning to lose our reputation as the tongue-tied Americans who go abroad.

"Should My Child Study a Foreign Language?" asks a National Education Assn. (NEA) Department of Foreign Languages leaflet. The answer: Yes.

Language study should begin, says the NEA department, as early as possible with the understanding that there is little benefit from early instruction if there is a long gap before it can be picked up again in high school. The longer the sequence of study, the better, and if a language is to be continued in college, it should be one of the 12th-grade subjects.

Parks Used As Schools

Parks used to be for playing. Now they're for schooling too.

The idea of establishing complexes of schools in park-like surroundings serving the whole range of students from kindergarten to junior college, is catching on in several parts of the country, according to the National Education Association.

The South Florida Education Center near Fort Lauderdale last year served students in grades seven through junior college on 500 acres of an abandoned airport.

Indiana University and the City of Bloomington has a complex of 13 buildings constructed for a variety of educational programs on a 43-acre campus. The University Schools include a nursery for three and four-year-olds, classes on up through senior high school, and special facilities for the education and training of the mentally retarded.

$2 Billion To Run State's Schools

It will cost more than $2 billion to run California's public schools during the 1965-66 school year. But is this vast sum really a drain on the state's wealth and economy?

A new concept of education, now accepted by most economists, answers with an an emphatic "no." This interpretation, backed by the United States Chamber of Commerce, believes expenditures for education are one of the best forms of investment.

There is no longer any doubt that education creates a kind of human capital which pays a steady return to the economy.

Set Study Schedule

Encourage a study schedule, the California Assn. of School Administrators urge. Begin by helping the child to develop a weekly time schedule for all his activities including sleep, personal grooming, meals, attending school, work, recreation and exercise, social activities, home study.

Innovation In Small Districts

Your school system doesn't have to be large and loaded with money in order to lead the way in innovation.

Here are some examples which symbolize the spirit of change in today's schools:

Thirty per cent of each Oak Glen High School, in West Virginia, student's time is unassigned.

Owatonna Schools, Owatonna, Minn., are teaching mathematics to kindergarten children.

Bangor High School, Bangor, Me., is the only large secondary school in the state that has broken the 45-50 minute lock-step schedule into classes running for 25, 45, 55 or 70 minutes in a variety of combinations.

Federal aid to California's public schools does not contribute more than six per cent of the total revenue used to operate the state's elementary and secondary schools.

Half Of All Americans Now Enrolled In Some Course

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON — It's fantastic but true—half of all Americans are going to school.

Of the estimated total population of 195 million, 97.6 million are engaged in furthering their education, formally or informally.

According to the best estimates available there are:

—53 million in elementary and secondary schools.

—5.3 million in colleges, universities and junior colleges.

—28 million in adult education courses.

—4.3 million taking correspondence courses.

—4 million enrolled in extension division courses and programs offered by colleges and universities.

—2 million members of the armed forces taking courses which will be valuable to them in civilian life after they leave the service.

—600,000 youngsters in preschool programs such as "operation headstart."

—400,000 persons, primarily high school dropouts, studying and working in the Jobs Corps and in programs sponsored by the Manpower Training and Development Act.

There is, of course, some duplication in the figures. A serviceman, for instance, may be counted twice if the courses he is taking are by correspondence.

Whatever the exact percentage, the figures prove that education is the nation's biggest business, and getting bigger every year.

There are a number of reasons for the increased interest in education by people of all ages.

Perhaps the single biggest reason is that in an era of exploding scientific and technological knowledge, muscle power is going out of style. More than ever before in history, education is a prime prerequisite for getting and holding a job.

Another reason is that the U.S. population has been getting younger every year. On July 1, 1964, 46 per cent of the population was under age 25, and 42 per cent was under age 21.

The median age of all Americans was 28.5 years in 1963, compared to 30.2 in 1950 and an estimated 25.9 in 1975. Median is almost the same as average in this case—it means there are as many under that age as over it.

Another reason that Americans are turning to education is the increased leisure time available, resulting from shorter work weeks and earlier retirement.

The percentage of Americans furthering their education is almost certain to rise in the years ahead.

Children will be going to school at an earlier age with the spread of pre-school programs.

They will be staying longer, too. A survey of 13,000 college freshmen by the Educational Testing Service showed that 6 of every 10 planned to go to professional or graduate school after college.

In 1962-63, about 500 institutions of higher learning were unable to fill 1,306 teaching vacancies for which funds had been budgeted.

Even with all the problems, however, the college president was probably right when he said:

"It can scarcely be more prophetic to contemplate the higher education of the masses today than it was to look forward to the common education of the masses a few centuries ago.

"The latter nears its realization; endeavor now begins to reach toward the former."

What he said is even more pertinent today than it was when Charles R. Van Hise, then president of the University of Wisconsin, made that remark just 50 years ago.

But it is more than just counting those who start early and stay late.

According to Dr. William H. Hartwig of the University of Texas, today's youngsters face the prospect of going back to school every few years throughout their working lives.

Science and technology are finding new knowledge so fast, he says, that what is taught in the classroom today is obsolete tomorrow.

This is true of technicians, whose jobs simply disappear. It also is true of professional men and women who will fall by the wayside if they don't keep apace of new development in the field.

As an example: every new discovery in the field of medicine means a "homework assignment" for thousands of doctors.

For once in his harried and harrassed life, today's educator has a bigger problem than money in trying to do his job. Money he can find, teachers he can't.

It's one thing, for instance, for the government to set up a project like "operation headstart" to give 600,000 disadvantaged children a better chance of succeeding in school.

It's something else again to find the thousands of qualified teachers needed to make the operation a success.

The state colleges and universities can expand and expand to meet the demand for college entrance. Their big problem is to find the professors to take over the classrooms.

Teacher Drop-out Problem Hit

NEW YORK (UPI)—Which came first: The student drop-out problem or the teacher's flight from the classroom?

Robert N. Bush, Stanford University education professor, says the high drop-out rate among teachers must be reduced before the student drop-out problem can be solved.

Bush, speaking at the New York Conference of the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards, noted that more than half the teachers who received teaching certificates last June will not be teaching two years hence.

Joe College Invading Home Class

Men are invading what once was thought to be purely a feminine realm—home economics.

A survey conducted by the American Home Economics Association shows that 701 male students were undergraduate home economics majors, last year in 65 United States colleges and universities.

The men are most likely to choose food service management as their area of specialization. Most of them are preparing for careers with hospitals; hotels and restaurant chains. The men receive the same bachelor's degree in home economics as the women, although the survey showed most of them would prefer not to be called home economists when they graduate.

Despite the inroads being made by men, home economics still is primarily a woman's field. Of the 40,000 estimated home economics majors now in school, 98.5 per cent are women. There are 450 colleges and universities offering the home economics major, with 390 in the coeducational category.

California ranks first among the states in size of instructional staff, in school age population and in total annual expenditure.

California ranks fifth among the 50 states in the amount spent annually on the education of each pupil.

College Dropout Usually Proves To Be Loner, Not Sure Of Goals

Junior has graduated from high school and is on his way to college. Everyone joins the celebration, looking forward to his brilliant academic career. Two years later Junior is out of school, a college dropout.

Estimates of the number of students who drop out of college without graduating range from almost nothing to as high as 40 per cent, and are often misleading. Many of the students listed as dropouts are merely transferring to another institution, or have interrupted their education temporarily for military service, or to replenish finances, and will return to graduate.

Studies by colleges indicate however, that between 10 and 15 per cent of the students who enter as freshmen will leave school without a diploma. The most common reasons for dropouts include academic failure, lack of funds, disinterest, transfer, health and, for the girls, marriage.

The University of Illinois did a followup study two years ago of 1,332 young men who had entered the school as freshmen 10 years before. They found 70 per cent had completed their education — either at Illinois or elsewhere — within the 10-year period. However, only 50 per cent had graduated by the end of the first five years. The others had dropped out. Thirty per cent returned to school and two-thirds of that 30 per cent had gotten degrees. (The remainder were still working toward a diploma.)

The fact still remains that there is a substantial percentage who do leave, never to return. The University of Rhode Island, which estimated that between 11 and 14 per cent of the undergraduate student body leaves the campus each year, has begun a study to learn how to prevent such dropouts. Before students withdraw from the college they are asked to complete a four-page questionnaire giving their reasons for leaving, extracurricular activities, grades, personal problems, reasons for attending college, etc.

Preliminary results of the survey, which started about one year ago, indicate the average college dropout is a loner, who, contrary to what might be expected, does not participate in many outside activities or have an excessively active social life. Chances are he attended college only because of his parents' urging, and is usually unsure about future plans and vocational choice.

Many of the students who leave say they plan to return. This is supported by the records of the University which show that last September, 134 former students who were not in class the previous semester, returned to the campus.

Approximately half of those who leave do so because of academic failure. Another large group just doesn't bother to register for the second semester. The largest percentage of dropouts seems to come during the freshman year, at the end of either the first or second semester, indicating the student just can't adjust to the university

HANGING ON TO SUMMER

It's been a long, hot summer but it's almost over for these youngsters of the Edna Maguire School, Mill Valley. But who can blame them if, like children everywhere, they have a final fling before settling down to the hard business of learning.

Earthquake Still Complicates Alaskan Educators' Progress

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — School will open here this fall, but not quite as usual.

Alaskan education, which has always been complicated by problems of distance, weather and a mushrooming school population, was dealt a further blow with the earthquake last year.

A report by the superintendent of schools for Anchorage indicated there was more than $10 million of damage done to school facilities throughout the state. Some schools were completely destroyed; others heavily damaged.

The superintendent, Mr. Don Dafoe, also has noted that there would be a serious loss of revenue for education this year. Due to the heavy damage, many taxes will be uncollectable. Dafoe said the two major requirements to set Alaskan education back on its feet were federal grants for reconstruction and rehabilitation and grants to offset revenue losses.

The problem of rebuilding is further compounded by the state's huge size and cold weather — temperatures of 60 degrees below zero — which make even the simplest education a problem. Also, a terrific enrollment jump has hit the schools in past years. There were 54,387 students in state-run schools last year, compared to only 10,997 in 1950.

The state government is not the only agency in Alaska involved in education in a big way. The U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs runs schools which are attended by 6,300 students.

Part of their operation is a huge airlift, run each spring and fall, to transport 936 children to Wrangell Institute and Mt. Edgecumbe High School, two boarding schools run by the BIA.

The Wrangell Institute is an elementary school, drawing students from remote native villages and providing education also for orphans and children from broken homes.

Mt. Edgecumbe's students include natives — Aleuts, Eskimos and Indians — whose parents do not have the financial means to enroll them as boarding students in high schools away from their own villages.

Each spring and fall the "big lift" begins flying students between their homes and the school facilities. For some of the children who live on the Aleutian Islands, the round trip covers more than 3,000 miles. The transport is an around-the-clock operation involving most airlines operating in the state.

Although operations will continue at both of these schools this fall, several of the villages from which the students come have been completely demolished, meaning relocation for hundreds.

Health Checkup For Youngster Good Practice

Health checkups for youngsters before school begins are a good practice, according to Dr. J. J. Alderson, president of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn.

He suggested a complete medical checkup, including a tuberculin skin test or X-ray, for each child returning to school next month.

"Now, not after classes begin, is the time to find out whether the youngster's sight, hearing and teeth are in good shape," he said. "Warning the teacher ahead of time about any disorders of the heart, lungs, nose and throat will help her to understand and instruct the child."

Parents are urged to be certain that vaccinations and booster shots for diphtheria, tetanus, smallpox, polio and measles are up-to-date before school begins.

Idealism Found In Students

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Gerald Van Pool, director of Student Activities for the National Assn. of Secondary School Principals, has long believed that teen-agers are not only capable of assuming responsibility, but can also be excellent leaders.

This past summer, he reports, many of them worked hard to earn money for a week at a summer leadership workshop.

Some 72 such workshops were set by state associations of student councils all across the country. The youngsters attending them were concerned about how they personally could help solve some of today's problems: Maintaining good community relations; developing community service programs, helping people get along with people of different backgrounds.

Prep Students Absorb College Level Studies

In the past 10 years, thousands of high school students have taken college level courses under the Advanced Placement Program of the College Entrance Examination Board. Last year alone, some 37,000 students across the country were enrolled in such courses.

The program, begun in 1955, is centered on the idea that some students can do college work while still in secondary school, and that these students should receive a chance to do such work and recognition for accomplishing it.

Today, college-level courses are offered in 11 subjects. After completing the course, the student takes an exam to determine his proficiency. Depending on the college, the successful student may be placed in a higher-level course once in college or may be given credit toward graduation.

When the program was established, some 1,229 from 104 secondary schools were enrolled. Now 37,600 students are taking part.

Test results last spring were sent to an estimated one-third of the nation's colleges, including M.I.T., Yale, Harvard, Northwestern, the University of Michigan and the University of California.

Essay portions of the final exam are graded on a five-point basis, not on the grounds of either passage or failure. A survey of 22,600 exams taken by 16,000 students in the spring of 1963 showed some recognition from the college, either in the form of higher placement or college credit.

Total California enrollment this year will be 365,000 compared to 354,972 last year.

Mining Now Held A Career Requiring An Education

The picture of the typical miner as a man with pick, shovel and helmet is as outdated as the horse and buggy, says Prof. M. D. Hassialis, head of Columbia University's Henry Krumb School of Mines.

Professor Hassialis says today's mining expert needs a broad educational background.

The increased education is needed, says Hassialis, because the scope of mining is now world-wide, and the mining expert must understand local politics, culture and sociology.

Financial rewards in the mining field are generous. Professor Hassialis says beginners with a major company can expect from $600 to $900 a month, with an eventual top-bracket salary of $75,000 annually. Hassials points to Henry Krumb, the man after whom Columbia's school is named. Krumb came to the school of mines on a $200 scholarship and 25 years later left a mining endowment of $16 million.

Be Realistic About Child's Ability

Develop a realistic understanding of your child's ability in comparison with other children about the same age, school administrators urge. To help you do this, find out what children are like at various ages, according to research studies.

For this, get such books as "The Child From Five to 10" and "Youth—the Years From 10 to 16" by Gesell and Ilg from your local library. Also ask the teacher for information on how your child compares with other children of the same age.

State Getting Ready For Language Classes

California is continuing to train teachers of foreign languages at the elementary school level with an eye toward next fall when it will be compulsory in the state to teach a foreign language to all students, beginning no later than grade six.

The language requirement, authorized by the state legislature in 1961 to begin July 1, 1965, means that additional teachers will be needed for the 500,000 students who will be in grades six, seven or eight in the fall of 1965.

In connection with this problem Pomona College held a summer language institute for elementary school teachers of Spanish. The institute was financed by the National Defense Education Act and was part of a government program to provide special training in Spanish, French, German, Russian and Chinese for elementary and secondary school language teachers in all parts of the nation.

The Pomona College program, which included 54 teachers, stressed the newer materials available for the teaching of Spanish and featured a daily sixth grade Spanish demonstration course.

Special Education Funds Increase

$175,000 last year.

$82 million this year.

These two figures illustrate more dramatically than any words the new emphasis being placed on special education for California's culturally disadvantaged rural and city slum children to compensate for severe shortcomings in their home environment.

Last year the state's only investment in this field was $175,000 for pilot compensatory programs in 24 school districts.

This year the state will invest $3 million and the federal government, mainly through President Johnson's Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, will provide $79 million to help local California school districts develop effective compensatory education programs.

Are Our Children Losing Childhood?

By MARY KIRK

(Mary Kirk is a counselor at Roosevelt Junior High School, Bellflower Unified School District, Los Angeles County.)

The other day I happened upon a magazine printed several months ago, but one that I had missed. It explained how parents might teach their babies how to read. It seems you just point out everything and everybody in the house and the baby learns by association.

I couldn't help but feel a little sad when I read this.

Another magazine has arranged to provide anxious parents of babies with kits to encourage early reading.

What will babies read when they have learned how? The newspapers? Magazines? So-called comic books? How will parents explain to their three-year-olds what all the violent words mean? Have we really reached the place in our society where children can no longer be children, and even babies must be taught all of the miseries of society before they even learn how to play?

Somewhere I have read that it should be the inalienable right of every child to have a few sure things in life: A hill to run down, to feel the fresh breeze in his face, to walk barefoot down a dusty lane in the warm sunshine, a little stream to fish in, and each evening a certain dependable star to wish on.

In our junior high schools we have far too many children suffering from stomach ulcers; elementary health records show the same phenomena. Children are being pushed to grow up so fast that all of their childhood days are compressed into a few months. They must study harder, learn more, and take more courses than we did a generation ago. Colleges proclaim daily that admission is going to be made stiffer. High schools are increasing the pressure; junior highs have to keep adding subjects required by legislation whether or not the child needs them.

Where will it all end?

Our children are now going steady in the third grade, becoming sophisticates about sex by the seventh, getting married in high school and divorced parents by 19! Is this what we want?

I only know one thing: I feel an unutterable sadness at the sight of little girls in black nylons and bleached hair walking with a little boy who proudly displays his expertness with a cigarette.

Somehow, somewhere, we must return childhood to our children.

School Type Determines Enrolment

Young people planning to go to college would do well to decide just what type of education they want before they pick a school.

A survey of 13,000 college freshmen by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N.J., shows that student populations vary from one college to another in terms of educational purpose.

A vocational orientation is most characteristic of freshmen at technical schools. Emphasis on scholarly study is usual at small, independent, liberal arts colleges. Students on public university and college campuses tend toward extra-curricular activities.

Parents Find New Mathematics Confusing, Tough As Homework

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Parents who studied the three R's in school wouldn't recognize that third R—'rithmetic—as it is learned by their children today.

Pupils in elementary school are likely to come home talking a strange language about subjects their parents didn't even know existed. But don't let yourself be scared off by the unfamiliar names or new symbols. Actually the "new mathematics" is based on simple numerical laws adapted to our modern world of computers and technology.

The mathematical revolution started when the Commission on Mathematics of the College Entrance Examination Board reported in 1959 that our teaching of math was helplessly outmoded. They made recommendations—general and specific—which were subsequently implemented in curricula by such organizations as the federally-financed School Mathematics Study Group.

The Commission's report stressed understanding. With the new math children are taught to understand many of the simple mathematical phenomena we take for granted. For example, we all know that "three plus two equals five" and "two plus three equals five" are the same thing. But how do we explain the fact that the addition process is reversible? Under the old system the child was taught "two plus three" and "three plus two" as separate operations. Now he consciously learns that the process can be reversed.

Dr. Julius Hlavaty, last director of the now defunct Commission, says the new math is actually a point of view rather than a specific plan dealing with the content of a course. We teach children about simple processes in relation to their real life experience and then transfer this knowledge to the abstract concepts of mathematics. For example, we can combine two apples and three apples to get five apples, but this is not addition. We cannot add objects, only numbers, since addition is a purely mathematical concept. After the child has learned to combine objects, he is shown the abstraction which can apply to many different situations.

Critics of the new math, such as Dr. Morris Kline, chairman of the math department at New York University's Washington Square College and director of electromagnetic research of NYU's Institute of Mathematical Science, say the new math is too sophisticated and abstract, going over the level of the children and teaching them things they don't need to know unless they are going to mathematicians.

Dr. Kline also contends that the older mathematics has not become outmoded. He does not argue with the importance of the new subjects such as set theory or Boolean algebra. He does claim however, that they are not needed by the beginning student who is getting his first real taste of mathematics.

If you have children in elementary school, be prepared to learn a whole new language before you try to help them with their arithmetic.

The "new mathematics" being taught in over half the country's schools is based on new concepts, terms and even a new number system.

Set theory holds an important place in the curriculum. A set is merely a group of things. For example, a child might face a set consisting of a ball and a balloon in union with a set consisting of a box alone. Together they equal another set consisting of a ball, balloon and box. Note that sets are in union with one another. Sets are not added, only numbers are added. The children then transform the objects in the sets into numbers: two plus one equals three.

Another operation which can be performed on sets besides union, is intersection. Take a set which includes a dog, a table and a chair. This is a set consisting of objects with four legs. Take another set with bird, a person and a dog. This consists of things which are alive. At what point do the two sets intersect? Is there any object in either set which has the properties of both sets? Obviously the dog is both a four-legged thing and is alive. Thus, the dog is the intersection of the two sets. Set operations are usually called Venn diagrams after their English inventor. In a Venn diagram, intersection is represented like this:

The binary number system is also introduced. This system has only two digits and is used in computers since the machines have only two positions, 1 (on) and 0 (off). Our present number system is based on the number 10. Each place in a number represents some multiple of 10. For example, the number 232 means two 100's, three 10's and two ones. In the binary system each place is represented by a multiple of two. Here the number 232 would mean two fours, three twos and two one or 16.

Dr. Julius Hlavaty, a former director of the Commission on Mathematics of the College Entrance Examination Board, says that through learning different number systems the child really understands the meanings of numbers. Ordinarily when a child adds 24 and 48 he begins by saying four plus eight are 12, put down two and carry one. Actually he is carrying not one, but 10. With the binary system, the child learns that any number can be used as a base and the one he is carrying merely represents another number.

According to Dr. Hlavaty however, this "language" is the spectacular part of the new math but not the most important.

Retired Professionals Continuing Their Studies

Retired professional men and women, accustomed to an active life, but now with time on their hands, are finding new horizons at the Institute for Retired Professionals, part of the curriculum of the New School in New York City.

Launched four years ago, the Institute plan means retirees can take one daytime course at the New School per semester, have free run of the library, and can take part in such diverse activities as foreign language conversational groups; theater, art and world affairs discussion groups; write and edit a newsletter, and take part in community service programs in the city.

The New School sees mutual benefits from the Institute. The community benefits from the activities of these talented professionals, and the individual finds new zest for living and learning from his work.

In many cases, these older students find second careers as professional and community leaders, some even finding their way to the New School faculty.

Encourage Home Study In Child

Encourage home study and show interest in your child's assigned homework; if necessary, help to understand assignments, state school administrators advise.

If you have questions about its value or purpose, discuss the matter with the teacher. And before the pupil takes his homework back to school, encourage him to proofread written work to insure correct spelling.

Bill Of Rights Teaching Goal Not To Be Easy

Effective teaching of the Bill of Rights, a major goal of the California State Board of Education, is not going to be achieved easily.

Numerous tricky elements, especially tricky to overcome, are inhibiting and restricting teachers in their efforts to cope with Bill of Rights concepts in a meaningful way for students.

Joyce Fulton, first-place winner of the Constitutional Rights Foundation's teaching the Bill of Rights contest and American government teacher at Woodside High School, points out that any discussion of the Bill of Rights involves highly controversial issues.

"While this is generally recognized," she added, "I'm not sure the public realizes the enormous impact a single negative phone call to my administrator can have."

The fear is great, whether imagined or real, of being misinterpreted, of having to defend oneself out of the context of the original experience, of being at the mercy of those who wish their view and none other to be taught.

"To teach the Bill of Rights in a meaningful way," Miss Fulton said, "is to require of the teacher a conscious choice to immerse himself and his class in controversy.

Rules Are Given In Skipping Grades

To skip or not to skip is a question faced by many parents. Each decision must be made on the basis of the individual involved, but two Ridgewood, N.J., educators have proposed a plan to give general guidance.

Stanley Winters, Ridgewood school psychologist, and Daniel Daly, principal of Ridgewood's Willard Elementary School, suggest 10 standards be considered before letting a student skip a grade in school. They are:

1. Academic maturity. The student should be really outstanding before being skipped. He should be able to do work several years above the level of the next highest grade in all subject areas.

2. Intellectual maturity. The student should have superior reasoning powers and a high score on one of the standard intelligence tests.

3. Physically maturity. The student should be able to hold his own physically and should be able to play adequately with students in the higher grade.

4. Social maturity. The student should have interests similar to those of children in the higher grade.

5. Emotional maturity. He should be persistent and want to learn.

6. Chronological age. The student should not be particularly young. It's better if he's in the middle or upper age bracket of his group.

7. Teacher placement. The new teacher should be intellectually stimulating and sympathetic to older children. Class size also is important; the smaller the class, the better.

8. Parental attitude. Parents should understand the reason for acceleration and should be willing to help with the child's work.

9. Other children. The skip should not effect other children in the family.

10. Attendance. The student should be healthy and should have missed very little school.

More than one million U.S. children are attending school in overcrowded classrooms and almost two million are forced to study in outmoded, unhealthy and even hazardous school buildings.

Wise teachers know they're not in any popularity contest to win over their charges. Pupils may enjoy and have fun with the "just pals" kind of teacher, but they respect the take-charge types.

U.N. School Miniature Of World

The United Nations International School on Manhattan's upper East Side is a sort of cross section of the world in miniature. Almost 500 students from more than 60 countries study at the school which includes many children of U.N. personnel.

The school was first established in 1947 to meet the needs of the international civil servants working at the U.N. The first classes were held in the guest house of the U.N. headquarters in Lake Success, N.Y. When the U. N. moved to New York City, so did the school. Primary classes began in Queens and later were expanded to add both primary and secondary classes in a former junior high school building in Manhattan. Now the school is planning a new building which will be able to serve 1,000 students and is probably to be housed on the United Nations grounds.

The International School is open to children of U.N. personnel as well as to other children in the area. Children of U.N. employes get preference, and the school's director points out he already is deluged with applications.

The school's over-all objective is to "promote and provide an international education conforming to the spirit an principles of the United Nations . . . " In keeping with this aim, the school makes no distinction among its students in terms of race, color or creed. It tries to provide a curriculum which will enable the child to transfer at any time, if desired, to a school in his own, or another country. It also tries to help the foreign child adjust to American life.

The normal language of instruction in the school is English, with French taught as the usual second language. Students whose native tongue is French, may get primary classes taught in that language.

If enough students want the course, classes also are offered in such tongues as Chinese, Danish, German, Hindi, Russian, Spanish and Urdu.

At present, about 60 per cent children of U.N. personnel.

Division Is Sharp Over How To Help In Reading

Let's start with a flat statement with which every educator will agree: "Reading is the single most important skill a child will ever learn in school."

And that's just about the end of the unanimous agreement.

MOST educators also agree that children today aren't reading as well as they should, or need to read. But there is a sharp division about the reasons and possible cures.

The number of children seriously retarded in reading is anyone's guess. Morton Botel's guess is 10 to 15 million, "so seriously retarded in reading that they can't understand their textbooks." Botel is reading consultant and assistant superintendent of the Bucks County schools in Levittown, Pa., and past president of the International Reading Association.

Dr. Ellen Drews, a noted researcher in education, estimates that 40 per cent or more of all junior high school students are two or three years retarded in reading. Dr. James B. Conant, president emeritus of Harvard and author of "The American High School Today," said that in every high school visited by his study staff there was often as many as 15 per cent of the pupils reading at the 4th, 5th and 6th grade levels.

If just one of these experts is right—just one—then it would appear that reading instruction is indeed in a bad way in this country.

But what to do about it? Ah, there's the rub.

There is, first, great disagreement on the use of a phonetic approach versus the whole - word recognition or "look-say" method.

At the risk of over simplification:

In the whole-word recognition approach which swept the nation in the 1930s, children are first taught to recognize words by the way they look. They are given clues: "look for the tail in the word 'monkey,' " and "see the two eyes peering at you in the word 'moon.' "

Only after a number of these words have been learned by sight is there any instruction in phonics, or the sound of letters. Depending on the reading books used, the number of words to be learned by recognition alone may range from 25 or 30 up to 75 or 80 or more before phonics is introduced.

In the phonics approach, children first learn the sounds of individual letters, then learn to pronounce whole words. At the same time, they are learning some words by "sight"—those which don't follow ordinary phonetic rules.

This fact should be kept in mind: phonics is part of the "look-say" method, "look-say" is part of the phonics method. The argument is about when phonics should be introduced and how much it should be stressed.

Children using readers in the "Phonetic Keys to Reading" program published by the Economy Co. start out by learning all the vowel sounds. Children using the "look-say" "Dick and Jane" series published by Scott, Foresman don't have the vowel sounds mastered until the second grade.

While phonics would appear to be the logical approach, the English language itself isn't always logical.

Public Schools Enter Foreign Language Era

California's public schools enter a new era in foreign language instruction this fall.

The Casey Bill, which requires that all districts provide foreign language instruction in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, goes into effect for the first time at the beginning of the 1965-66 school year.

The result will be a tremendous increase in the number of California youngsters exposed to a foreign language.

Delays in implementing the bill, which was approved by the State Legislature and signed by Governor Brown in 1961, have been necessary because of difficulties school districts have faced in preparing effective programs.

Severe problems continue to plague the elementary - level program.

A shortage of qualified teachers, a basic requirement to an effective program, still persists.

Many school districts are having difficulty raising the additional funds necessary to hire teachers and to purchase equipment and materials necessary for a good program.

In terms of pupil-teacher ratios, California ranks near the top of the nation in large class size.

The teacher is appreciative of good work and effort, remembering that when a virtue is praised, a vice may disappear.

In explaining rules, the teacher tries to help students understand the reasons behind the rules.

Not Too Much, Not Too Little In This World Of Hurry, Hurry

WASHINGTON — Excessive pressures of modern life, and some of the physical and mental symptoms, ranging from ulcers to the ultimate — suicide — are not "for adults only." Children, too, are victims of pressure.

But concerned fathers and mothers, facing another busy school season, soon discover there's a paradox in the middle of the problem. Helping children survive and succeed in school—and life—in an era of hurry and change is a tricky matter of not too much; not too little. And it's hard to know the difference; especially when what is right for one child may be very wrong for another.

Ideas expressed in the National Education Assn's. (NEA) frequent forums on the subject (in print or on the speaker's platform) offer no hard-and-fast rules for protecting children from harmful pressures, but are important aids to understanding what is involved in this complex matter.

Dr. Mollie S. Schildkrout, child psychiatrist, former pediatrician and teacher, recently alerted the NEA-AMA Joint Committee on Health Problems and Education to some of the different kinds of pressure and pressured children.

She described the problems of a group of children who are too dependent upon their mothers (who were in turn too dependent upon their mothers) and the "separation anxiety" which occurs when a child first goes off to school. This is not the serious problem that it sometimes precedes—that of a child trying very hard to please his parents through academic achievement beyond his ability. The child is under strain; the mother gets overinvolved in homework (increasing dependency and undermining confidence), and the pattern of tension and fear of failure to please can build into an unhappy impasse.

Then there is the child of low average ability or neurological impairment who may suffer if his parents do not or cannot accept his limitations. Dr. Schildkrout calls these "mildly damaged children," and, while acknowledging the difficulty of diagnosing their condition, she deplores the lack of special teaching techniques and facilities needed to help them do their best.

But the largest group of children whose performances in school are likely to fall below their potential ability are, according to Dr. Schildkrout, those with a "personality trait disorder—passive or passive-aggressive." She explains that the number of children developing this "motivation for failure" has increased considerably during the past 25 years.

In the past, she says, children were brought up to believe that through their individual efforts they could live a better life than their parents had, but today, except among the impoverished, the average child has few essential needs that are not met.

The impoverished child often exhibits this disinterest in the good fight for the good life. Dr. Schildkrout calls these the "vacuum" children whose life in a cultural vacuum is "now beginning to receive attention in the anti-poverty and Operation Head Start programs."

But this can happen also to more fortunate youngsters. The "sodden life—distinterest in anything but their immediate physical well-being"—led by a substantial portion of the middle class and well-to-do can also produce "vacuum" children, she believes.

In other words, the apathy of the neglected, uninspired, unappreciated poor child can produce the same failure to learn as the stubborn disinterest of the nagged and pushed child of affluence who sees no reason to exert himself. And total lack of pressure, whatever the economic status of a child's family, "actually results in accumulating intolerable pressure," warns Dr. Schildkrout, "sometimes of volcanic proportions."

Intense and intolerable as well is the pressure that comes at a child from two other directions. There is the social demand of conformity, and the academic demand to excel. It's square to be an egghead, but you're sunk socially, not to mention economically, if you don't go to college. And once in college the opposing pressures increase. It's still square to be avowedly studious, but campus socializing can get into very high gear. For some, the balancing is easy; for others, the whole thing gets out of whack, including the emotional state of the student.

"High educational goal achievement and simultaneous denigration of it," is the way in which psychiatrist Schildkrout describes "this schizophrenic state of mind. . . . How can such a philosophy not cause confusion and undermine the purposefulness of our youth?"

Dr. Schildkrout calls for "unified programs to combat the emotional ills of our children which inevitably escalate into the social ills of the society from which they arise."

NEA research shows that many educators believe individualized instruction is the schools' best hope of lessening pressures on children, but agree with Dr. Schildkrout that a unified effort is needed. Parents, schools and the professions dealing with physical and mental health must all cooperate in protecting children from destructive pressures.

Little Red Schoolhouse

PRINCETON, N. J. (UPI) — Two little red schoolhouses have come to the rescue of the public education system here site of one of the world's great universities.

Princeton will lease two school buildings for one year from C. I. T. Education Buildings, Inc. of New York, which will erect them on Printon High School property. They'll be used for science and driver - training classes.

The relocatable structures in Colonial style will be painted red in the tradition of rural and small town American education, and Prineton needs them for a reason familiar to towns with a less intellectual atmosphere: an overcrowded high school.

Junior Colleges Enjoy Phenomenal Expansion

By G. K. HONDENFIELD
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON — Miami-Dade Junior College opened in 1960 with 1,300 students. Four years later enrollment at the Florida school had grown ten-fold, to 14,000.

Typical?

No, but Miami-Dade is indicative of the phenomenal growth of the junior college in recent years.

More than one million students were enrolled in the nation's 719 JC's in the 1964-65 academic year.

They represented one-fifth of all students enrolled in institutions of higher education, and more than one-fourth of those entering college for the first time.

And this does NOT include the hundreds of thousands of other Americans who took courses or enrolled in special programs but did not seek academic credit.

In some states, the figures are truly impressive:

1. There is a junior college within commuting distance of 86 per cent of all college freshmen and sophomores in California are enrolled in the state's 79 public and private JC's.

2. Flordia has reached 70 per cent of its goal of having a junior college within commuting distance of all its citizens. And 55 per cent of all college freshmen in Florida are enrolled in the state's 32 junior colleges.

3. Chicago City Junior College has nine campuses, serving widely separated sections of the city.

The diversity and variety of the junior colleges is so great that there are really only three things you can say about them for sure:

1. They are in American invention.

2. They are two-year institutions.

3. They provide education beyond high school.

A growing percentage of those entering junior college as freshmen plan to transfer at the end of two years to a four-year institution.

But it's impossible to say just how this works out. Some who plan to go on, change their minds and settle for a two-year course. Some who first thought two years would be enough decide to continue their education.

In addition, any JC student body will include working adults who are taking evening classes to upgrade themselves in their jobs or who are retraining for new jobs.

And there are many adults who take courses related to their particular hobbies, or who go to class for the sheer enjoyment of it.

In recent years, the greatest growth in the junior college field has centered primarily on the public institutions.

The American Association of Junior Colleges (AAJC), reports there were 452 public JC's operating during the 1964-65 academic year, including 20 brand new ones. They enrolled a total of 921,093 students.

In addition, there were 267 independent and church-related junior colleges, enrolling 122,870 students.

The public JC's have gained the support of the taxpayer by catering directly to him.

They do this by:

1. Locating campuses within commuting distance of their student body.

2. Providing wide-ranging educational opportunities at low cost.

3. Establishing flexible admission standards which open the door to education to virtually anyone who wants it.

4. Emphasizing good teaching; most JC teachers teach, instead of writing or doing research.

Cost is a major factor in the success of the junior college.

A young man planning on a four-year program can live at home and save his money for two years before going on to the four-year institution.

Another factor is the wide range of technical programs offered those who do NOT plan to complete four years of higher education. These programs prepare a high school graduate for such jobs as: air conditioning technician, computer technician, map draftsman, ceramics technician, dental assistant, bookkeeper, landscape and nursery technician, and real estate salesman—to name a few.

The emphasis is in the independent and church-related JC's is on liberal arts programs leading to a transfer to a four-year college or university, and two-year career programs, particularly in business fields.

As fantastic as junior college growth has been in recent years, it's safe to say the big boom is still ahead.

There are a number of things that make this a reasonable assumption:

The college crush, which is closing many college doors to all but the brightest students, the affluent society in which an increasing number of parents can afford higher education for their children, and — perhaps most important — the fact that this age of science and technology demands more education than a high school diploma represents.

New York provides far more out-of-state students at the University of California at Berkeley than any other state. Illinois and New Jersey are second and third respectively.

Chilean Youth Pitch In, Aid School Building

By JOSEPH BENHAM

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Hundreds of Chilean children are now attending classes thanks to the volunteer efforts of college and university students.

Some 1,500 college students, and a few high school students, spent their summer vacation last year building the classrooms in answer to an appeal from President Eduardo Frei.

Frei, elected last year on a program that included a pledge to make free education available to every child, asked for volunteers after discovering that shortages of funds and construction workers would keep the government from building as many schools as were needed.

The armed forces and civic groups also donated labor to the summer program and some communities built their own schools.

But as with the case of the U.S. Peace Corps, it was the student volunteer program that caught the nation's attention. A Ministry of Education spokesman said many communities, lukewarm to the youths because of doubts they would work, became enthusiastic after learning of the success of the program in other areas.

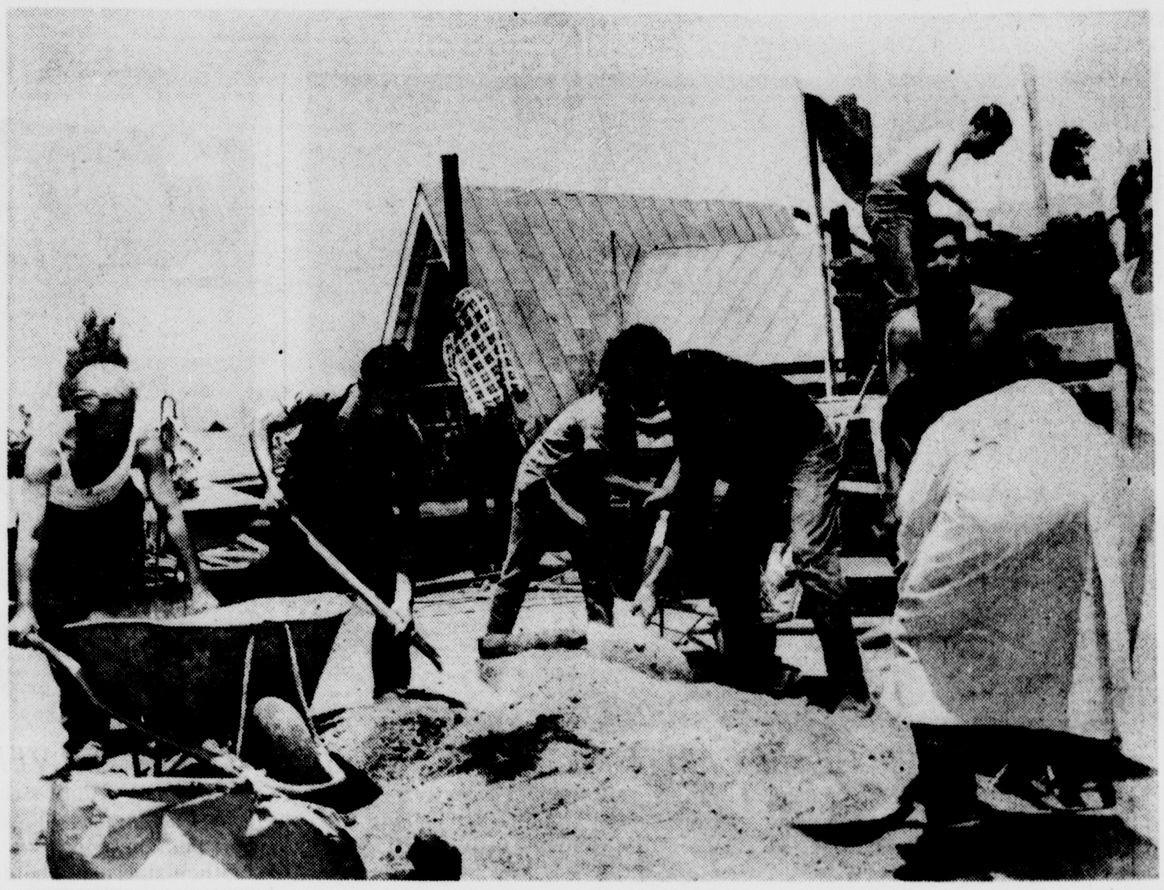
The students set out to build 100 classrooms and manual training shops. At the end of two months, they had completed 149 classrooms plus 20 houses for school directors.

Some passed up the chance to return to school and kept on working.

The government provided transportation and materials needed for construction. Students were housed in military camps and with families in the rural areas where the schools were built.

Technical advice came from the government and from architects. Area landowners donated the building sites.

Working groups of 15 to 17, both boys and girls, built the classrooms. Each group included a medical student, an architectural student and an administrator, who made sure that the students had food and shelter.



STUDENT SELF-HELP—Some 1,500 college students and a few high school students from Chile spent their summer vacations helping the government's school construction program. Students such as these volunteered when they found the government did not have the money or workers to build the needed schools for Chile's free education program.

Anti-Accident Campaign Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Luther L. Terry, U.S. surgeon general, recently called for a broad attack against accidents.

"We need to give accidents the same kind of attention we give to disease," he said. "Only heart disease, cancer and strokes outrank accidents among our leading causes of death. But these degenerative diseases reap their grim harvest mainly among older people, while accidents lead all other causes in all age groups between one and 35.

Laundry Tip On Clothing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The fresher the perspiration stain on clothing, the better the chances of removing it from washable cottons, the Cleanliness Bureau reports.

Wash the stained area in warm soap or detergent suds as soon as possible. If the fabric has become discolored, try sponging it with a vinegar and water solution. Rinse thoroughly. Then launder the entire garment in clean water, rinse it well and let it dry.

Students Gain Knowledge, Confidence In Study Abroad

By DR. WEIMER K. HICKS
President, Kalamazoo College

Although foreign study affects different students in different ways it is possible to make some general statements about the impact of this experience on our students.

For most, foreign study provides an opportunity for the student to develop real proficiency in using a foreign language—a proficiency developed as much outside the class room as in the academic setting itself. In addition, the student's general cultural awareness is enhanced. The student also experiences in some depth the culture of one other specific country from the inside. He sees not simply isolated cultural phenomena, but the total cultural fabric of a people and a nation.

Not only does the student see a foreign country from the inside, he also sees his own country from the outside. This enables him to get a new perspective on the United States and tends to give him a new notion of how the United States is related to the rest of the world. His view of his own country from the outside also often is accompanied by a reassessment of himself, made possible by the new context in which he finds himself. A great deal of self-examination takes place among our students abroad, and many values and attitudes never before questioned are scrutinized and challenged. The context of relative independence also encourages a developing self-reliance. Students who find they can cope with a foreign culture and with the many daily problems which present themselves in the course of foreign study and travel develop a confidence and pride in themselves which is marked.

Enrollment In California Up

Enrollment in California's public elementary and secondary schools this fall will be 225,000 more than last September, an increase greater than the total pupil enrollment in 13 states.

A total of 5,150,000 pupils and 162,000 teachers, one-quarter of California's total population of about 19 million, will answer the public school bell this fall. This is the first year California's total enrollment has surpassed the five-million mark.

These figures are projections for the 1965-66 school year prepared by the California State Department of Education.

THE NIMBLE THIMBLE
21 E. Blithedale, Mill Valley

STYLE VARIETY'S EASY—Today's high school or college girl can choose outfits ranging from kooky and casual to sleek and stylish. For everyday wear, a sweater and skirt (above), is a must for every wardrobe. Here, an argyle sweater with a rolling turtleneck tops the ensemble above a short, pleated, basket-weave skirt. The high cabled socks add an accent at the bottom, the argyle headbands highlights the top. The girl who wants a dressier outfit, might choose a simple sweater topped by a jumper (below). The turtleneck rib top is worn under a two-tone tweed jumper which zips from a narrow V. A pom-pom tassel attached to the zipper adds an extra note. The after-school accent this year is on the total look with pants and jacket either blended or matched to provide an almost one-piece look. Popular for wear under jackets are turtle-neck, jersey dickeys or shells.

Sea-Going Schools Proving Popular

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI)—Two ships which used to carry troops to war are now carrying youngsters and adults who want to mix sailing with schooling.

A group of 121 American students and 36 adults are now on the high seas aboard the 12,620-ton Dunera, a former troop ship, on a 15-day cruise to Stockholm, Leningrad and Copenhagen. The Leningrad stop includes an optional overnight train trip to Moscow to see the Kremlin, Red Square and Lenin's mausoleum.

The Dunera has been carrying students since 1961. The 12,800-ton Devonia joined her in 1962 and the much larger and newer 21,000-ton Nevasa comes into service in October.

The ships have cabins for the adults and dormitories for the school children—both boys and girls are aboard at the same time but the dormitories are segregated by sex. There are school rooms, assembly halls, recreation rooms, libraries, hospitals, cafeterias, sports decks, launderettes and "tuck shops" for ices and candy.

The adult passengers have their own public rooms and usual cruise facilities like bars, beauty parlors, dancing and movies.

The British India Steam Navigation Company, which innovated and owns the ships, said both child and adult passengers have increased each year.

"An increasingly large number of private individuals—unconnected with education—prefer educational cruises because, so they tell us, they like 'a cruise with a purpose'," a company spokesman said.

By the end of this year they will have taken more than 106,200 children and 24,669 adults on cruises since 1961. The company said that apart from these figures as a measure of their success, more and more local education authorities are permitting schools to send their pupils on the cruises during school weeks.

The day begins aboard a school ship at 7 a.m. when reville is played over the broadcasting system to the dormitories, which have 8 to 40 bunks.

Breakfast is at 7:30 a.m. Then the bunks have to be made up and the dormitories tidied up for the captain's inspection later in the day. The captain is the principal as well as the skipper.

For days spent at sea, classes being at 9:15. Three of the seven 45-minute periods are spent in the classrooms, two in the main assembly hall for lectures or movies about the next port of call, one on deck for games or swimming in the ship's pool, and one in the reading room. There are also visits to the bridge, engine room and other parts of the ship and a voluntary daily navigation class.

When school is over for the day, there is the library with more than 1,000 books; the recreation room for games like chess, draughts and monopoly; the game room for table tennis and bowling; a dark room for amateur photographers; the swimming pool; the open deck for games; sing-songs; movie shows; concerts; debates and a juke box with the latest records.

During calls at a port the students are taken on tours and also given time to explore on their own under party leaders.

The ships cruise to Scandinavia, Russia, all around the Mediterranean, North Africa and the Canary Islands.

The cost for a 15-day cruise like this one the Americans are taking is $120 for a student and $210 to $280 cabin class for an adult.

The ships take 12-year - olds upwards on the ordinary cruises and have special trips for 10 to 12 year olds.

Hope For Victim Of Emphysema

NEW YORK (UPI)—Emphysema, the lung disorder which reduces breathing ability through expansion of the tiny air sacs of the lung and constricting of lung airways, is not an irreversible condition as many physicians have thought, according to a report in "The Allergic Patient."

Dr. Stephen Ayres, who said so, based his opinion on research he is conducting as director of the Cardiopulmonary Laboratory of St. Vincent's Hospital in New York. Use of an aerosol - delivered bronchodilator, "such as isoproterenol (Isuprel)," he says, produces up to 25 per cent improvement in patients with classic emphysema.

Glue Is Used On Aircraft

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—For years boys have built model airplanes by gluing prefitted parts together — and now supersonic aircraft parts are being constructed in a similar way.

The F-111 tactical fighter with variable - sweep wings is being built here using several high-strength adhesives. Parts of the wings, fuselage, tail and outer skin are made separately, then bonded together with plastilock adhesive systems developed by B. F. Goodrich. The adhesives create a bond that is stronger than the metal itself and helps keep down the weight of the plane.

Famed Old Tree

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—One of New England's most famous trees was Pittsfield's Old Elm. A sundial marks the spot where this tree stood for 265 years. Under its lofty branches had stood such famous men as Holmes, Longfellow, Hawthorne, Melville and Lafayette.

Super Disposal Plant

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — A refuse reclamation plant capable of disposing of up to 100 tons of trash and garbage a day without the nuisances of fires, odors, smoke, flies or rodents will be built here this year.

CHEERFUL CASUAL — Alternating stripes of lacy open stitches march horizontally around this all-American wool pants sweater with a squared neckline and wide, to-the-elbow ragian sleeves. Ideal for lounging around the dorm or for that informal date.

CAMPUS CONVERTIBLE — This coat can go from school desk to school date. It's made of worsted and mohair twist, with semi-fitted princess lines and "in seam" pockets.

Mansion Still Up

MEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — Still standing here and perfectly preserved is the Royal House, one of the few existing brick houses of the 17th century. The elaborate mansion was built before 1697.

Parents' Pre-School Checklist Can Help

CHICAGO (UPI) — Make the grade as an ideal parent by putting yourself and the children through the preliminaries guaranteeing a good send-off to school.

To do so, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers suggests you clip and heed this checklist of pre-school preparations. It has been time-tested by PTAs nationwide.

Schedule a pre-school physical check-up. Especially important for the child just about to enter first grade, the visit to a doctor should be routine, however, for offspring through high school age. Records of the pre-school visits are useful guides to keeping children healthy throughout the academic year.

Arrange for a dental examination, too. Ditto for eye and ear examinations. Seeing or hearing deficiencies can retard a child's school progress.

Work out the safe route to school or to the school bus stop. Walk through a few practice trips if your child is a first-grader. Parents of older children may check with safety authorities about the location of guarded crossings. Even teenagers who cycle or drive to school can benefit from a parent's warning about a dangerous intersection.

Learn your school's policy about consultation with teachers. In many communities, the season's first PTA meeting includes a get-acquainted session in which parents can meet their children's teachers and find out how, later, to reach them in case of a classroom problem.

Inquire about school lunch facilities. If your child cannot come home for lunch, how much money will he need for a hot meal? Can he buy beverages to round out a home-packed lunch?

Find out precisely what is expected of your child on the opening day of school and plan ahead for it. Working mothers, for example, might have to arrange for an after-school sitter to arrive early if the opening day is a short one. If it is the school's practice to give children a list of needed supplies, make sure your youngster has time and money to buy them promptly.

Look into the possibilities for parent participation in activities of your child's school. Is there a PTA study-discussion group in which you can learn more about your child and his school? Could you lend a hand, through playground monitoring duty? Assist in the library? Help supervise study halls?

Is there a wider horizons program in your high school? Through these, parents are invited to discuss their careers for the information of the students Such a program gives you a chance to share your advice with your own and other children.

Father, Son Team Teach

MIAMI (AP) — An 85-year-old Cuban exile and his 50-year-old son jointly teach medical Spanish at the University of Miami.

The father, Dr. Luis F. Rodriguez, a urologist and former University of Havana president, came here in 1960. He teamed up with his son, Dr. Luis R. Rodriguez, who was teaching Spanish at the university but needed help in medical terminology.

The course, aimed at preparing doctors and nurses for Spanish conversation in their profession, has been attended by more than 500 since its start three years ago.

Think He Said Wrong Thing?

LOUISVILLE (AP)—Arthur Elden was trying to impress upon his 5-year-old son the importance of good table manners.

"Don't make a pig of yourself and eat too much," Elden said. "You know what a pig is?"

"I think," came the innocent reply, "that a pig is a hog's little boy."

New Zealand Baby Tehnique Tested

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Doctors at the University of Michigan Women's Hospital have imported a technique from New Zealand to save the lives of unborn children who are suffering from potentially fatal anemia caused by Rh-incompatibility.

Called an "intrauterine transfusion," the procedure replenishes the child's blood while still in the mother's womb. Dr. Robert Jaffe, U-M obstetrician, estimates the lives of more than 2,000 infants each year could be saved by extension of the new technique throughout the medical world.

NEWEST IDEA—Mrs. Wanda Weaver, a teacher at Pennsylvania School for the Deaf, coaches seven-year-old Lori Richie in the "Sound of the Week." Bulletin boards throughout the school encourage the children to perfect a different sound each week.

Madison Avenue Method Helps In Training Deaf

PHILADELPHIA (AP — The techniques that Madison Avenue uses to sell the products of industry are being tried at the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf as part of the effort to teach the hearing-handicapped youngsters how to speak.

The headmaster of the 145-year-old residential and day school in the Mt. Airy section of Philadelphia is John Nace. Nace notes that's it's a long hard process to teach deaf children how to speak. He says: "We begin in kindergarten and work at it throughout their school life. Some learn to speak fluently. Others do less well. But they all learn to speak."

Nace says the teaching requires skill and inventiveness. "There is no one 'best' method . . . Many means must be tried."

The latest of these means is an all-out, school-wide promotion known as the "Sound of the Week."

For example, speech consultant Mrs. Betty Evans decided to advertise the letter "T" one week. She sent notices out to all her teachers noting that "T" is first in frequency in conversational speech and that the hearing child is expected to have a good "T" by the age of four and a-half.

Directions for obtaining a good "T" also were listed.

In addition to the speech memos, posters are placed in various locations at all four schools—Upper, Middle, Lower and Vocational. The posters contain three words using the sound and a sentence in which the sound appears several times.

Each school has a bulletin board with original art, cut-outs and slogan designed to appeal to the "public"—in this case, the students.

Recently, Mrs. Evans and half a dozen teen-age cheerleaders led a group of upper school students in translating the sound of the week into cheers. "Team" and "touchdown" were naturals.

The middle school students turned their assembly over into a promotion for the letter. And some 150 pre-teens tried to see who could say loudest and fastest: "Two tired tigers took the train to Trenton."

To Each His Own At Revival

BENTON, Ky. (AP) — While preaching during a revival, Dr. Jack Horton noticed his young daughter pinching the children near her.

Occasionally, she would heave a paper wad at those seated further away.

After services, he began scolding the child and was told:

"You preach to 'em. I'll keep 'em awake.

Youth Digs A Surprise

GARLAND, Tex. (UPI)—Ground breaking ceremonies for a new bank turned up a surprise with the first spade of dirt.

Steve Albright, top spring graduate of Garland High School, was asked to do the honors. Buried to surprise him was a letter informing Steve he had won a $250 scholarship and five shares of stock in the Garland Bank and Trust Co.

The president, Albert Armstrong, said Steve was chosen because of his academic record and the coincidence that he was born in 1947 — the same year the bank was organized.

Prison Makes License Plates

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—Convicts at the Texas State Penitentiary manufacture about 6 million automobile license plates each year at an average cost of about 13 cents for each pair.

They are sold through tax offices in each of the 254 counties in Texas, with 33 kinds of plates available. In addition, the legislature has authorized "personalized" plates upon request and an extra $10 fee. They may spell words or initials so long as no two plates are alike or interfere with the regular numbering system which uses three letters and three figures.

Underweight At Birth Bad

NEW YORK (UPI) — Underweight at birth is likely to produce psychological impairment in children by ages six to seven, reports a team of Johns Hopkins researchers.

Dr. Gerald Weiner and associates studied two groups of children, 442 of whom had been prematures with birth weights under 5½ pounds and 415 of whom were born at term with weights over that. The underweight group showed impairment in such factors as motor function, perception, speech and I.Q. Extent of impairment rose as recorded weight decreased.
